Manila was taken from the Spaniards by the American forces after the peace protocol had been signed, but before news of the event reached the Philippines. The insurgent Filipinos, under Aguinaldo, had been acting in concert with the Americans, though their help was not needed; but they were excluded from the captured city for fear that they would loot it. The signing of the peace protocol and the delay of Congress in ratifying the Peace Treaty put the American forces at Manila in an awkward position. They were morally responsible for the preservation of order throughout the islands, but possessed authority only over Manila. Aguinaldo, seeking recognition as the head of an independent power, became more and more aggressive as the debates in Congress over the Peace Treaty encouraged his belief that it might be rejected. To influence action adverse to the Peace Treaty during the debate, he planned a collision, and succeeded in bringing it about, but not with the effect he had designed. Manila was practically besieged by the insurgent army when on the night of February 4 some of their number attempted to pass the American guard and were fired upon. A general conflict ensued, both parties being prepared for what had seemed for a long time to be an inevitable conflict. The insurgent Filipinos were defeated, with great loss, although they numbered probably 30,000 against the 12,000 American troops under General Otis. This was the beginning of the war in the Philippines, which has lasted to this day. The Filipinos never won the slightest victory over American troops, but the latter could not garrison the places they had captured, and when military operations were suspended by the rainy season, the insurgents returned to their trenches, and the Americans still occupied little more of the island of Luzon than Manila and its suburbs. In the meantime Aguinaldo had succeeded in organizing a formidable revolt against American rule, mainly by representing that the Democratic party was opposed to coercion, and that Congress would not support the President in his war measures. Not only was General Otis hampered by the rainy season, but it became necessary to send home the greater part of his troops, who were volunteers enlisted only for the war with Spain. These volunteers, though technically entitled to discharges, served faithfully until relieved, but were sent back to the United States as soon as regulars could be sent to take their places. General Otis persistently declared that 30,000 men would be sufficient to suppress the insurrection and hold the islands. Other estimates were that 100,000 men would be required for this service. At last President McKinley became impressed with the necessity for more troops, and before the end of the rainy season an army of 65,000 men had been gathered in the Philippines, about one-half regulars and the other half volunteers specially enlisted for the service. The volunteer regiments enlisted for the war with Spain were in the meantime returned to the United States. At the end of the rainy season, or rather before it was over, active operations were resumed. Aguinaldo was driven from his strongholds, and by the first of December his army had been scattered. The war was not over, but there was no longer an army opposing the Americans. From beginning to end the United States forces were uniformly successful. They fought under great difficulties, but with great valor and success, and would have ended the war earlier but for two causes—first, the desire of the Administration to avoid further conflict with the Filipinos; second, the encouragement given to Aguinaldo by the opponents of expansion in the United States.

Colonel Harry C. Egbert, of the Twenty-second Infantry, was killed on March 26. On April 18 Lieutenant Gillmore and fourteen men from the United States gunboat Yorktown, while trying to rescue a besieged Spanish garrison near Balor, were ambushed and captured by Filipinos. Colonel John M. Stotsenberg, of the Nebraska regiment, was killed on April 23.

On the 17th of February the city of Iloilo, on the Island of Panay, the second port of the Philippines in importance, was occupied. After the capture of Iloilo the navy took possession of the city of Cebu, on the Island of Cebu, and on the 26th of February a battalion of the Twenty-third Infantry was dispatched to that port for the protection of the inhabitants and property.

On the 1st of March a military district comprising the islands of Panay, Negros, and Cebu, and such other Visayan islands as might be thereafter designated as the "Visayan Military District," was established. The Third Battalion of the First California Volunteer Infantry was thereupon ordered to the Island of Negros, under the command of Colonel (now Brigadier General) James F. Smith, and took possession of the city of Bacoloa, on that island, without resistance.

On the 25th of May Brigadier General R. P. Hughes, United States volunteers, was assigned to the command of the Visayan district.

On the 19th of May the Spanish garrison at Jolo, in the Sulu Archipelago, was replaced by American troops.

By the 31st of August the number of troops stationed at Jolo and the Visayan Islands, including a small guard at the Cavite Arsenal, amounted to 4145.

Colonel Woodbridge Geary, of the Thirteenth Infantry, was fatally wounded on October 9; Major Guy Howard was killed on October 21, and Major John A. Logan on November 11. In sixteen months the casualties among the Americans in the Philippines numbered 1226 killed or died of wounds and 1820 wounded.

CENSUS OF 1900.

Congress has passed the necessary laws for the taking of the census of 1900, and the President has appointed Ex-Governor William R. Merriam, of Minnesota, to take charge of the work as Director. Frederick H. Wines, of Illinois, has been appointed Assistant Director. The Director is not a statistical expert, and the indications are that the business is to be conducted on a political basis, appointments being made with due regard to party exigencies. Mr. Wines, who is a distinguished specialist, has been made assistant to attend to the real work of taking the census, with such help as may be afforded by the politicians to be appointed as census takers. Mr. Merriam and Mr. Wines declare that appointments will be made for merit, but the business is not under civil-service rules.

AFTER THE SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.

December 1, 1898. President McKinley authorized the expenditure of $50,000 for cleaning the harbor of Havana.

December 2. United States authority recognized in the province of Santiago de Cuba.

December 10. The American and Spanish Commissioners at Paris sign the Peace Treaty.

December 21. The Cuban Junta in the United States was dissolved.

January 1, 1899. Formal cession of Spanish sovereignty in Cuba to the United States is made at Havana.

January 16. President Schurman, of Cornell University, accepts appointment as a member of the Philippine Commission. The other members are Admiral Dewey, General Otis, Professor Dean C. Worcester and Colonel Charles Denby.

January 21. Preliminary orders are issued for the mustering out of fifty thousand United States volunteers

February 2. General Gomez gave assurance that he would co-operate with the United States in securing the disbandment of the Cuban army on the payment of $3,000,000 to the soldiers. For this he was ostracized by other Cuban officers; but the men were eager to accept their stipend, and the disbandment was effected. The rolls had been greatly padded, and it required a great deal of vigilance to prevent fraud, and a great deal of tact to avoid an insurrection. The United States army officers provided the vigilance and the tact. Within a few months peace was restored in the island, and the Cuban army dispersed.

February 10. The Treaty of Peace with Spain, having been ratified by the United States Senate, is signed by President McKinley. Messrs. Allen, Butler and Harris, Populists; Cannon and Teller, Silver Republicans; Jones, of Nevada, and Stewart, Silver; Kyle, Independent, and ten Democrats (Messrs. Clay, Faulkner, Gray, Kenney, Lindsay, McEnery, McLaurin, Morgan, Pettus and Sullivan) vote with the Republicans for the treaty, while two Republicans (Messrs. Hoar and Hale), two Populists (Messrs. Heilfeld and Turner) and one Silver Republican (Mr. Pettigrew) vote with the Democrats against it.

February 1. The War Department orders the muster-out of nearly 15,000 volunteers.

February 24. The anniversary of the outbreak of the last Cuban insurrection is celebrated in Havana, and General Gomez is welcomed to the city, the American army of occupation participating in the festivities.

March 4. The new Spanish Cabinet, with Silvela at the head, takes office.

March 11. The Cuban Assembly impeaches General Gomez and removes him from command of the army.

March 15. The Spanish Cabinet ratifies the Treaty of Peace.

March 17. The Queen Regent of Spain signs the Treaty of Peace with the United States.

April 11. Exchange of ratifications of the Treaty of Peace at Washington, Spain, being represented by M. Jules Cambon, French Ambassador, and the United States by President McKinley. Spain appointed the Duke of Arcos to represent her at Washington, and the United States appointed Hon. Bellamy Storer to represent her at Madrid. Thus ended the Spanish-American war.

THE ARMY SCANDALS.

The impeachment of the Commissary Department by General Miles on the ground that it furnished improper food to the army—"embalmed beef," as it was called—led to two investigations by packed commissions, whose members were rewarded by promotions and appointments after they had reported in favor of the Administration. There was, however, unlimited testimony to the effect that the beef was not fit to eat, and public opinion was powerful enough to protect General Miles from the wrath of the Administration. General Miles having testified simply as to the facts brought to his attention officially, Commissary General Eagan treated his testimony as a personal insult, and when he appeared before the War Inquiry Commission read a type-written copy of an outrageous personal attack on General Miles, in which he used the most violent and vulgar language. It was believed at the time that Eagan had been instructed to make the attack in order to provoke Miles into an act of resentment that would excuse his dismissal from the army. General Miles, however, allowed the testimony to serve as his answer. Eagan had to be court-martialed, and, being convicted, the President changed his sentence of suspension to leave of absence, with full pay. Eagan having been retired in this way, Secretary Alger had to bear the brunt of the attack upon the army administration. It was clearly shown that Miles had been utterly ignored, that the War Department had been run as a political and personal machine, and that to this fact was due the maladministration in the Commissary and Quartermaster's Departments. Alger withstood the assaults until the Commission had made its whitewashing report, which was rejected by the public, but ultimately was forced to resign office, being succeeded by Elihu B. Root, of New York.

CLOSING SESSION OF THE FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

The closing session of the Fifty-fifth Congress began December 5, 1898. The Nicaragua Canal bill was again discussed, but ultimately referred again to a commission. A bill for an American international bank was defeated. The Naval Personnel bill was passed, the main feature of which is to give engineer officers rank in the line. The Hull Army bill also was passed. In its original form it provided for an army of 100,000 men, but this had to be modified so as to authorize a regular army of 65,000 until January 1, 1901, and a volunteer force of 35,000. A bill was passed reviving the grade of Admiral in the Navy, to which Admiral Dewey was promoted. An appropriation of $20,000,000 was made to pay Spain for the Philippines. The appropriations of the Fifty-fifth Congress amounted to $1,506,800,016, of which the sum of $482,562,082 is chargeable to the war with Spain.

NATIONAL EXPORT EXPOSITION.

The National Export Exposition, being a comprehensive display of American manufactured products which are in demand from foreign markets, was opened at Philadelphia on September 14th, and closed on December 2d, 1899. The Exposition was held on the banks of the Schuylkill and the exhibits were displayed in three large buildings, especially erected for the purpose and of striking and original architectural designs. The Main Building was one thousand feet long and four hundred feet wide. It included three pavilions two stories in height, and a spacious auditorium with a seating capacity of five thousand. The second building, known as the Vehicle and Implement Building, was four hundred and fifty feet long and sixty feet wide. The Transportation Building was four hundred and fifty feet long and seventy-five feet wide. The main entrance of the grounds on South street was a wide and beautiful esplanade lined on either side by structures of fantastic architecture where the lighter amusements of the Exposition were to be seen. The Exposition was held under the joint auspices of the Commercial Museum and the Franklin Institute of this city.

More than 25,000 persons attended the opening ceremonies. 1,250,000 people visited the Exhibition during the two months and a half of its existence. The Exposition in conjunction with the International Commercial Congress, which was held in the Main Building of the Exposition during the last three weeks of October, was intended chiefly to demonstrate the ability of American manufacturers to supply the world with every article which may be needed in any foreign market. The exhibits aggregated nearly a thousand in number and represented more than half a billion of invested capital. Work on the grounds was begun on March 28th. On August 16th, or in less than five months, the great Main Building Exposition had reared its magnificent proportions above the erstwhile garden for the poor. In less than one month from that day the Exposition, with all its entrancing surroundings and striking group of stately buildings, with gracefully entwining walks and roadways, attractive terraces of green sward, and succession of flower-beds and miniature forests, was opened to the public promptly upon the day announced by the Exposition managers, September 14th.

The International Commercial Congress, a handmaid of the Exposition, which was held during the last three weeks of October, 1899, was a gathering of delegates appointed by various nations as their official representatives, and members appointed to represent commercial and trade bodies throughout the world, for the discussion of commercial conditions affecting trade relations between the United States and the countries represented in the Congress. In this body fifty-one governments were directly represented by nearly seventy delegates. Including these there were three hundred and fifty foreign delegates in the Congress representing the sovereignty and the commercial interests of their countries. In addition to this, delegates were registered from two hundred Chambers of Commerce of the United States. Among the actions taken by the Congress were the following: That there should be an assimilation of trade-mark laws throughout the world for the protection of commerce; that the parcel-post system should be established in all countries; that trade statistics should be assimilated and international bureaus formed for the collection and dissemination of the agricultural reports as to their cereals, etc.; that reciprocal commercial relations throughout the world will be vastly promoted by the creation in each country of an international bureau of commercial information, organized and operated on the lines instituted by the Philadelphia Museum; that there should be international courts of arbitration created in all countries to which all differences among nations should be submitted, and that an interoceanic canal across the isthmus which unites North and South America should be at once constructed.

The Exposition not only paid expenses but was closed with a profit to the Commercial Museum and the Franklin Institute. The total current expenses of the Exposition exceeded $115,000. The cost of the preparation of the ground and the erection of the buildings approximated one million dollars. The ground itself was donated by the City of Philadelphia as a permanent place for the site of the Commercial Museum Building.

POLAR EXPEDITIONS OF 1899.

There was marked activity in Polar work during the year. One of the first expeditions to report was that of Water Wellman, who had made another attempt to reach the North Pole. He reached Tromsø, Norway, with Evelyn Baldwin and the survivors of his party on August 17. He failed in his endeavor to reach the North Pole, but added materially to the world's knowledge of Franz Josef Land, the exploration of which he completed.

About two weeks later the steamer Windward entered the port of Brigus, N. F., with dispatches from Lieutenant Peary. The news brought was that he had wintered at Etah, on the west coast of Greenland, near Smith's Strait; that he had recovered the relics of the Greely expedition, and that he had successfully established a series of supply depots. During one of his marches Peary's feet were so badly frozen that it was necessary to amputate seven toes. A few days later the relief expedition under Mr. Bridgeman returned safely, having successfully carried stores to Lieutenant Peary.

The Fram, having on board Sverdrup, the Norwegian explorer, was frozen in at Coked Hat Island, fifty miles south of Peary's winter quarters. Dr. Svenson, the surgeon of the Fram, had died, and Sverdrup had done little else than make the crossing of Ellesmere Land.

The fate of Andree, the Arctic balloonist, is still unsolved, but news was received in September that an anchor and buoy belonging to the explorer had been found on Prince Charles Island, a few miles south of Danes' Island, the point from which he originally departed.

Early in April news was received from the Gerlache expedition to the South Polar regions, of which Dr. F. A. Cook, of Brooklyn, was a member. The expedition made many notable discoveries, and lost two members of the party through sickness. The expedition reached a point beyond 74°.

THE DREYFUS CASE.

After long agitation the French Government was compelled by the force of public opinion throughout the world to give a new trial to Captain Alfred Dreyfus, who had been sent to Devil's Island in 1895 for alleged treason. There was abundant evidence that he had been made a scapegoat to cover up the crimes of the corrupt General Staff. He had been selected as the victim because he was a Jew, and for a long time it was impossible to gain for him a hearing on account of the prejudices against Jews. His second trial was rendered ridiculous by being fully reported. It ended in his conviction, and he was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, but was almost immediately pardoned. The ending of the case was farcical, for he was declared guilty of treason, "with extenuating circumstances," and the Ministry pardoned him. No public protest was made, simply because the people, in spite of their prejudices, knew him to be innocent. A chronological history of the case follows:

- October 15, 1894.—Dreyfus arrested.
- December 22, 1894.—Condemned.
- January 5, 1895.—Degraded.
- February 9, 1895.—Sent to French Guiana.
- March 15, 1895.—Sent to Devil's Island.
- May 21, 1896.—"Petit Bleu" discovered.
- January 11, 1898.—Esterhazy acquitted.
- January 13, 1898.—Zola's letter, "I accuse," appeared in the Aurora.
- February 7, 1898.—Zola arrested.
- February 23, 1898.—Zola condemned.
- February 25, 1898.—Picquart retired.
- March 21, 1898.—Suicide of Lemercier-Picard.
- April 8, 1898.—Zola arrested again.
- July 13, 1898.—Picquart arrested.
- July 19, 1898.—Zola quit France.
- July, 1898.—Esterhazy and Mlle. Pays arrested.
- August 20, 1898.—Esterhazy and Mlle. Pays freed.
- August 31, 1898.—Arrest and murder or suicide of Colonel Henry.
- September 5, 1898.—Madame Dreyfus appealed.
- September 13, 1898.—Du Paty de Clam removed.
- September 18, 1898.—General Zurlinden resigned.
- September 24, 1898.—Esterhazy confessed.
- September 26, 1898.—Cabinet decided on revision.
- October 8, 1898.—General Chanoine resigned.
- November, 1898.—Court of Cassation favored revision.
- January 8, 1899. De Beaurepaire resigned.
- February 16, 1899.—Sudden death of President Faure.
- March 4, 1899.—Court of Cassation began review.
- May 5, 1899.—M. de Freycinet resigned.
- May 5, 1899.—General de Galliffet becomes Minister of War.
- June 3, 1899.—New trial of Dreyfus ordered.
- June 10, 1899.—Dreyfus left Devil's Island.
- June 22, 1899.—Dupuy Cabinet resigned.
- June 30, 1899.—Dreyfus landed secretly in France.
- July 1, 1899.—Dreyfus arrives at Rennes.

July 7, 1899.—General Zurlinden succeeded by General Brugere as Governor of Paris.

August 7.—Revision court-martial began the new trial at Rennes Palais de Justice.

August 12.—M. Labori, counsel for Dreyfus, ambushed and shot in the back.

August 20.—Riots in Paris.

August 21.—M. Labori reappeared at the court-martial.

August 28.—Dreyfus denied his alleged confession.

September 7.—Taking of testimony closed. Colonel Jouaust refused to take testimony by commission in Germany and Italy.

September 8.—Counsel summed up for Dreyfus.

September 9.—Dreyfus convicted of treason, with extenuating circumstances, and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.

September 19.—The French Ministry issues a pardon to Captain Dreyfus.

September 20.—Captain Alfred Dreyfus is released from prison at Rennes by direction of the French Government.

The Bordereau.

The bordereau, on which the charges were based, is a memorandum of revelations of a treasonable kind concerning French military affairs. It was in the form of notes on the margin of the dossier, and also some separate sheets. M. Demange said it was the sole basis of accusation against Dreyfus. It essayed to explain certain secrets he had imparted to German officials. It was asserted that Dreyfus wrote the bordereau. He always denied it, but the caligraphic experts were divided in opinion. It was finally fixed on Dreyfus, but it is now asserted to have been written either by Colonel Henry or Esterhazy.

The Dossier.

The dossier was the official envelope containing the papers relative to the case—the documents on which he was convicted. The meaning of the word is "secret," and the envelope had in it a brief of the prosecuting lawyers, references to documents and quotations from statements, alleged facts to prove the guilt of the accused officer. None of these papers were submitted to Dreyfus or his counsel; so it was impossible to contradict them. Even at the Zola trials the Government officials refused to allow the dossier documents to be seen by any person except the Judges of the court. Some of the secret documents have been published in part through the confessions of persons implicated in the great conspiracy. One of them, the "bordereau," which Dreyfus was convicted of writing, was as follows:

"Sir, though I have no news indicating that you desire to see me, nevertheless I am sending to you some interesting bits of information.

"1. A note on the hydraulic brake of the 120, and on the way in which this piece behaved.

"2. A note on file covering troops (some modifications will be entailed by the new plan).

"3. A note on a modification in artillery formations.

"4. A note relative to Madagascar.

"5. The project of a firing manual for field artillery. March 14, 1894.

"The last document is extremely difficult to procure, and I can only have it at my disposal during a very few days. The Minister of War has sent a limited number of copies to the several corps, and these corps are responsible for its return, each officer in possession of one to return it after the manœuvres. If, then, you would like to take out of it whatever interests you, and hold it afterward at my disposal, I will take it; unless, indeed, you would like me to have it copied in extenso and then address to you the copy.

"I am just off to the manœuvres."

This note, on a plain sheet of paper, was also inclosed. It was unsigned, but experts declared that it was in Dreyfus' handwriting:

"Sir: According to our agreement, I send you (1) a design of the new artillery brake recently experimented with at Bourges; (2) the effect of Madagascar expedition corps; (3) the number of troops and full description now guarding the eastern frontier; (4) the manual for artillery practice just issued in a limited number of proofs."

It is now known that all these were forged, and it is pretty well settled that the chief conspirators were Colonel Walsin Esterhazy, who took refuge in England; Colonel Du Paty de Clam, General de Boisdeffre and others, with Colonel Henry, Colonel Picquart's successor as head of the Secret Intelligence Bureau, who forged documents to prove Dreyfus guilty, and who committed suicide, after confessing his crimes, in August, 1898.

The Chief Actors.

Prominent men have figured in the case. The list is as follows:

Alfred Dreyfus, captain Fourteenth Artillery, a Jew of Alsatian birth, accused of selling French army secrets to Germany.

Count Walsin Esterhazy, a Hungarian by birth, believed to be the real author of the traitorous bordereau.

Major Von Schwartzkoppen, the German military attache at Paris, to whom the French army secrets were sold by Esterhazy.

Du Paty de Clam, commandant on the General Staff at the time of the finding of the bordereau; friend of Esterhazy, and first to charge Dreyfus with having written the bordereau. He was arrested for forgery, but was let off.

General Zurlinden, Minister of War in 1898, and afterwards Military Governor of Paris.

General Mercier, Minister of War at the time of Dreyfus' arrest and conviction.

General de Pellieux, the officer who had charge of the first investigation concerning Esterhazy.

Quesnay de Beaupaire, a Civil Judge, who resigned from the Court of Cassation because he feared the court was about to give Dreyfus a new trial.

General Billot, Mercier's successor as Minister of War, who first applied the phrase "chose jugée" to shut off all new inquiries in the Dreyfus case.

General de Boisdeffre, Chief of the General Staff of the French Army, who resigned on the news of Colonel Henry's confession.

General Gonse, Under-Chief of the General Staff.

Lieutenant-Colonel Henry, Picquart's successor as head of the Secret Intelligence Bureau, who forged documents to prove Dreyfus guilty, and who committed suicide or was murdered after confessing it.

Godefroy Cavaignac, Billot's successor as Minister of War, who resigned when Henry confessed his forgery.

Maitre Demange, counsel for Dreyfus, and for Madame Dreyfus in her efforts to reopen the case.

Maitre Labori, counsel for Zola and for Dreyfus.

Henri Rochefort, owner and editor of L'Intransigeant, a violent anti-Semitic newspaper.

M. Scheurer-Kestner, formerly Vice-President of the Senate, who tried in 1897 to secure a new trial for Dreyfus.

Lieutenant-Colonel Georges Picquart, head of the Secret Intelligence Bureau, who discovered proof of Esterhazy's guilt and Dreyfus' innocence, and who was imprisoned "au secret."

Colonel Sandherr, Chief of the Secret Intelligence Department at the time Dreyfus was tried and sentenced.

M. Bertillon, Commissary of Police in Paris, author of the famous method of detecting criminals by their thumb marks. He declared the bordereau to be in Dreyfus' handwriting, and when it was afterwards shown that the writing was that of Esterhazy, he invented the theory that Dreyfus had traced it over Esterhazy's writing.

THE ALASKAN BOUNDARY.

The Alaskan boundary dispute with Canada has been temporarily settled by the recognition of a boundary line, which is in a measure a compromise, but preserves to the United States the coast line and all the ports to the Klondike region. American miners seeking gold passed beyond the boundary of Alaska and found it in the Klondike region belonging to Canada. There could be no dispute on that point, the boundary being described by lines of latitude and longitude. But the United States possessed the seashore, and Canada undertook to get at least one port by giving a novel interpretation to the wording of the treaty of 1825. Some progress had been made in settling other questions in dispute with Canada before the Klondike discoveries, but negotiations were then brought to an end by the refusal of Canada to agree to anything until the boundary had been determined. The purpose was to force a compromise, and there is yet some danger that the Canadians may succeed in their purpose. There is a quite natural indisposition to go to war about a boundary dispute that is of no great consequence, and besides our friendly relations with Great Britain dispose us to arrange matters with Great Britain's ward; but the plain matter of fact is, that we own whatever of Alaska belonged to Russia, and not an acre should be surrendered in any compromise that may be proposed. British and even Canadian maps may be used to show that the boundary excluded Canada from the coast at the time of the treaty of 1825, which determined Russia's possessions. The boundary question is likely in the near future to become one of the first importance, for if the Administration should fail to fully sustain the American contention, the Administration itself may be overthrown. The time has arrived to bring Canada to terms, and to force that country to treat each question in dispute on its own merits, instead of playing off one against another in an effort to obtain concessions.

In some of the States Bryan and Watson received many votes. They have been added to the vote for Bryan and Sewall in the above table, so that the vote for Bryan represents the combined vote of Democrats and Middle-of-the Road Populists. In Texas the Bryan and Sewall vote was 288,323; the Bryan and Watson, 79,966; total, 368,289; and the vote for McKinley, 162,506. In the Populist States of Colorado, Utah and Wyoming women voted, almost if not quite doubling the majority for Bryan in those States. The total Prohibition vote is estimated to have been between 80,000 and 100,000, being highest in Pennsylvania. The Socialist vote was insignificant—being smaller than in 1892. Bryan gained 16 per cent. on Cleveland's vote in 1892; but McKinley gained 36 per cent. on the vote for Harrison in the same year. The vote was even more decisive than may appear on casual inspection. If every close State had gone for Bryan, McKinley would have been elected with four electoral votes to spare.

PENNSYLVANIA'S VOTE.

ELECTIONS IN 1900.

In 1900 general elections will be held in Philadelphia as follows:

For city and ward officers on Tuesday, February 20th. To be chosen: Magistrates, members of Select and Common Councils, School Directors and Constables.

Last day for payment of taxes, January 20th.

Last day for naturalization, January 20th.

For State and county officers on Tuesday, November 6th. To be chosen: Presidential Electors, Members of the Legislature, Auditor General, City Treasurer, Register of Wills and Judge of Common Pleas Court No. 3.

Last day for payment of taxes, October 6th.

Last day for naturalization, October 6th.

QUALIFICATIONS OF ELECTORS.

Residence.—A voter must have resided in the State one year, and in the election district or division for at least two months, before the election. Where a citizen previously a resident has removed and returned, he must have resided in the State six months before the election.

Taxes.—No citizen can vote who is over twenty-two years old without having previously paid a State and county tax within two years, assessed at least two months before the election, and paid, at the latest, one month before the election.

Age.—Every male citizen between twenty-one and twenty-two years of age, having the proper qualifications of residence, native birth, or claiming the naturalization of his father during his minority, may vote without being assessed.

Naturalized citizens may vote if they have the qualifications of residence in the State and district and payment of taxes, and have been naturalized one month before the election.

Proof of Right to Vote.—If the name is not on the registry of voters, the person claiming must make affidavit of his claims, and prove his right by at least one qualified voter of the district or division. Proof of payment of taxes is made by producing the tax-receipt or by affidavit that it has been lost, destroyed or never received. A naturalized citizen must produce his naturalization papers, unless he has been for five consecutive years a voter in the district.

SAMOA.

Early in the year trouble broke out in Samoa, owing to rebellion against a decision of Chief Justice Chambers in favor of young Malietoa Tanus against Mataafa as king. Samoa has been for some time under the joint protection of the United States, Germany and Great Britain. The English supported the Americans in this controversy, but the Germans encouraged Mataafa. The latter received a majority of the votes of the people, but was ineligible under the agreement made between the Powers, and, moreover, the decision of the Chief Justice against him was final. The Germans, however, installed Mataafa as king, and had their own way until the arrival of Admiral Kautz in the Philadelphia, who enthroned Malietoa. An insurrection followed, which was subdued by English and American marines, fighting side by side. Several Americans and Englishmen were killed, and at one time a rupture with Germany seemed inevitable; but the German Government was conciliatory, and an international commission settled the difficulty in favor of Malietoa, Germany withdrawing her ships and recalling her offensive consul.

By a treaty arrangement to settle the Samoan question, made between Germany, Great Britain and the United States, on November 8, Germany and Great Britain agreed to retire from the island of Tutuila, on which is the harbor of Pajo-Pajo, leaving it in possession or control of the United States. In return Germany gets the two large islands, Opolu and Savaii, and the smaller islands of the group, and Germany cedes to Great Britain some small islands of the Micronesian group, unimportant except for a few small ports. Germany thus gets Samoa at a nominal price, Great Britain establishes better relations with her at a critical period, and the United States gets nothing—for Pajo-Pajo, the only place of importance in Tutuila, already belonged to her.

RATES OF POSTAGE.

LETTERS WITHIN UNITED STATES. Per oz.

Letters to any part.....	2 cts.
City drop letters.....	2 cts.
Postal cards to any part.....	1 ct. each
Registered letters, proper postage and.....	8 cts.
Immediate-delivery letters, besides regular postage, special stamp.....	10 cts.

POSTAGE ON SECOND-CLASS MATTER—which embraces newspapers, magazines, and periodicals published not less than four times a year—one cent, prepaid, per pound or fraction thereof, when mailed by publisher or news-agent to regular subscribers. Second-class matter mailed by other persons than publishers or news-agents becomes special matter, specially entitled to pass through the mails at one cent for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

POSTAGE ON THIRD-CLASS MATTER—Books, pamphlets, circulars, and other matter wholly in print, such as hand-bills, posters, maps, plans or charts, music, photographs, lithographs, corrected proof-sheets and manuscripts accompanying the same, tags and labels, seed-cuttings, bulbs, roots, etc.—one cent, prepaid by stamp, for every two ounces or fraction thereof.

Packages of transient printed matter are limited to four pounds each, unless in the case where a single volume of a book shall exceed that weight. The sender may write his name and address on the wrapper, preceded by the word "from," and may mark a passage of the text, or write on a fly-leaf a simple inscription or dedication. Packages must be wrapped with open sides or ends.

POSTAGE ON FOURTH-CLASS MATTER—Merchandise, blank cards and bills, patterns, envelopes with or without printing, blanks of any kind, original paintings in oil or water-colors, blotters with or without printing, letter-heads, models, ores, metals, and all mailable matter not embraced in the foregoing classes—one cent, prepaid by stamp, for each ounce or fraction thereof. Liquids (except poisons, explosive, inflammable or offensive articles), in packages properly secured, may be transported. The limit of weight is four pounds.

FEES CHARGED FOR DOMESTIC MONEY ORDERS.

THE KEELY MOTOR.

John W. Keely, the inventor of the Keely Motor, died Nov. 18, 1898, aged 72 years. He will be known in history by the title he gave himself when asked by a doubting friend what epitaph should be placed upon his tombstone. With a seriousness which was not assumed, he answered: "Say that he was the Greatest Humbug of the Nineteenth Century." This was within a year of his death.

The alleged motor was a fraudulent device which Keely claimed was operated by a force hitherto unknown to science which he had discovered; that this force existed in nature and by proper devices it could be utilized without cost; that, having discovered it, he was endeavoring to devise practical means for putting it to commercial use. These claims were first brought to public notice in 1873. While they were derided by the few as being absurd, they were popularly believed to have some foundation, and this belief was strengthened by the fact that several well-known scientific gentlemen who saw some of Keely's experiments during the winter of 1873-4 were unable to discover any fraud, although they were not allowed to examine the apparatus. During the following year exhibitions were made before capitalists of this city, New York and Boston, and demonstrations of a powerful force were made which Keely persuaded them was produced by the "disintegration" of a few drops of water. Such exhibitions of power lost nothing of their marvelousness in the telling, and imaginative newspaper reporters through the columns of the press created an enthusiasm over Keely's discovery which made many people doubt whether the physical laws of nature had been correctly stated in the text books.

Keely had inspired enough confidence in his claims within a few months to warrant the organization of the Keely Motor Company with a capital of $5,000,000. One of the most plausible arguments used in floating its stock was that, if Keely established his claims by bringing out a commercial engine, all present sources of power would be superseded by the "etheric force" evolved from a thimbleful of water, in which case a single share of the stock would be worth a fortune to its possessor.

Unlike most great inventors, Keely had no education. He was first known as an inventor by his exhibition of a perpetual-motion apparatus on Market street, a couple of years before the advent of his motor. In physique he was a powerfully built man, about six feet tall, broad shouldered, square jawed, muscular, and fond of exhibiting his great strength. He spoke very rapidly, and when explaining his experiments obtained the confidence of the listener by an apparent freedom from anything looking like a concealment of facts. His language abounded in words which were used out of their ordinary meaning, so that an investigator would learn nothing from any explanation of his relating to the character of his force or the means of controlling it.

There were two periods in the history of the Keely Motor which must be borne in mind in order to gain a clear understanding of the character of the claims made by Keely, and the experiments by which he supported them. The first period covers his claims to the production of force by the disintegration of water. He pretended to accomplish this by an apparatus called the "Liberator," which confiding stockholders of the Keely Motor Company will see pictured on their stock certificates. The second period began about 1886-7, when he made claim for a new discovery of a force derived from the vibration of some hitherto unknown fluid between the atoms of the illimitable ether. This second claim was brought out after the Keely Motor Company, discouraged by Keely's failure after many years to bring out any practical commercial motor, had ceased to supply him with funds for his experiments or his support.

During the first period there was a wild speculation in the stock of the Company, due largely to the almost hysterical reports in many of the newspapers of what had been done by Keely, and more especially to the fact that men of well-known scientific ability in other fields than physics, had not only indorsed Keely's claims but had also purchased the stock. It is not strange, therefore, that there were many thousand stockholders in Philadelphia and other cities—clerks, shop-girls, widows and orphans—all looking for the day when the increased value of their stock would make them independent. A check was given to this speculation by a few conservative newspapers of the country, notably The Ledger, which from the beginning pointed out the absurdity of Keely's claims, and published the opinions of such well-known physicists as the late Dr. Cresson and Dr. Barker, whose partial investigations led them to believe Keely's claims to be fraudulent.

What became of the money which came to Keely as his share of the great sums raised by the sale of the stock is a matter of conjecture. He lived in good style, was free in the use of money, gave to charitable enterprises, purchased some diamonds "as an investment," as he told a friend. But the withdrawal of financial aid by the Keely Motor Company seemed to leave him without resources, and the public seemed to have become incredulous or indifferent, when a paragraph published in 1881-2 caught the eye of the widow of Bloomfield H. Moore, the paper manufacturer. It related that the inventor, still working to perfect his apparatus, was on the verge of starvation and despair. Mrs. Moore, in speaking of the incident, said she had just been reading of the suicide of an inventor in New York who had been unsuccessful in getting any one to take an interest in his invention, which after his death was seen to have been a valuable one. Here, she thought, was an opportunity to save another inventor from a like fate. She made inquiries, called to see him, and supplied him with means to go on with his work.

Within a year or two after this rehabilitation of his fortunes Keely announced the discovery of his vibratory force. In the meantime Mrs. Moore had become a convert to his theories, and with her pen and large acquaintance in this country and Europe, gave wide circulation to these theories, and revived the hopes of the Keely Motor stockholders. But Keely gave the Company to understand that it had no interest in his new discoveries, and to test the question a stockholder, in 1888, brought suit to compel him to show wherein the two discoveries differed from each other. The Court ruled that Keely should explain the difference, and on his refusal to divulge his secret he was sent to prison for contempt of court. A compromise was effected by his agreeing to permit a mechanical expert to examine the apparatus, and upon the report of the expert that there was a radical difference between the two discoveries Keely was released from confinement.

Mrs. Moore, thoroughly believing in Keely's integrity, invited the leading physicists of this country and Europe to examine and report upon the discovery. The few who accepted the invitation were not permitted by Keely to handle the apparatus, or to do more than to remain spectators of his experiments. Some came away puzzled with what they saw; others formed theories of how well-known forces of nature would account for the results produced; but nothing they could say or publish could shake the faith of Mrs. Moore or Keely's followers generally.

After an absence of several years in Europe, Mrs. Moore returned to this country in consequence of litigation in connection with her trusteeship of her husband's estate. Her championship of Keely's fortunes was an element in the case, and, to fortify her position, she endeavored to get several well-known physicists to examine Keely's inventions, feeling that in their advanced state of perfection the experts must make favorable reports. These gentlemen (among whom were Edison and Tesla) all declined, urging various reasons for not taking up the investigation. In November, 1895, Mrs. Moore invited Addison B. Burk, President of the Spring Garden Institute, to make an investigation. Mr. Burk without declining, asked to have associated with him Mr. E. A. Scott, an electrical engineer, and ultimately Mr. Scott took charge of the work. Mr. Scott accepted with alacrity, as he was familiar with the history of the Keely movement, and had talked with the inventor about it in 1874. He was also familiar with the views of the United States Government engineers, before whom Keely had performed some experiments at Fort Lafayette. His first visit to Keely's workshop, No. 1422 N. Twentieth street, was made with Mrs. Moore on Nov. 9, 1895, and the afternoon was spent with Keely. On this and all subsequent visits he gave Keely no impression that he did not accept the inventor's statements as truth—as a question indicating doubt, or a statement of a discovery made, would have prevented him from seeing other experiments, where he might get further confirmation of his belief in the fraudulent character of the experiments. Many things were shown at this interview, some of which the investigator had heard spoken of several years before. Among these was the levitation experiment, by which heavy weights rise and fall in water in response to musical notes produced on certain pitches. This experiment had been shown to admiring investors and investigators from the earliest days of the mystery, and had always been very effective. Mr. Scott left the building that day satisfied that the experiments witnessed did not depend for their explanation upon any hitherto unknown source.

On the second and third visits Mr. Scott was accompanied to Keely's laboratory by Mr. Burk. These gentlemen, agreeing upon a line of observations, confirmed several of the conclusions arrived at by them after a discussion of the first day's experiences. The principal point proven to their satisfaction was that compressed air was used in nearly all the experiments, either as the moving force, or as auxiliary to some other force more powerful but hidden from view. As an instance of this, the rise and fall of the weights in a jar of water, closed at the top, was found to be the rise and fall of hollow globes and discs, delicately balanced, so that an increase or decrease of pressure in the inclosed air space above the water would make them sink or rise to the surface. This variation of pressure was produced by the introduction or abstraction of air into this space through a small tube which Keely called a solid wire. At one visit Mr. Scott, unobserved, picked up the end of the wire and showed it to Mr. Burk, calling attention to its hollowness. The tube was a feature common to nearly every piece of apparatus in the laboratory. Other equally fraudulent apparatus which had excited the admiration of many prior investigators was proven to be operated on well-known philosophical principles, and there was not the slightest evidence of the discovery of any hitherto unknown force presented by Keely. The gentlemen so reported to Mrs. Moore, who was very much surprised at the conclusion arrived at.

In February, 1896, Mrs. Moore sent for an English physicist, Prof. W. Lascelles-Scott, her object being to have Keely communicate his secret to him in case he should die before completing his commercial engine. The Professor was to take apart any of the apparatus, and have full instructions from Keely as to its use. After a month's investigation, the Professor stated at a Franklin Institute meeting that "Keely has demonstrated to me, in a way which is absolutely unquestionable, the existence of a force hitherto unknown." Shortly after this Mrs. Moore invited Mr. E. Alexander Scott to witness an experiment at the laboratory devised by Professor Scott, especially to convince Mr. Scott that he was wrong in the conclusions previously stated to her by himself and Mr. Burk.

An afternoon was spent at the laboratory with the result that the conclusions before reached were fully verified, and in a most remarkable and unexpected manner, the Professor being unacquainted with the grounds upon which those conclusions had been arrived at. At Mrs. Moore's request, Mr. Scott spent the evening with the Professor, at the conclusion of which the Professor agreed that it would be fair to both parties to have the experiments repeated by Keely, and that Mrs. Moore should cut the so-called wire while the experiments were in progress to see if it were a tube. Mrs. Moore agreed to require this of Keely. The following day, Sunday, May 3, 1896, Professor W. Lascelles-Scott had an interview with Keely, the result of which he communicated by letter of same date to Mrs. Moore, in which he said: "To my surprise, he declined point-blank to repeat the demonstration of Saturday, just as I was told he would do." The Professor urged upon Mrs. Moore "the absolute necessity of winning Mr. Scott's opinion at once, in Keely's own best interests as in yours." He also said: "It would be rashness to discuss the subject further at the Franklin Institute;" and without calling upon Mrs. Moore, he left the country. Mrs. Moore, on May 4, 1896, withdrew her financial support from Keely.

As a member of the Engineers' Club, Mr. Scott, in January, 1898, read a paper detailing the principal facts above referred to, and prior to that Mr. Burk illustrated the fraudulent character of Keely's claims by public experiments at the Spring Garden Institute. One of the strange things shown by Keely was a steel bar, with a minute but not continuous hole in it, which he said he had sensitized with hydrogen gas. On being struck it vibrated, and gave forth two musical sounds about two octaves apart and very persistent, one at each end. Pupils of the Spring Garden Institute reproduced it under Mr. Burk's direction. As made by them it was a hollow tube containing two tuning forks, but with the end pieces so cunningly joined to the main body that the piece of steel appeared to be whole. This had no sooner been shown to Mrs. Moore than Keely declared that his bar had been lost. He expressed no great regret, though a few weeks before he had valued it at $40,000. Evidence was afterwards found that Keely's bar was made exactly in the same way. The counsel and several of the Keely Motor Company's Board of Directors were present at the Engineers' Club when the paper was read, and were permitted to discuss it. On the following November 18 Keely died, and the Motor Company took possession of Keely's laboratory. They called to their aid T. Burton Kinraide, a Boston electrician, who had been in communication with Keely. The laboratory was dismantled, and the apparatus was taken to Kinraide's laboratory, where he is said to have endeavored to complete Keely's work. The dismantled laboratory was explored by Mr. Scott and Mr. Burk, and abundant evidences of secret devices were everywhere visible. Under the ground floor an immense hollow steel ball was found, which in the early days had been used as a compressed air reservoir, and tubes were found under the floors and concealed in the walls. The globe had not been used for several years, the air pressure required in the latter-day experiments being supplied by rubber bulbs and rubber tubes, which were also found in great numbers among the rubbish left by the Keely Motor people.

The whole scheme of fraud was finally laid before the world by Charles J. Hill, counsel for John W. Keely's widow, on January 29, 1899, when he published the fact that shortly after December 20, 1898, while examining Keely's laboratory, Mr. Kinraide discovered the first evidence of fraud. A full investigation showed that rubber bulbs concealed under carpets or in some out-of-the-way place could be stepped on, and thus force the compressed air through concealed rubber tubes. The Keely Motor, or engine, was started by compressed air through a platinum tube, supposed to be a wire, the pressure setting a water motor in operation. This in turn operated the Keely Motor, a belt passing up from below through the hollow supports of the motor axis to a small concealed pulley on the shaft. The water motor was under the floor of the one-story back building. Keely had several ways of doing the same thing, so that if suspicion fell upon one he could readily use another.

Considerable indignation was expressed by many of Keely's supporters on the publication of the facts—not against Keely, but against Mr. Hill. The public generally accepted Mr. Hill's statement as true, and in April, 1899, the Keely Motor Company officially concluded that they had been deceived by Keely.

Mrs. Moore, who had been in very feeble health for several years, died at her residence in London on January 5, 1899. It was stated that after her return to England her confidence in Keely was restored, and that she continued to supply him with funds, although with much less liberality than before. The total sum invested by her in Keely's enterprise is not definitely known. It was not as large as some published statements have put it. She showed her account to Mr. Scott in 1896, and it then amounted to about $65,000. Mrs. Moore was entirely sincere and unselfish in her support of Mr. Keely's pretensions, her sole purpose being to enable Keely to give the world the benefit of what she believed to be a great discovery.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR.

For a long time the British Government, under the direction of Joseph Chamberlain, had been trying to provoke a war with the South African Republic. The Jamison raid was a part of the project. President Kruger of the Transvaal, however, proved a match for Chamberlain in diplomacy, and eventually forced Great Britain into an unjust war. After the failure of the Jamison raid, Chamberlain incited the Uitlanders to demand naturalization. The laws of the Republic were modified to meet these demands, but the English wanted to retain their allegiance to the Queen while becoming citizens of the Republic. No agreement was possible, for to concede the demands of Chamberlain would have been to surrender the government of the Transvaal to British subjects. Various concessions were made, and in the meantime the British Government began to gather an army in Natal. Before this movement had gone too far, President Kruger issued an ultimatum, and, as it was disregarded, he took possession of the passes and invaded Natal. The war began October 11, 1899. The Boers were at first successful, but at the close of this writing the British had concentrated an army of sixty-five thousand men in Natal, and were ready to proceed to the relief of various British garrisons besieged by the Boers, chiefly in Ladysmith, Kimberley and Mafeking. The war thus inaugurated is apparently one to the death. It will either result in the expulsion of the British from South Africa, or their complete control of the region. The gold and diamond fields, and the control of the projected railroad route of Cecil Rhodes from Cairo to the Cape, are the objects of the British invasion of the Transvaal.

ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT HEUREAUX.

President Heureaux, of San Domingo, was assassinated on July 25. He was in his fourth consecutive term. He was a despot, and had executed many military officers and civil officials or procured their assassination. But in the main he gave San Domingo a fairly good government. San Domingo appeared to be on the eve of a revolution, with Jiminez as the leader of the revolutionary party, but the United States Government detained Jiminez for a time in Cuba, and up to the close of the almanac year the government of San Domingo, under the constitutional successor of Heureaux, had not been disturbed.

THE WATER PROBLEM.

After long agitation of the water problem for Philadelphia, and the defeat of various schemes to turn over the water works or the business of furnishing water to private corporations, all projects of filtration were defeated by a faction in Councils for the purpose of depriving Mayor Warwick of the honor of beginning the work of improvement. Mayor Ashbridge appointed a Commission consisting of Rudolph Hering, Joseph M. Wilson and Samuel M. Gray to report upon the whole subject, and, with the data then in hand, they promptly reported, recommending filtration of the present supply. A loan of $12,000,000 to provide filtration plants was proposed and submitted to a vote of the people at the November election, and was adopted by a vote of 114,187 in favor of the loan to 24,563 against it. The report of the Commission was one of unusual clearness and value. The conclusions of the Commissioners were as follows:

Resume and Conclusions.

The deplorable condition of the city's water supply, which it is sought to remedy, is due to the pollution of its sources, to the lack of effective pumping machinery, and to the insufficient capacity of the distributing system.

The question of first importance is the source of supply, and to this nearly all of our thought and time has been devoted.

Most of the water is now obtained from the Schuylkill river, within the city limits. Five pumping stations take from it about 200,000,000 gallons daily. One pumping station is located on the tidal estuary of the Delaware river at Lardner's Point, and supplies about 15,000,000 gallons daily.

The Schuylkill water is being polluted at many points from its source down to the city line. Beginning with the mine waters, the coal dust and some sewage from the upper parts of the water-shed, the pollution is increased below by the sewage of cities and villages situated along the river and its chief tributaries, by the manufacturing refuse, and by the surface water from agricultural districts, all of which render the water sometimes turbid, unpalatable, impure and dangerous to health.

The Delaware water at Lardner's Point is less turbid after rains than the Schuylkill water; it is also softer and less polluted. Its flow is many times larger. While this water is, therefore, now somewhat better than the Schuylkill water, the growth of the city, the newly-built or projected sewers above and below the intake, and the tidal oscillation of the water, tend to a continually-increasing pollution also of the water taken from the Delaware river.

It therefore becomes imperative either to select a new source of supply, or to improve the present one, so that it will become thoroughly satisfactory to the citizens both as to quality and quantity. The first project requires the bringing of Blue Mountain water to the city; the second requires a thorough filtration of the Schuylkill and Delaware waters taken within the city limits. A decision as to which of these alternative projects is the better one must be based on the quality and quantity of water to be supplied and on the cost.

It was, therefore, necessary first to make certain preliminary assumptions, then to make designs for both projects, and to ascertain the cost of construction and operation. The assumptions as to population and as to quality and quantity of water are as follows:

The present population, to be supplied from the city's pipe system as soon as practicable, is taken at 1,300,000 persons. The population to be held in view in the design for new works is assumed at 3,000,000 persons.

It was considered that the waters collected from the affluents of the Delaware and Lehigh rivers in the Blue Mountains, and from the Upper Perkiomen creek, could be used in their natural condition. While these natural sources are the best obtainable at a reasonable cost, and while their average standard of purity is high, it must be remembered that a guarantee against an occasional and temporary pollution of the water by disease germs from man and animals cannot be given for such large and exposed water-sheds; nor can an occasional taste, due to vegetal matter, be entirely avoided.

The alternative source of supply is the water of the Schuylkill and Delaware rivers, within or near the city limits, artificially purified to the required standard. The purification is obtained by filtering the water through sand; no better and cheaper method is known.

The progress made in this country and in Europe in ascertaining the laws of the mechanical and biological process of filtration, and the practical success obtained in filtering water for many years in large cities of Europe, confirm and warrant the conclusion that this method of purification can furnish this city from both rivers with water that will be clear and palatable, and will conform to the best bacterial and chemical standards.

When the raw river water carries much suspended matter with it, this must be allowed to subside, as a preliminary to filtration, so as to lengthen as much as practicable the time between the filter cleanings. Settling reservoirs are therefore essential as preliminaries to the filtration of the water of these two rivers. In order to secure the greatest practicable efficiency, the filter plant must not only be built with skill, and be provided with the best means for regulating the flow and for cleaning the sand, but it must also be carefully operated by trained men, in accordance with the daily condition of the river water and of the filters.

The quantity of water required for city consumption depends on local conditions. In some cities much less water is used than in others. The quantity with which Philadelphia has generally been credited is somewhat misleading, due to the absence of proper measuring appliances; as a matter of fact, it is less than appears on the records. There is also, in this city, an undoubted waste of water, the amount of which cannot now be accurately determined, and which confers no benefit whatever, either to persons or property, or for street or sewer cleaning. It therefore subjects the citizens at large to an entirely useless expenditure, which should be stopped at the earliest practicable moment.

We consider that at present a daily supply of 200,000,000 gallons, being 15 gallons per capita, is a very liberal allowance. We recommend that this quantity of pure water be immediately provided for. At the same rate, a population of 3,000,000 persons will require a daily supply of 450,000,000 gallons.

Comparative estimates of cost have been made for eventually supplying these quantities. In order to indicate the legitimate outcome of an extravagant use of water, we have made a further estimate of cost for supplying the city daily with 700,000,000 gallons of mountain waters.

The Blue Mountain water projects deliver water to the city reservoirs by gravity. In one, mountain water is obtained from the Upper Perkiomen creek and from the Lehigh river, with its tributaries. In another, mountain water is taken from the Delaware tributaries near the Water Gap. Still another project was considered, using the Delaware water at Portland, below the Water Gap, but after filtration. Other projects were considered, but were found to possess no special advantages, and were also more expensive.

The filtered water project, which has been specially considered, is confined to taking water from the Schuylkill and Delaware rivers within the city limits.

Two methods of filtration are in common use: one allows the water to percolate slowly through a bed of sand, while the other allows it to pass through much more rapidly, and, in order to give it the same degree of purity, requires the use of a coagulating substance to prevent objectionable organisms and suspended matter from passing through the filter. The first we have called a slow, and the second a rapid filtration.

Inasmuch as it has been impossible, in the time at our disposal, to make the necessary experiments showing the precise effects of filtering both the Schuylkill and Delaware waters, either through slow or rapid filters, it is also impossible now to state which of the two systems would be the more economical. But we know, and can positively assert, from experience obtained elsewhere, that, for the plants which we have recommended, a slow filter system will not materially differ in annual expense from a rapid filter system. We likewise know that the slow filters, from long experience, and from their successful operation in many cities, can, without question, yield satisfactory results with the waters of the above-mentioned rivers. The rapid filters have only recently been sufficiently developed to command a high degree of confidence in their results under all circumstances.

We are of the opinion that for the present supply slow filters should be adopted at every station in the city, excepting at the one near East Park reservoir. We believe that at the latter station a rapid filter plant would be more serviceable.

A comparison of the estimates of cost shows the following results:

The most economical project for a supply of mountain water is that taken from the Upper Perkiomen and from the Lehigh water-sheds. For immediate needs, its cost of construction is $33,410,000. Its annual cost, for operation, interest on investment, and all expenses, to deliver the water into the city reservoirs, is $1,205,000.

For a daily supply of 450,000,000 gallons, the total first cost would be $66,740,000, and the annual cost $2,480,000.

The most economical project for a supply of filtered water is that by which the waters of the Schuylkill and Delaware rivers are filtered within the city limits. Its cost of construction, for present requirements, would be $10,974,000. Its annual cost, for operation, interest and all other expenses, to deliver the water into the city reservoirs, is $1,227,000.

For a daily supply of 450,000,000 gallons, the total cost of the filter plant, including special mains from Torresdale to the center of the city, would be $34,155,000, and the annual cost $2,972,000.

The estimates of cost have shown three important results:

1. The original cost of any of the mountain water supplies is very great for the large quantities of water which the city requires.

2. A filtered water supply can be obtained at a first cost which is within the present borrowing capacity of the city, and the plant can be operated at a cost which will not exceed the probable annual net earnings of the water works.

3. The total annual cost of delivering the water into the city reservoirs by either method is about the same, and the annual earnings will cover the operation and extension.

In conclusion we recommend:

1. The adoption of that project by which the waters of the Schuylkill and Delaware rivers, taken within the city limits, are purified by filtration.

2. The immediate improvement of the existing plant, in accordance with the detailed recommendations of our report.

The necessity for the second of these recommendations is manifest. Our reasons for the first are as follows:

The entire works can be built for a sum which the city can secure at this time through a loan.

A supply of pure water for the entire city can be obtained within a comparatively short time, and the city can thus at an early day be protected against a continuance of those diseases which are known to be caused by the present polluted water supply.

A filtered water supply, under skillful management, offers a greater security against the effects of accidental pollution of the water than is possible when the supply is taken from open, unprotected water-courses. Filtration can, without difficulty, be made to render the water thoroughly wholesome.

The two large rivers at Philadelphia, or even the Delaware river alone, can furnish at all times a quantity of water sufficient for a very large city.

ROBERTS, THE POLYGAMIST.

The enabling act under which Utah entered the Union contained a provision requiring that the State Constitution of Utah should forever prohibit polygamous or plural marriages, and that this provision should be irrevocable without the consent of the United States. This prohibition was inserted in the Utah Constitution adopted in 1895. Nevertheless, polygamy is still practiced, and Brigham H. Roberts, elected to Congress by Utah, has several wives. As the House has a right to pass upon the qualifications of its members, it is held that Roberts should be rejected, as a polygamist violating the supreme law of the State he represents.

GAME AND FISH LAWS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

According to the game laws in Pennsylvania, enacted June 4, 1897, it is unlawful— To shoot or hunt on Sunday. Penalty, $25. To shoot insectivorous and song birds. Penalty, $25. To destroy eggs or nests of any species of birds. Penalty, $50. (Persons of fifteen years and upward may obtain a certificate granting the right to shoot birds and collect eggs for scientific purposes by making proper application to the Game Commission and paying the fees provided by law.) To catch or kill any Mongolian or Chinese pheasant until 1902. Penalty, $25. To sell game shot in the State: Penalty, deer, $100; birds, $25. For any person or railroad company to carry any game killed in this State beyond the limits thereof. Penalty, $100.

With respect to fishing in Pennsylvania, it is unlawful— To fish on Sunday. Penalty, $25. To fish with any device except rod, hook and line. Penalty, $100. This does not apply to gill and seine net fishing for shad, herring and sturgeon in season; provided the nets for shad have meshes not less than four inches in width, or two inches from knot to knot, and the meshes of nets for herring be not less than two and one-fourth inches in width, or one and one-eighth inches from knot to knot, and the meshes of nets for sturgeon be not less than ten inches wide; nor does this forbid the use of eel pots.

NOTE. If a person refuses to pay a fine imposed for violations of the fish laws, he shall be confined in a county jail 1 day for each dollar of fine unpaid.

CRICKET RECORDS.

Owing to the withdrawal of the Belfield Club, only five clubs were left to compete for the Halifax Cup in 1899; but at the last moment Germantown secured permission to enter two teams, and by arranging matters so that the strongest players were generally to be found on the team that was playing Merion or Belmont, they again succeeded in capturing the local championship.

A record of the games won and lost in the Halifax Cup series is given below:

Clubs.	Germantown	Belmont	Merion	Philadelphia	Radnor	Games won
Germantown.....	3	3	2	4	12
Belmont.....	1	1	2	2	6
Merion.....	1	1	2	2	6
Philadelphia.....	2	0	0	...	2
Radnor.....	0	0	0	0	0
Games lost.....	4	4	4	6	10

INDIVIDUAL PRIZES.

The race for the George W. Childs Batting and Bowling Cups was very spirited, and the winners secured wonderfully good records. The Batting Cup was won by F. H. Bates, who in eight innings scored 435 runs, and, being twice not out, averaged 72.50 runs per innings.

E. M. Cregar won the Bowling Cup with a record of 27 wickets for 275 runs, or an average of 10.18 runs per wicket.

INTERNATIONAL CRICKET.

The annual match between the United States and Canada was played in Toronto, August 7 and 8, and ended in a victory for the former by 34 runs, the scores being United States 206 and 219, Canada 222 and 169.

Prince Ranjitsinhji brought a team of English amateurs over in the autumn, and succeeded in carrying everything before him, as will be seen by reference to the following record of the games played in Philadelphia:

At Elmwood, September 25, 26 and 27. Philadelphia colts 205 and 95 (10 wickets), Ranjitsinhji's team 185 (drawn). In this match, England fielded 11 men and batted 12, while the local colts fielded 14 men and batted 22.

At Haverford, September 29, 30 and October 2.—England, 435; Philadelphia, 156 and 106 England won by an inning and 173 runs.

At Manheim, October 7, 9 and 10.—England, 363; Philadelphia, 85 and 147. England won by an inning and 131 runs.

N. Z. Graves and A. M. Wood were the only Philadelphians to secure a batting average of over 20 in the series with the Englishmen.

INTERNATIONAL YACHTING.

The international yacht race in 1899 for the America's Cup, between the American defender Columbia and the English challenger Shamrock, the first leg of which was scheduled to be sailed on October 3, resulted in a victory for the former in straight heats. Eleven days were consumed in deciding the three races, there not being sufficient wind on eight of the days for the two yachts to go over the course, off the Sandy Hook Lightship, within the time limit of five and a half hours. On the ninth day both went over inside the limit, Columbia winning handily by nearly a mile. The course was fifteen miles to leeward and return to windward. The next day over a triangular course, ten miles to each leg, Shamrock's topmast broke down after going about

FOOT-BALL.

There were many surprises during the football season of 1899. The Indians scored against Harvard, and Yale played a tie game with Harvard, neither team scoring; Princeton was beaten by Cornell; Yale by Columbia and Princeton; Pennsylvania by the Indians, Lafayette and Harvard, and tie games were played with Brown and Chicago; Cornell was beaten by Chicago and Pennsylvania, and Columbia by Princeton and Cornell; the Indians won all their games except with Harvard and Princeton, and scored in all except with Princeton; Lafayette was beaten only by Princeton; Lehigh scored in only two games—against Rutgers and the N. Y. University. The season was brought to a brilliant close by a game on Franklin Field between West Point and Annapolis, in which West Point won by a score of 17 to 5.

The 1899 Inter-academic championship was won by the William Penn Charter School Eleven, which defeated all the other teams in the Association by comfortable scores. Germantown Academy, the only school able to give Penn Charter any sort of a struggle, was second with four victories and one defeat, while the Cheltenham Military Academy finished third with three victories and two defeats. The Haverford Grammar School, Episcopal Academy and DeLancy School were all tied for fourth place, each having won one game and lost four. Penn Charter also had the honor of taking the Preparatory School championship of Philadelphia and vicinity, defeating all comers. Next to Penn Charter came Drexel Institute and then the Central High School. The annual match between the Central High School and the Central Manual Training School was won by the High School by a score of 12 to 0.

STRENGTH OF THE ARMY.

The annual report of Adjutant General Corbin, published November 1, 1899, gave the following table, showing the strength of the army at that time. A month later all the infantry regiments of the volunteer army, shown in the table as being in the United States, had departed for the Philippines, raising the strength of the army there to 2117 officers and 63,608 enlisted men—a total of 65,725.

A recapitulation of the casualties in actions and deaths in the regular and volunteer armies between May 1, 1898, and June 30, 1899, contained in the annual report of the Adjutant General of the Army, shows a grand total of 10,076 men. The casualty list alone aggregates 3454, of whom 35 officers and 458 enlisted men were killed and 197 officers and 2764 enlisted men wounded. The death list, numbering 6619, was made up of 224 officers and 6395 enlisted men. Of this total but 38 officers and 458 enlisted men were killed, the remainder of the deaths resulting from various causes, including the following: Wounds, 10 officers and 192 enlisted men; disease, 165 officers and 5344 enlisted men; accident, 6 officers and 209 men; drownings, 3 officers and 88 men; suicide, 2 officers and 52 men; and murders or homicides, 52 enlisted men. In the regular army the total casualties in actions and deaths amounted to 4155, and in the volunteer establishment to 5921. In the casualty list the regulars had 127 officers and 1856 enlisted men killed and wounded, and the volunteers 105 officers and 1366 enlisted men killed and wounded.

ALMANAC COOK BOOK.

CREAM OF CELERY SOUP.—A celery cream soup can be made from the outer and tougher stalks of the celery heads, which are often too much darkened by handling in the market to be fit for the table. Take these outer but bleached stalks, wash them well, and when you have the equivalent of two heads of celery trim off the green leaves, cut the white stalks in small pieces, and boil them slowly for three-quarters of an hour in a quart of water, or of water and white stock in equal quantities. Strain the celery and the liquid in which it was cooked through a puree sieve, pressing all the pulp of the vegetable through. Add a quart of milk, and when the mixture comes to the boiling point a thickening of two large tablespoonfuls of flour, mixed with the same amount of butter, and thinned with a little of the boiling soup. Stir the soup steadily for ten minutes after adding the thickening, and season it with salt and pepper. Finally, draw the kettle to the back part of the stove, and beat the yolks of two eggs in a cup with a little cold milk or cream. Add enough of the hot soup to the mixture to heat it, and then stir it quickly into the remainder of the soup.

MOCK KIDNEY SOUP.—Put two ounces of butter or dripping into a stewpan with one onion, a carrot, a turnip, a stick of celery (each cut into slices), a small slice of bacon, and half a pound of calf's liver cut into small pieces, and fry all together until the liver is brown, then add a small bunch of parsley, a sprig of thyme and marjoram, some salt and pepper, and five quarts of stock. Let it boil up, and skim it well, and then draw the pan to the side of the stove where the contents can only simmer, and leave it for one hour. Strain the soup, and put it into a clean stewpan, pass the kidney through a wire sieve, and put it back into the soup and thicken it with a little rice flour (or lightly-baked flour); ascertain that it is sufficiently seasoned, and add a teaspoonful of mushroom ketchup, and enough browning to make it a good color. Serve the soup as soon as the thickening is cooked.

BAKED SHAD (MRS. RORER).—Scrape free from all scales, make a short opening down the belly and take out the insides; wash well inside and out, and immediately wipe dry with a clean towel. Rub well with salt. Make a dressing of one cup of stale bread crumbs, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, a half teaspoonful of salt and a little black pepper; mix well and stuff the body of the fish, and sew it up with soft yarn. Then score one side of the fish with a sharp knife, making the scores about an inch apart, and lay a strip of salt pork in each gash. Grease a tin sheet, if you have one, place it in the bottom of a baking pan, put in the fish, dredge thickly with salt, pepper and flour, cover the bottom of the pan with boiling water and put into a hot oven. Bake fifteen minutes to every pound of fish, basting each ten minutes with the gravy in the pan. As the water evaporates, add more, and keep the bottom of the pan covered. When done, lift the tin sheet from the pan, and slide the fish carefully into the center of the dish in which it is to be served. Garnish with slices of lemon, fried potatoes and parsley. Serve with Hollandaise sauce or roe sauce. If you have no tin sheet, place the fish in the bottom of the pan, and, when done, loosen it carefully and slide into the dish.

SAUCE HOLLANDAISE.—Make a drawn butter, take from the fire, beat into it slowly the yolks of two eggs, then add juice from half a lemon, a teaspoonful of onion juice and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley.

SHAD ROE SAUCE.—Wash two shad roes in cold water, simmer gently after bringing to a boil in a pint of water and a teaspoonful of salt. Drain, remove the skin, mash fine and stir into drawn butter. Boil up once and use.

SHAD ROE SALAD.—Simmer for twenty minutes in a covered vessel two shad roes that have been washed and brought to a boil in a pint of salted water. Take out and when cold remove the skin, and cut the roes into thin slices. Rub the salad dish with a cut onion, arrange in it white, crisp lettuce leaves, heap the roe in the center and pour over all a rich mayonnaise sauce which has been standing on the ice.

DUCK A LA MODE.—Put into a stew-pan half a pint of rich gravy, throw in a bunch of mixed sweet herbs, two shallots and a split anchovy. Let all simmer for twenty minutes. Divide a duck into four quarters, season them with cayenne and fry them brown. Strain the gravy into a clean stew-pan, lay in the quarters of duck, let it come to the boiling point, then add a gill of red wine. Let all stew until the meat is tender. Arrange the duck upon a hot dish. Let the gravy boil once or twice, skim off every particle of fat, and pour it round the duck. Have ready half a dozen broiled ducks' livers that have been larded with strips of spiced ham and with them garnish the dish.

SAVORY MOULDS.—Put into a clean stew-pan a small lump of butter, with three pounds of the knuckle of veal, one-quarter pound of ham, two mushrooms, two onions, the grated rind of a lemon, one carrot and one turnip. Season it with pepper, nutmeg and mace to taste, and set it over the fire for ten minutes. Add a quart of good fresh stock, and allow the whole to simmer for three hours, adding one ounce of gelatine half an hour before it is done. When ready, pour all into a tureen, take out the bones and vegetables, and pick the meat to pieces with two silver forks. Flavor it to taste with catsup, lemon juice, salt and cayenne. Pour the whole into small, well-soaked moulds, placing in each a hard-boiled and shelled egg. Put them away for at least twelve hours. Turn the moulds out upon a glass dish and garnish them with cress.

POMMES DE TERRE AU GRATIN.—Mash some boiled potatoes—about a pound and a half—until they are smooth and light, add two ounces of butter, the yolks of two eggs and a tablespoonful of cream. Do not make the puree too thin. Spread it evenly to the depth of an inch or an inch and a half on a fireproof dish. Ornament the top with a fork, grate over it a sprinkling of Parmesan cheese, and put into a hot oven for ten minutes.

VEAL MOULD.—Cut some thin slices from a joint of cold roast veal, and trim off the skin and fat; chop up some lean boiled bacon or ham, and cut some hard-boiled eggs into slices. Butter a plain mould, decorate the top with some of the slices of egg, then put in some slices of veal and sprinkle over them some of the chopped bacon, some hard-boiled egg cut into dice-shaped pieces, a little finely-minced parsley, and season with salt and black pepper; then add more veal, etc., until the mould is quite full. Have ready some stock, flavored with vegetables, in which a little gelatine has been dissolved (allow half an ounce of the latter to half a pint of liquid), make it a clear brown by adding a few drops of coloring, and, if the flavor is not disliked, add half a teaspoonful of tarragon or chilli vinegar; pour as much of the stock into the mould as the latter will contain; cover the mould with a plate, and place it in a moderate oven for an hour and a half. Then remove it, fill it up with a little more stock (reserved for the purpose), and put it aside until the following day. When required, turn the moulded veal on to a dish, garnish it with radishes and serve with lettuce salad.

SWISS ROLL.—Take the weight of three eggs in flour, butter and sugar. Line a shallow tin with a piece of well-greased paper. Put the butter and sugar into a bowl and beat them with a wooden spoon till they are like cream. Take one tablespoonful of the flour and mix with it one teaspoonful of baking powder, and put it on one side. Now add one egg to the cream, butter and sugar; shake over it one tablespoonful of the flour, and mix well in; go on adding eggs and flour till both are used up, stirring briskly. Then add the flour and baking powder and the grated rind of half a lemon, or a few drops of vanilla, and one teaspoonful of milk. Mix well. Pour the mixture into the prepared tin, smooth it evenly over. Bake about ten minutes in a quick oven, or till firm to the touch, and a pretty pale brown. Then turn it brown side downwards on to a piece of sugared paper. As quickly as possible spread it over with jam, which should have been slightly heated, as it will then be easier to spread evenly, and while still hot roll it up neatly. If you allow it to cool first you will find great difficulty in rolling it, as it will crack.

SOUTHERN RICE BREAD.—Put two cupfuls of boiled rice into a bowl, add two cupfuls of milk and the well-beaten yolks of two eggs. Sift in gradually one cupful of flour, add one-half a teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of butter (melted) and the whites of the eggs, whipped to a stiff froth. Turn into a well-greased, shallow pan and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

NEW ONIONS—BAKED.—Peel six Bermuda onions; throw them into a kettle of boiling unsalted water; let them simmer gently twenty minutes; drain and put them into a baking dish; dust with salt and pepper, pour over a tablespoonful of melted butter. Cover the bottom of the dish with boiling water. Bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes, basting them frequently. Just before they are finished cooking, dust over two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, and increase the heat in the oven that they may brown quickly.

CHICKEN PATTIES.—Veal and chicken or veal alone will serve for this dish when chickens are scarce. Cut the cold boiled meat, whatever it is, into small dice, until there is a sufficient quantity to make one pint. Then put one tablespoonful of butter into a frying pan, and when melted add one tablespoonful of flour and stir until smooth; then add one gill of stock and one of cream, and again stir until the mixture boils. Remove from the fire, add the meat, twelve drops of onion juice, and salt and pepper to taste; when mixed thoroughly, cover and stand over boiling water until heated. Dish neatly into individual patty cases, and sprinkle over the top with the yolks of hard-boiled eggs which have been passed through a sieve.

CHEESE BALLS.—These are to serve with fish, or with boiled mutton. They are appetizing and delicious, and replace the much-used rice or potato croquette. Boil one-half cup of rice in water. When soft and thick, draw off the water and add one-half pint of rich milk, one ounce of parmesan or other cheese grated fine, salt and pepper—allow this to cook for five minutes, then add the yolks of two eggs, beaten light, and simmer one minute more. Be careful not to let the eggs curdle by longer or harder cooking. Turn the mixture out to cool. Mould into balls and cook with egg and bread crumbs, and fry a light brown in very hot fat. Fry quickly and serve hot.

CREAMED SALT CODFISH.—Take one and a half cupfuls of fish; soak an hour in lukewarm water; take out, pick up fine, taking out all the bones; melt three tablespoonfuls of butter; add two tablespoonfuls of flour, slowly stirring all the time until it froths up; now draw on to a cooler part of the stove, and add gradually one and a half cupfuls of milk; set back on the fire and boil until thick as rich cream; add the picked fish and a little pepper, but no salt, as the fish is salt. To make it richer add one egg slightly beaten when you add the fish.

SCRAPPY SOUP.—Excellent soup can be made from scraps of meat, which should be boiled all day over a slow fire. An hour before serving add a cabbage leaf, chopped very fine, a turnip, sliced, several potatoes and any other vegetables that are on hand. A few spoonfuls of stewed corn or peas will improve a vegetable soup.

CHOCOLATE BISCUITS.—Beat up the yolks of three eggs, and add to them one tablet of grated chocolate, two ounces of flour and one-quarter of a pound of sugar. When well beaten together add the whites of four eggs whisked to a stiff froth; pour the paste into a bag with a nozzle, and press it out onto a sheet of wafer paper on a baking sheet in strips about four inches long and one inch wide. Sprinkle with fine sugar and bake in a moderate oven. Serve with afternoon tea.

SIMPLE BONED CHICKEN.—Stew slowly two chickens till the meat is ready to drop from the bones. Cut into small pieces or chop fine. Let the liquid boil down to a cupful. Stir in butter the size of an egg, a tablespoonful of pepper, a little allspice and a beaten egg. Mix through the meat. Slice a hard-boiled egg and line a mould, pack in the chicken, pressing it in hard, and finally put a weight on the mould. Keep cool, turn from mould and slice.

LYONNAISE EGGS.—Boil seven eggs hard. When they are cold cut them in two lengthwise, reserving one egg whole to use as a garnish. Fry a small onion, sliced, in a tablespoonful of butter, but do not allow it to color. Take out the onion, add half a pint of milk, reserving a little with which to mix a tablespoonful of flour. Cook for ten minutes, season with salt and pepper, put in the sliced eggs, and heat through. Gently lift them out on to a hot dish, and pour the sauce over them. Take the remaining hard-boiled egg, cut the white in thin rings and arrange round the edge. Press the yolk through a sieve and sprinkle it over the top. Serve very hot.

IMPERIAL RICE.—Wash and blanch a cupful of rice. Cook it slowly in a pint of milk, with a little sugar and vanilla, until quite tender. Melt one ounce of gelatine in a little milk, and add it to the rice. Remove from the fire, allow to cool, add a gill of whipped cream, pour into a mould, and set aside for a few hours before turning out.

DEVILED SAUCE.—Mince two shalots, fry them in one-half ounce of butter till of a golden color; add one-half pint of brown gravy, a tablespoonful of mixed mustard, a dessertspoonful of Worcester sauce, and a good pinch of red pepper; stir all until the sauce boils, skim it, pass it through a fine strainer, add a teaspoonful of finely-chopped parsley and serve it.

CHESSE CAKES.—Cream half a cupful of butter with a cup of sugar, stir in lightly a tablespoonful of flour, four eggs and a cupful of cream. Flavor with lemon or vanilla, bake in pastry shells of rich crust, using a quick oven. This makes three pies.

MOCHA FILLING FOR LAYER CAKES.—Beat one-quarter pound best butter to a cream, and slowly add a teacupful of strong black coffee, stirring it all the time. Add sugar to taste.

FOR AN INVALID.—Take some water crackers, steep them in milk for ten minutes, take them out, dust them with a little salt, cayenne and black pepper, and bake them in a slow oven for twenty minutes.

MONT BLANC.—Take a pound of chestnuts, boil them until tender, take off the outer shells, and again boil until the brown skins peel off quite easily. Return the nuts to the saucepan, add a little vanilla sugar, or, if powdered sugar is used, add a few drops of essence of vanilla, and, while holding over a gentle heat, crush the nuts until they form almost a paste. Stand an empty jam pot in the center of the dish in which the Mont Blanc is to be served. Pass the chestnut puree through a potato or other sieve, allowing it to fall in a heap around the jam pot. When all has been passed through, remove the jam pot, and fill the space left with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla. The chestnut puree should form a brown mountain, with a snow tip of white cream.

BREAD PUDDINGS.—Baked bread and butter pudding, made with sultanas, and the varieties of boiled and baked bread-crumble pudding, make a pleasant change, and are very wholesome.

For special occasions light jam rolls are suitable. The favorite birthday pudding of one family is stale sponge cake, split and spread with jam, soaked in milk and covered with custard.

ALMOND CUSTARD.—Ingredients: Half a pint of cream, two ounces of almonds, one teaspoonful of orange-flower water, yolks of three eggs, a little powdered cinnamon and ratafias. Blanch the almonds, pound them to a paste with the orange-flower water. Mix them gradually with beaten yolks. Stir in the cream. Sweeten to taste, and, if liked, add a drop or two of vanilla. Pour it into a perfectly clean saucepan, and stir over a slow fire till it thickens. Take care it does not boil, or it is spoiled. Serve it in little glasses, cups or dishes—one for each guest—with a dust of cinnamon and a ratafia on the top of each.

THE HOUSEKEEPER'S ALPHABET.

The many requests for the "Housekeeper's Alphabet" lead to its reproduction here, and it is hoped that, in spite of its great age and well-known teachings, it may find renewed youth and usefulness when cut out and pasted on the pantry door:

Apples—Keep in a dry place, as cool as possible, without freezing.

Brooms—Hang in the cellarway to keep soft and pliant.

Cranberries—Keep under water in the cellar; change water once a month.

Dish of hot water set in the oven prevents cakes, etc., from scorching.

Economize time, health and money, and you will never beg.

Flour—Keep cool, dry and securely covered.

Glass—Clean with a tablespoonful of ammonia to each quart of water.

Herbs—Gather early blossoms and keep in paper bags.

Ink stains—Wet with spirits of turpentine; after three hours, rub well and wash out.

Jars—Heat them gradually to prevent cracking when filled with hot preserves, etc.

Kerosene—A feather dipped in it and applied to a rusty lock or hinge sets the matter straight.

Look into every item of your housekeeping once a day.

Money—Count it carefully when you receive change.

Nutmegs—If these are fresh, a drop of oil will follow a puncture by a pin.

Oranges and Lemons—Both wholesome fruit and a cure for biliousness.

Pork—Not good for food.

Quicksilver and white of egg destroy bed-bugs.

Rice should be boiled in plenty of water and cooked until the grains swell open.

Sugar—For general use granulated is cheapest. Cut sugar need never be served except for after-dinner coffee or five-o'clock tea.

Tea—Make it quickly, using water boiled expressly at the time and still boiling. Let it stand eight minutes and then pour off.

Utensils of tin may be kept bright by powdered borax rubbed on with a damp cloth at every washing.

Vaults and cesspools should be disinfected with copperas.

Watch your back yard and keep it clear of dirt heaps and bones.

Xantippe was a scold not to be imitated.

THE EPHEMERIS.

THE Ephemeris for the present year gives the day of the year, the day of the month, and day of the week in civil time, according to which the day begins at midnight. Next are given the time of sunrise, the time at which the sun's center souths, or is on the meridian, and the time of sunset. The times of sunrise and sunset are in each case for the upper limb or edge of the sun and corrected for refraction. They are more accurate than usually found in popular almanacs, and will give the time with sufficient accuracy for ordinary purposes. A surveyor's level will give the horizon where the upper edge of the sun should be at the time given in the Almanac. If the telescope of the leveling instrument inverts, the upper edge will, of course, be apparently the lower one. Next are given the times of rising, southing and setting of the moon. The rising and setting are for the upper limb, corrected for parallax and refraction, and the southing is for the moon's center. The age of the moon gives the number of days elapsed since the last new moon. Then follow the times of high and low water at Washington ave., Philadelphia (for high and low water at other places, see table on page 15). In the last column are given the times when the Moon is in Perigee or Apogee, also a collection of interesting astronomical phenomena for the year. All data in this Almanac are given in Eastern Standard Time, which is 38'' ahead of Philadelphia local time; hence the two times are practically the same; except for sun's southing; in this case subtract 38'' to get the corresponding local time.

No COMET, so far as is known, has ever come in contact with the earth or mingled its surface with our atmosphere. The nearest approach ever observed was the comet of 1770, which approached to within 1,400,000 miles of our planet.

PEOPLE in the country who are annoyed by flies should remember that clusters of red clover, if hung in the room and left to dry and shed its faint, fragrant perfume through the air, will drive away more flies than sticky saucers of molasses and other flytraps and flypapers can ever collect.

MARS (♂) will be Morning Star until February 14, and Evening Star from March 1 to end of year. It will attain its greatest brilliancy at the beginning of March, being in opposition with the sun on February 22, when it will be on the meridian at midnight.

JUPITER (♃) will be Morning Star until June 10, and Evening Star from July 20 to the end of the year. It will be most brilliant about June 30, when it is in opposition with the sun.

SATURN (♄) will be Evening Star, setting after the sun, from July 20 to end of year. It will be brightest on July 5, when it is on the meridian at midnight.

THE FAMOUS west gate of Pekin has the thickness of a New York city block, and in the passage through it there are a dozen gates of different patterns, some opening in the middle, some working on hinges, and others falling like portcullises. The walls rise to a height of eighty feet, and over the gate is a temple one hundred feet high.

A FRENCH savant says that arsenic is not an element, but a compound of phosphorus probably with oxygen and nitrogen. He has obtained arsenic by treating phosphorus with a large number of oxidizing agents, such as nitric acid, peroxid of barium, etc.

MANY FISH can produce musical sounds. The trigia can produce long drawn notes ranging over nearly an octave. Others, notably two species of ophidium, have sound producing apparatus, consisting of small movable bones, which can be made to produce a sharp rattle. The curious "drumming" made by the species called umbri-vas can be heard from a depth of thirty fathoms.

THE ANNUAL CROP of mushrooms in France is valued at $2,000,000, and it is said that there are sixty wholesale firms in Paris dealing exclusively in them. In the department of the Seine there are some 3000 caves in which mushrooms are grown. About 300 persons are employed in their culture, and they rarely leave the caves.

A COD weighing 7¾ pounds lays nearly 7,000,000 of eggs.

ASSASSINATION OF GOVERNOR GOEBEL OF KENTUCKY.

State Senator William Goebel, of Kentucky, was the author of the Goebel election law of that State—a tricky politician's device to overcome the will of the people. He became the beneficiary and victim of his own law. In 1896 he was the Democratic candidate for Governor and was defeated by Governor Taylor, Republican. Goebel contested the election, and under his own law obtained a technical decision in his favor, which the courts refused to disturb, not considering the merits of the case, because the law prescribed the manner of ascertaining the result and left no discretion to the courts. Great feeling was aroused by this overthrow of the popular will, and some of the hotheads sought to correct the law and its administration by means of assassination. On January 30, 1900, Senator Goebel was shot as he was about to enter the capitol building at Frankfort. The shot came, apparently, from the room of the Secretary of State, and Republican mountaineers, who had come to Frankfort on invitation to support Governor Taylor, were suspected of the crime. The Legislature offered $100,000 reward for the discovery of the assassins, and the magnitude of this offer threw some doubt upon the proofs offered of the conspiracy. Indictments were found against Governor Taylor, who removed to Indiana to escape prosecution, and against Secretary of State Powers and others. The Secretary of State was tried, convicted and sentenced for life on testimony that was ample to convict if it had not been procured by the offer of an unusual reward for conviction, which circumstance left the matter of guilt in doubt. James Howard was convicted of murder in the first degree, as having fired the fatal shot. Lieutenant-Governor Beckham, Democrat, succeeded to the Governorship, and acknowledgment was made of the unfairness of the Goebel election law by an attempt to repeal or amend it on the part of the Democrats.

NEW YORK'S RAPID-TRANSIT SYSTEM.

New York, after many years of discussion, has adopted what seems to be a very sensible plan for the construction of rapid-transit lines underground. The city prepares the plans of the road and provides the money for its construction. The contractor builds the road and has the use of it for fifty years, paying a rental sufficient to cover interest on the investment, so that if the scheme works out in practice the city will own the road, and it will not cost the taxpayers a penny. The contract was let on these terms to John B. McDonald, whose bid for the work was $35,000,000. The main trunk line will start at the Post-Office in the lower part of New York and follow the spine of Manhattan Island to Kingsbridge, a distance of over twelve miles. A branch line will run to Bronx Park, also about twelve miles from the City Hall, but east of Kingsbridge. The road will have four tracks to the point of branching, two for local and two for express trains, and two tracks on the remainder of the lines. The plans contemplate an ultimate extension of the lines to the Battery and thence to Brooklyn. Another branch may also be constructed eastward to Brooklyn. The main system now under contract is to be completed in three years.

SAMOA.

Although the McKinley administration acquired a good many islands, it managed to get rid of Samoa. The Samoan group had been under the joint protectorate of Great Britain, Germany and the United States. By a treaty, ratified early in 1900, the islands were divided between the three powers. The United States annexed the island of Tutuila, which has no value except the splendid harbor of Pango-Pango, where for more than twenty years we have had coaling-station rights. We gain nothing of importance by the deal, but we "get rid of a yellow dog." Nothing has been heard of Tutuila since it was annexed.

PORTO RICO.

The form of government provided for Porto Rico by act of Congress does not differ essentially from that provided for territories of the United States, except that instead of sending a delegate to Congress without a vote, Porto Rico will send to the United States a Resident Commissioner, whose relations will be with the executive branch of the United States Government, and who will be in effect a Minister or Envoy. Porto Rico is treated as foreign territory in another way. Free trade was proposed at first, but eventually an act was passed providing that 15 per cent. of ordinary duties should be imposed on all imports to both countries, the revenues thus produced being used exclusively to meet the expenses of government in Porto Rico.

It was provided, moreover, that this tariff should be imposed for only two years, and remitted at an earlier date if the Porto Rican Government should establish an internal system of taxation sufficient to support the government. The Republicans protest that the tariff is "for revenue only," but the Democrats declare that the purpose of it is to establish a colonial policy. Porto Rico has begun to flourish under American rule, and though there are mutterings of discontent, a very small force of American troops has been required to maintain order on the island.

COMPETENT authorities assert that South America has greater undeveloped resources than any other portion of the world. Any crop grown elsewhere can be duplicated there, and the country abounds in mines of coal, silver and gold, most of which has been only slightly developed.

MANY Chinese temples have windows made from mother-of-pearl found in oyster shells. The material is transparent and looks like opal glass.

HAWAII has closed its last school for teaching the native language. Hereafter young Hawaiians will be taught to talk English.

THE GOVERNMENT OF HAWAII.

Hawaii was governed independently by President Dole for two years after its annexation, and when at last Congress provided a territorial government it confirmed in general terms the laws of the independent government. Voters are required to be able to read and write either the English or Hawaiian language. The Chinese exclusion law is extended to Hawaii, and so also are the tariff and revenue laws of the United States. Local laws and institutions are continued without change. There has been no sign of dissatisfaction in Hawaii with this new form of government, although the population of the islands is extremely heterogeneous. The governing class, composed of Americans, Germans, English and other Europeans, numbers not more than 10,000. But there are 30,000 natives, 26,000 Chinese, 27,000 Japanese and 15,000 Portuguese.

Some of all these groups may become voting citizens, but the great majority must for a long time remain disfranchised by the educational qualification of voters. The "consent of the governed" will thus be disregarded—to the great advantage of the United States territory of Hawaii. The territory, by the way, sent delegates in 1900 to both the Republican and Democratic National Conventions.

THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

The Paris Exposition of 1900 was formally opened on April 14. It was incomplete for at least two months afterward and suffered accordingly. A great majority of the side shows were failures, the attendance being much less than was expected, partly owing to the distractions of the South African war and the feeling of antagonism aroused in England by French sympathy for the Boers. The opinion of critics seemed to be that on its artistic side the Exposition was the greatest ever held, but that in other respects it fell short of the World's Fair in Chicago. The United States was well represented and won a great many prizes.

THE OPEN DOOR IN CHINA.

The most important achievement of the McKinley administration in its diplomatic relations consisted in getting from European nations assurances of an "open door" in China. Just as our trade with Asiatic nations was beginning to develop, Russia, Germany, Great Britain and others began their inroads upon China. There was danger that the United States would be shut off from trade with China by the occupation of its seaports by European governments. Secretary Hay set about getting assurances that our trade with the East should not be interrupted by this partition of Chinese territory, and he was eminently successful in doing so. Great Britain agreed to keep the door open—her trade interests being the same as our own; Germany was not quite so hearty, but agreed to do so provided other nations should assent. Japan followed England, France gave satisfactory assurances, Russia was extremely friendly and complaisant, and Italy made no objection. The "open door" in China was thus assured before the complications arising from the Boxer insurrection threatened the dismemberment of China. The United States having acted as an ally of the European powers in the Chinese campaign, there is no doubt that in the end it will have the trade relations of the most favored nation with all the ports of China no matter what nation may control them. It is doubtful whether this country could have obtained such concessions if it had not developed into a world power by purchase of the Philippines, or if it had not united with European nations in the attack upon Peking.

A FLORIDA man has purchased 300 acres of swamp land near Swan Bridges, and will turn it into a breeding place for alligators. These reptiles are becoming scarce, owing to the activity of Northern hunters, and, as there is a steady demand for alligator skins, the speculator hopes to do well.

THE HAY-PAUNCEFOTE TREATY.

The treaty signed by Secretary of State Mr. John Hay and the British Ambassador Lord Pauncefote, on February 5, was at once transmitted by the President to the Senate, where it met violent opposition. No action was taken upon it. The Hay-Pauncefote treaty is amendatory of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty of 1850, which provided among other things that neither the United States nor Great Britain would ever obtain or maintain for itself any exclusive control over a proposed ship canal. The Hay-Pauncefote treaty abrogates this limitation; permits the United States to build a canal or control it, but expressly stipulates that no fortifications shall be erected commanding the canal or the waters adjacent, and also that the United States as owner of the canal shall not use it on more favorable terms when at war than it accords to its enemies. If the Clayton-Bulwer treaty is in force it will be necessary to amend it in some such way before the United States can build or control an Isthmian canal without violation of its treaty obligations. But for a long time it has been the opinion of eminent statesmen that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, made respecting a project that was abandoned, is inoperative or moribund. Legislation for the construction of a canal has been proposed without regard to it and has met with no protest. The awkward case is now presented that the vitality of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty has been officially recognized by the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, not yet ratified, and the effect of such recognition is that the United States cannot build or control an Isthmian canal without the permission of Great Britain.

IRRIGATION in Nebraska, at a cost of $1 an acre, has spread prosperity all over the State, no longer linked with conditions so precarious as that of the season's rainfall.

THE difference between the tallest and shortest races in the world is one foot and one-half inches, and the average height is 5 feet 5 inches.

Explanations to Tide Tables.

To find the times of high or low water for any place given in the table above, apply the correction opposite the place to the times of high or low water for Philadelphia given on each calendar page of this Almanac. Add the correction when it is plus, and subtract it when it is minus.

EXAMPLE—At what time in the morning will it be high water at Atlantic City on May 3, 1901?

Time of high water at Philadelphia, May 3, A.M. . . . . = 1h. 16m. A.M.

Time of high water at Atlantic City, May 3, A.M. . . . . = 7h. 41m. A.M.

The places, instead of being arranged alphabetically, are put as nearly as may be in their geographical order, beginning on the northern New Jersey coast, and following the coast of the Delaware, and thence up that river and the Schuylkill.

AGREEMENT WITH THE SULTAN OF SULU.

The text of the agreement made between the United States and the Sultan of Sulu is as follows:

Agreement between Brigadier General John C. Bates, representing the United States, of the one part, and his Highness, the Sultan of Jolo, the Dato Rajah Muda, the Dato Attik, the Dato Calbi and the Dato Jaoakanain, of the other part; it being understood that this agreement will be in full force only when approved by the Governor General of the Philippine islands and confirmed by the President of the United States, and will be subject to future modification by mutual consent of the parties in interest.

Article 1. The sovereignty of the United States over the whole archipelago of Jolo and its dependencies is declared and acknowledged.

Article 2. The United States flag shall be used in the archipelago of Jolo and its dependencies on land and sea.

Article 3. The rights and dignities of his Highness the Sultan and his Datos shall be fully respected; the Moros shall not be interfered with on account of their religion; all their religious customs shall be respected, and no one shall be prosecuted on account of his religion.

Article 4. While the United States may occupy and control such points in the archipelago of Jolo as public interests seem to demand, encroachment will not be made upon the lands immediately about the residence of his Highness the Sultan, unless military necessities require such occupation in case of war with a foreign Power, and where the property of individuals is taken due compensation will be made in each case.

Any person can purchase land in the archipelago of Jolo and hold the same by obtaining the consent of the Sultan and coming to a satisfactory agreement with the owner of the land, and such purchase shall immediately be registered in the proper office of the United States Government.

Article 5. All trade in domestic products of the archipelago of Jolo, when carried on by the Sultan and his people with any part of the Philippine islands, and when conducted under the American flag, shall be free, unlimited and undutiable.

Article 6. The Sultan of Jolo shall be allowed to communicate direct with the Governor General of the Philippine islands in making complaint against the commanding officer of Jolo or against any naval commander.

Article 7. The introduction of firearms and war material is forbidden, except under specific authority of the Governor General of the Philippine islands.

Article 8. Piracy must be suppressed, and the Sultan and his Datos agree to heartily cooperate with the United States authorities to that end, and to make every possible effort to arrest and bring to justice all persons engaged in piracy.

Article 9. When crimes and offences are committed by Moros against Moros, the government of the Sultan will bring to trial and punishment the criminals and offenders, who will be delivered to the government of the Sultan by the United States authorities if in their possession. In all other crimes, persons charged with crimes or offences will be delivered to the United States authorities for trial and punishment.

Article 10. Any slave in the archipelago of Jolo shall have the right to purchase freedom by paying to the master the usual market value.

Article 11. In case of any trouble with subjects of the Sultan, the American authorities in the island will be instructed to make careful investigation before resorting to harsh measures, as in most cases serious trouble can thus be avoided.

Article 12. At present Americans or foreigners wishing to go out into the country should state their wishes to the Moro authorities, and ask for an escort; but it is hoped that this will become unnecessary as we know each other better.

Article 13. The United States will give full protection to the Sultan and his subjects in case any foreign nation should attempt to impose upon them.

Article 14. The United States will not sell the island of Jolo or any other island of the Jolo archipelago to any foreign nation without the consent of the Sultan of Jolo.

Article 15. The United States Government will pay the following monthly salaries:

	Mexican dollars.
To the Sultan.....	$250 00
To Dato Rajah Muda.....	75 00
To Dato Attik .....	60 00
To Dato Calbi .....	75 00
To Dato Jaoakanain .....	75 00
To Dato Puyo .....	60 00
To Dato Amir Hussin.....	60 00
To Hadji Butu.....	50 00
To Habib Mura.....	40 00
To Serif Saguin.....	15 00

Signed in triplicate, in English and Sulu, at Jolo, this 20th day of August, A. D. 1899 (13 Arabuil Ahil 1317).

[Signed]	J. C. BATES,
	Brigadier General, United States Volunteers.
[Signature]	SULTAN OF JOLO.
[Signature]	DATO RAJAH MUDA.
[Signature]	DATO ATTIK.
[Signature]	DATO CALBI.
[Signature]	DATO JAOAKANAIN.

On October 27 the following letter was sent to General Otis by Secretary of War Root:

"The President instructs me to advise you that the agreement signed August 20, 1899, between Brigadier General John C. Bates, representing the United States, of the one part; the Sultan of Jolo, the Dato Rajah Muda, the Dato Attik, the Dato Calbi and the Dato Jaoakanain, of the other part, is confirmed and approved, subject to the action of Congress provided for in that clause of the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain which provides, 'the civil rights and the political status of the native inhabitants of the territory hereby ceded to the United States shall be determined by Congress,' and with the understanding and reservation, which should be distinctly communicated to the Sultan of Jolo, that this agreement is not to be deemed in any way to authorize or give consent of the United States to the existence of slavery in the Sulu archipelago, a thing which is made impossible by the Thirteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States."

THE GALVESTON WIND STORM AND FLOOD.

Early in September notice was given of a great tropical storm which was expected to follow the usual path and sweep the east coast of the United States. It appeared on the coast of Florida and then seemed to disappear, but in a few days thereafter reports came of a great disaster on the Gulf coast of Texas. The storm had turned southwestward and then curving to the north and east had swept over Galveston, Texas, reaching its climax at 1.45 A. M., on Sunday, September 9.

Galveston is built upon the east end of a beautiful, but low-lying island some thirty miles long and six or seven miles wide at the point of greatest extent, though only a mile or two wide where the city is built. The pressure of the wind upon the waters of the Gulf was so powerful and so continuous that it lifted the waves on the north coast many feet above the ordinary high-tide level, and for a short time the entire city was submerged. The demolition caused by the wind alone, apart from the invasion of the sea, would have resulted in a great loss of property and considerable loss of life; but the combined attack of hurricane and tidal-wave produced indescribable horrors—the destruction of property sinking into insignificance when compared with the appalling loss of life. The new census taken in June accredited Galveston with a population of 37,789. The calamity of a few hours seems to have reduced that number by 20 per cent. The loss of life in villages and at isolated points along the coast-line will probably bring the sum total of deaths caused by this fatal storm up to 10,000. The condition of the survivors for two or three days beggars description. The water had quickly receded, and all means of communication had been destroyed, including steamships, railroads, telephone and telegraph lines, and public highways. Practically all food supplies had been destroyed, and the drinking water supply had been cut off by the breaking of the aqueduct pipes. The tropical climate required the most summary measures for the disposition of the bodies of the dead. Military administration was made necessary, and many ghoulish looters and plunderers were summarily shot, either in the act of robbing the dead or upon evidence of guilt. It is needless to dwell upon the horrors of the situation. As against the blind force of nature that precipitated the calamity, there stands out in splendid contrast the wonderful qualities of hope, courage, devotion, heroism, generosity, and undaunted enterprise that were manifested in the very face of the disaster. To the question whether the site of Galveston had better not be abandoned altogether, there came an emphatic negative. The pluck of Galveston had behind it the vigor and unlimited resources of the great State of Texas, and the sympathy and quick generosity of the entire nation. Relief agencies everywhere set to work promptly to forward food, clothing, and money to the impoverished survivors. More than $1,000,000 was collected, of which Philadelphia contributed more than $100,000, besides shipping to the city several train loads of supplies. Great corporations like the Southern Pacific Railroad made haste to restore their Galveston facilities, and ingenious engineers brought forward suggestions for protection of the city against future inundations. These suggestions embraced such improvements as additional breakwaters, jetties, dikes and the filling in of a portion of the bay between Galveston and the mainland. The United States Government in recent years has spent $8,000,000 or $10,000,000 in engineering works to deepen the approach to Galveston harbor.

More than a month elapsed after the storm before anything like order was brought out of the ruins, and years will be required to restore the city to its former condition, but corporate interests in the island are so great that its trade will probably be restored in a very short time.

STRIKE IN THE ANTHRACITE REGIONS.

Successful efforts were made during the summer to enlist the anthracite coal miners of Pennsylvania in the United Mine Workers of America, an organization which regulates wages and terms of work in the bituminous coal regions not only of Pennsylvania, but of all the States. They formulated their grievances, but the operators refused to treat with representatives of the Union and denied that the Union represented their employes. A strike resulted, which was begun on Monday, September 17. Within two weeks the miners had demonstrated their strength, 135,000 out of 140,000 employes having stopped work. There was very little violence or intimidation, but in consequence of one riot resulting in bloodshed Governor Gobin's brigade was called out and remained on duty until the end of the strike. The presence of the troops no doubt prevented further outbreaks, although they also served to irritate the miners. The stock of coal in the markets soon became exhausted, and when shipments ceased coal had risen to $7.00 or $8.00 per ton at retail. The weather, however, continued warm, and the demand for coal for family use was greatly lessened by the use of gas for fuel. Manufactories were obliged to use bituminous coal for fuel.

On October 17, just one month after the inauguration of the strike, the great coal companies, led by the Reading Coal and Iron Company, conceded the demands of the strikers. These companies conceded a general advance of wages of ten per cent. and posted notices to that effect on October 5. The miners met in convention and agreed to terminate the strike provided a guarantee should be given that the ten per cent. advance should be continued until April next; that the sliding scale of wages should be abolished; that other grievances should be taken up for adjustment by the employers and their workmen, and that all operators should join in this settlement. The Reading Coal and Iron Company promptly posted notices granting these terms, but some of the operators held out for another ten days, and work was not resumed until October 28. The resumption became general within a few days, all the operators falling into line. The general belief is that the fixing of April next as the time for the continuance of the present rate of wages means that the miners will endeavor to have the rates of wages fixed each spring for the ensuing year, as in the bituminous coal regions.

PARTY PLATFORMS.

The important planks of the platforms of the Republican and Democratic parties, on which issues were drawn in November, 1900, were as follows:

Republican.*FOR THE GOLD STANDARD.

We renew our allegiance to the principle of the gold standard and declare our confidence in the wisdom of the legislation of the Fifty-sixth Congress by which the parity of all our money and the stability of our currency upon a gold basis has been secured. We recognize that interest rates are a potent factor in production and business activity, and for the purpose of further equalizing and of further lowering the rates of interest, we favor such monetary legislation as will enable the varying needs of the season and of all sections to be promptly met in order that trade may be evenly sustained, labor steadily employed and commerce enlarged. The volume of money in circulation was never so great per capita as it is to-day. We declare our steadfast opposition to the free and unlimited coinage of silver. No measure to that end could be considered which was without the support of the leading commercial countries of the world. However firmly Republican legislation may seem to have secured the country against the peril of base and discredited currency, the election of a Democratic President could not fail to impair the country's credit and to bring once more into question the intention of the American people to maintain upon the gold standard the parity of their money circulation. The Democratic party must be convinced that the American people will never tolerate the Chicago platform.

SHOULD RESTRAIN TRUSTS.

We recognize the necessity and propriety of the honest operation of capital to meet new business conditions and especially to extend our rapidly increasing foreign trade; but we condemn all conspiracies and combinations intended to restrict business, to create monopolies, to limit production, or to control prices, and favor such legislation as will effectively restrain and prevent all such abuses, protect and promote competition and secure the rights of producers, laborers and all who are engaged in industry and commerce.

RENEWED FAITH IN PROTECTION.

We renew our faith in the policy of Protection to American labor. In that policy our industries have been established, diversified and maintained. By protecting the home market competition has been stimulated and production cheapened. Opportunity for the inventive genius of our people has been secured, and wages in every department of labor maintained at high rates, higher now than ever before, and always distinguishing our working people in their better condition of life from those of any competing country.

RECIPROCITY.

Enjoying the blessings of the American common school, secure in the right of self-government, and protected in the occupancy of their own markets, their constantly increasing knowledge and skill have enabled them finally to enter the markets of the world. We favor the associated policy of reciprocity, so directed as to open our markets on favorable terms for what we do not ourselves produce in return for free foreign markets.

OUR DUTY TO THE PHILIPPINES.

In accepting by the treaty of Paris the just responsibility of our victories in the Spanish war the President and the Senate won the undoubted approval of the American people. No other course was possible than to destroy Spain's sovereignty throughout the Western Indies and in the Philippine Islands. That course created our responsibility before the world and with the unorganized population whom our intervention had freed from Spain, to provide for the maintenance of law and order, and for the establishment of good government, and for the performance of international obligations. Our authority could not be less than our responsibility, and wherever sovereign rights were extended it became the high duty of the Government to maintain its authority, to put down armed insurrection and to confer the blessings of liberty and civilization upon all the rescued people.

The largest measure of self-government consistent with their welfare and our duties shall be secured to them by law. To Cuba independence and self-government were assured in the same voice by which war was declared, and to the latter this pledge shall be performed.

Democratic.

We, the representatives of the Democratic party of the United States, assembled in Convention on the anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, do reaffirm our faith in that immortal proclamation of the inalienable rights of man and our allegiance to the Constitution framed in harmony therewith by the fathers of the Republic. We hold with the United States Supreme Court that the Declaration of Independence is the spirit of our government, of which the Constitution is the form and letter. We declare again that all governments instituted among men derive their just powers from the consent of the governed; that any government not based upon the consent of the governed is a tyranny; and that to impose on any people a government of force is to substitute the methods of imperialism for those of a republic. We hold that the Constitution follows the flag, and denounce the doctrine that an Executive or Congress deriving their existence and their powers from the Constitution can exercise lawful authority beyond it or in violation of it. We assert that no nation can long endure half republic and half empire, and we warn the American people that imperialism abroad will lead quickly and inevitably to despotism at home.

PORTO RICO LAW DENOUNCED.

Believing in these fundamental principles, we denounce the Porto Rico law enacted by a Republican Congress against the protest and opposition of the Democratic minority as a bold and open violation of the nation's organic law and a flagrant breach of the national good faith. It imposes upon the people of Porto Rico a government without their consent and taxation without representation. It dishonors the American people by repudiating a solemn pledge made in their behalf by the commanding General of our army, which the Porto Ricans welcomed to a peaceful and unresisted occupation of their land. It dooms to poverty and distress a people whose helplessness appeals with peculiar force to our justice and magnanimity. In this, the first act of its imperialistic programme, the Republican party seeks to commit the United States to a colonial policy, inconsistent with Republican institutions and condemned by the Supreme Court in numerous decisions.

OUR PLEDGE TO CUBA.

We demand the prompt and honest fulfillment of our pledge to the Cuban people and the world that the United States has no disposition nor intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction or control over the island of Cuba except for its pacification. The war ended nearly two years ago, profound peace reigns over all the island, and still the Administration keeps the government of the island from its people, while Republican carpet bag officials plunder its revenues and exploit the colonial theory to the disgrace of the American people.

PHILIPPINE POLICY.

We condemn and denounce the Philippine policy of the present Administration. It has involved the Republic in unnecessary war, sacrificed the lives of many of our noblest sons, and placed the United States, previously known and applauded throughout the world as the champion of freedom, in the false and un-American position of crushing, with military force, the efforts of our former allies to achieve liberty and self government. The Filipinos cannot be citizens without endangering our civilization; they cannot be subjects without imperiling our form of government, and as we are not willing to surrender our civilization or to convert the Republic into an empire, we favor an immediate declaration of the nation's purpose to give to the Filipinos first, a stable form of government; second, independence, and third, protection from outside interference, such as has been given for nearly a century to the republics of Central and South America.

The greedy commercialism which dictated the Philippine policy of the Republican Administration attempts to justify it with the plea that it will pay, but even this sordid and unworthy plea tails when brought to the test of facts. The war of criminal aggression against the Filipinos, entailing an annual expense of many millions, has already cost more than any possible profit that could accrue from the entire Philippine trade for years to come. Furthermore, when trade is extended at the expense of liberty, the price is always too high.

TERRITORIAL EXPANSION.

We are not opposed to territorial expansion when it takes in desirable territory which can be erected into States in the Union and whose people are willing and fit to become American citizens. We favor expansion by every peaceful and legitimate means. But we are unalterably opposed to the seizing or purchasing of distant islands to be governed outside the Constitution and whose people can never become citizens.

We are in favor of extending the Republic's influence among the nations, but believe that influence should be extended, not by force and violence, but through the persuasive power of a high and honorable example.

THE PARAMOUNT ISSUE.

The importance of other questions now pending before the American people is in nowise diminished, and the Democratic party takes no backward step from its position on them; but the burning issue of imperialism, growing out of the Spanish war, involves the very existence of the Republic and the destruction of our free institutions. We regard it as the paramount issue of the campaign.

The declaration in the Republican platform adopted at the Philadelphia Convention, held in June, 1900, that the Republican party "steadfastly adheres to the policy announced in the Monroe Doctrine," is manifestly insincere and deceptive. This profession is contradicted by the avowed policy of that party in opposition to the spirit of the Monroe Doctrine to acquire and hold sovereignty over large areas of territory and large numbers of people in the Eastern Hemisphere. We insist on the strict maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine, and in all its integrity, both in letter and in spirit, as necessary to prevent the extension of European authority on this continent and an essential to our supremacy in American affairs. At the same time we declare that no American people shall ever be held by force in unwilling subjection to European authority.

MILITARISM.

We oppose militarism. It means conquest abroad and intimidation and oppression at home. It means the strong arm, which has ever been fatal to free institutions. It is what millions of our citizens have fled from in Europe. It will impose upon our peace-loving people a large standing army, an unnecessary burden of taxation and a constant menace to their liberties. A small standing army and a well-disciplined State militia are amply sufficient in time of peace. This Republic has no place for a vast military service and conscription. When the nation is in danger the volunteer soldier is his country's best defender. The National Guard of the United States should ever be cherished in the patriotic hearts of a free people. Such organizations are ever an element of strength and safety. For the first time in our history and coeval with the Philippine conquest has there been a wholesale departure from our time-honored and approved system of volunteer organization. We denounce it as un-American, un-democratic and un-republican, and as a subversion of the ancient and fixed principles of a free people.

PRIVATE MONOPOLIES AND TRUSTS.

Private monopolies are indefensible and intolerable. They destroy competition, control the price of all material and of the finished product, thus robbing both producer and consumer.

We pledge the Democratic party to an unceasing warfare in nation, State and city against private monopoly in every form. Existing laws against Trusts must be enforced, and more stringent ones must be enacted, providing for publicity as to the affairs of corporations engaged in interstate commerce, and requiring all corporations to show, before doing business outside of the State of their origin, that they have no water in their stock, and that they have not attempted and are not attempting to monopolize any branch of business or the production of any articles of merchandise, and the whole constitutional power of Congress over interstate commerce, the mails and all modes of interstate communication shall be exercised by the enactment of comprehensive laws upon the subject of Trusts. Tariff laws should be amended by putting the products of Trusts upon the free list, to prevent monopoly under the plea of protection.

The failure of the present Republican Administration, with an absolute control over all the branches of the National Government, to enact any legislation designing to prevent or even curtail the absorbing power of Trusts and illegal combinations, or to enforce the anti-Trust laws already on the statute books, prove the insincerity of the high-sounding phrases of the Republican platform.

Corporations should be protected in all their rights, and their legitimate interests should be respected; but any attempt by corporations to interfere with the public affairs of the people, or to control the sovereignty which creates them, should be forbidden under such penalties as will make such attempts impossible.

THE TARIFF.

We condemn the Dingley Tariff law as a Trust-breeding measure, skillfully devised to give the few favors which they do not deserve and to place upon the many burdens which they should not bear.

We favor such an enlargement of the scope of the Interstate Commerce law as will enable the Commission to protect individuals and communities from discriminations and the public from unjust and unfair transportation rates.

FREE COINAGE AT 16 TO 1.

We reaffirm and endorse the principles of the National Democratic platform adopted at Chicago in 1896, and we reiterate the demand of that platform for an American financial system made by the American people for themselves, which shall restore and maintain a bimetallic price level, and as part of such system the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation.

CURRENCY BILL CONDEMNED.

We denounce the Currency bill enacted at the last session of Congress as a step forward in the Republican policy, which aims to discredit the sovereign right of the National Government to issue all money, whether coin or paper, and to bestow upon national banks the power to issue and control the volume of paper money for their own benefit. A permanent national bank currency, secured by the Government bonds, must have a permanent debt to rest upon, and if the bank currency is to increase with population and business the debt must also increase. The Republican currency scheme is, therefore, a scheme for fastening upon the taxpayers a perpetual and growing debt for the benefit of the banks. We are opposed to this private corporation paper circulated as money, but without legal tender qualities, and demand the retirement of the national bank notes as fast as Government paper and silver certificates can be substituted for them.

CUBAN CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

The Cuban Constitutional Convention met in the Marti Theatre, Havana, Nov. 5, 1900, many thousands of spectators being present.

General Wood and his staff, accompanied by General Fitzhugh Lee and his staff, received an ovation on entering, the band playing "America."

Senor Cisneros and General Rivera escorted General Wood to the platform, and he almost immediately opened the Convention.

"As Military Governor of the Island of Cuba, and representing the President of the United States," he said, "I call this Convention to order. It will be your duty first of all to frame and adopt a Constitution for Cuba, and, when that has been done, to formulate what, in your opinion, ought to be the relations between Cuba and the United States.

"The Constitution must be adequate to secure stable, orderly and free government. When you have formulated the relations which, in your opinion, ought to exist between Cuba and the United States, the Government of the United States will doubtless take such action on its part as shall lead to a final and authoritative agreement between the people of the two countries to the promotion of their common interests.

"All friends of Cuba will follow your deliberations with the deepest interest, earnestly desiring that you shall reach just conclusions, and that by the dignity, individual self-restraint and wise conservatism which shall characterize your proceedings the capacity of the Cuban people for representative government may be signally illustrated.

"The fundamental distinction between true representative government and a dictatorship is that in the former every representative of the people, in whatever office, confines himself strictly within the limits of his defined powers. Without such restraint there cannot be free constitutional government. Under the order pursuant to which you have been elected and convened you have no duty and no authority to take part in the present government of the island. Your powers are strictly limited by the terms of that order."

ORGANIZATION OF THE CONVENTION.

Before withdrawing General Wood wished the delegates a speedy and successful conclusion of their work. He said that Chief Justice Perez would administer the form of oath which the delegates might select, and he concluded by appointing Senor Figueroa, Under Secretary of State and Government, as temporary Chairman.

The Convention organized with Senor Llorente, Justice of the Supreme Court, as President, and Senor Villuendo as Secretary. The following oath was then administered:

"We, delegates elected by the people of Cuba to the National Constitutional Convention, swear faithfully to fulfill the duties of our office. We publicly and solemnly renounce allegiance to or compact made with any State or nation, whether made directly or indirectly, swearing to the sovereignty of the free and independent people of Cuba and swearing to respect the solution this convention may adopt, as well as the government established by the Constitution."

All of the thirty-one delegates were present.

LOCAL CHRONOLOGY.

[From December 1, 1899, to November 30, 1900.]

1899.—December 2. The National Export Exposition, which was closed at midnight, had 1,500,000 visitors during its continuance, and the gate receipts exceeded $300,000.

December 4. The Board of Judges appointed James Pollock as a member of the Fairmount Park Commission to succeed the late James McManes and Dr. H. A. P. Neel a member of the Board of Education from the New Forty-first Section.

— Joseph Wetzel was sentenced to three years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $300, having been convicted of illegal voting in the Thirty-third division of the Nineteenth ward at the election held in November, 1898.

December 5. Kate Harris, aged 32 years, was stabbed in the thigh and hand at Franklin and Wood streets, it is alleged, by Edward Kane, who then ran to Sixth and Wood streets and stabbed Mary Moore, aged 40 years, in the side and abdomen, inflicting a dangerous wound. Kane was captured after a chase. It is said that neither woman ever saw Kane before the attack.

December 7. P. A. B. Widener has purchased thirty-six acres of land, fronting on Old York road, near Logan Station, on which he intends to establish the Widener Industrial Home for Crippled Children. Mr. Widener expects to spend $2,000,000 in improving the property and endowing the institution. An ordinance was introduced in City Councils, and subsequently passed, to strike from the city plan streets which would intersect the tract.

December 11. George C. Seiple, formerly receiving teller of the Stroudsburg National Bank, pleaded guilty to the charge of making false entries in the books, and was sentenced by Judge McPherson to five years' imprisonment.

December 13. The Superior Court being equally divided on the question, the order of the Allegheny County Court granting twelve licenses to the Pittsburg Brewing Company was affirmed. The Pittsburg Company, it is said, absorbed thirteen of the fifteen breweries in that city, and the remonstrant contended the Court had no power to grant licenses to any person or firm having an interest in more than one brewery. It was on this point the judges differed.

— The Federal Grand Jury found two true bills of indictment against Henry J. Fairbanks and Thomas O'Dea, charging them with corruptly endeavoring to influence George Gerhart and Charles Hollar, jurors in the Ingham-Newitt trial, and with conspiracy to corrupt the petit jury.

December 14. Mayor Ashbridge, in a letter to the President of the Trades League relative to the abolition of the Public Buildings Commission, said he had consulted members of the Commission and believed an amicable arrangement would be arrived at so that he would be able to present to Councils a solution of the whole question. This adjustment, the Mayor says, will contemplate the voluntary retirement of the Commission before the close of 1901.

— For lack of a single vote Common Council failed to pass the bill which Select Council passed to deprive the Board of Education of its power to purchase school sites.

— Select Council referred to the Finance Committee a petition said to contain the signatures of nearly 100,000 citizens praying for shorter hours for firemen. The bill authorizing the sale of the gas works property at Twenty-third and Market streets and the site of the Lehigh avenue reservoir was passed.

— Councils' Finance Committee recommends increase in salaries of a number of clerks and officials and appropriations of more than $500,000 for school improvements, including the completion and furnishing of the Boys' High School and annex.

— Another conference of the Executive Committee of the anti-Quay Republicans was held and plans for electing members of the next Legislature were discussed.

December 17. Horace Hopkins, colored, 34 years old, was shot and instantly killed by Thomas Grobes, also colored. The police say that the bullet was intended for George Carpenter, colored. Grobes was arrested.

December 19. A transfer of $111,142 from the Public Buildings appropriation for 1900 to the Bureau of City Property, to pay the wages of about 130 elevator men, watchmen, cleaners, etc., who are to be transferred to the Bureau, was recommended by the Councils' Finance Committee and consented to by the Commission.

December 20. At the formal opening of the Free Museum of Science and Art and the unveiling of the statue of Dr. William Pepper addresses were made by former United States Senator Edmunds, Provost Harrison, Daniel Baugh and Clarence H. Clark. It was announced that Mrs. Frances Sergeant Pepper had given $50,000 as an endowment of the hall named in honor of her husband; that a mosaic pavement from ancient Carthage had been received from Mrs. Dillwyn Parrish, of London, who also gave an endowment and maintenance and increase of the collection, which is to be known as the Dillwyn Parrish Collection.

December 25. The Salvation Army furnished Christmas dinners to 8000 poor persons.

December 26. By order of Judge Finletter the ballot-box used in the Twelfth division of the Fifth ward was opened in court and its contents examined. Among the facts learned were that the election officers had not been sworn, and that while Creasy, Democratic nominee for State Treasurer, was credited with 4 votes, Thomas J. Ryan, Democratic candidate for City Commissioner, was given 169 votes.

— Police Lieutenant Thomas Hampson, of the Tenth and Thompson streets station, was dismissed from the force by the Director of Public Safety, the Police Board of Inquiry having found him guilty of the charge of neglect of duty.

December 27. Director Haddock, Acting Chief Hand, of the Water Bureau; Chief Engineer Webster and Assistant Engineer Wagner, of the Bureau of Surveys, discussed with Councils' Committee on Water projected plans for the improvement of the water supply, and three ordinances, approved by the Department of Public Works, were favorably acted upon.

December 29. It was learned that the recently announced gift of $250,000 to the University of Pennsylvania was from the estate of H. H. Houston, who shortly before he died contributed a like sum to the same institution.

December 30. In the case of the Government against the Alexis Club, Judge McPherson, in the United States District Court, decided that social clubs must pay the internal revenue tax of $25 if they propose selling liquor to their own members.

1900.—January 1. The term of Chief Justice Sterrett, of the Supreme Court, having expired, Justice Green becomes Chief Justice.

January 2. Judge Arnold issued a decree, restoring to membership in a beneficial organization a man who had been expelled because, while drawing sick benefits, he was obliged to serve on a jury. The Court decided that jury service is not work in the general meaning of the latter word.

— Samuel Johnson, colored, who was serving a life sentence in the Eastern Penitentiary for the murder of John Sharpless, was found dead in his cell.

— Plans for the modification of street plans, so as to interfere as little as possible with land near Logan Station, purchased by P. A. B. Widener for an industrial home for crippled children, were approved by the Board of Surveyors.

January 4. Sixteen true bills of indictment were returned by the Grand Jury against Deputy Coroner Samuel Salter and eight others accused of frauds in the Thirteenth division of the Seventh ward at the November election.

— George McCurdy, of the Tenth ward, was elected President of Common Council. Among the bills introduced were one to authorize a loan of $12,000,000 for the improvement of the water supply.

January 5. John Kennedy was sentenced to eighteen years and Albert Kelly and John H. Daily to seventeen years' imprisonment, all three having pleaded guilty to the charge of murder of the second degree in killing Thomas W. Ashworth last July.

January 6. The members of the local Bar presented to the Supreme Court a portrait of former Chief Justice Sterrett, who retired from the Bench on December 30.

January 8. Samuel Salter, Joseph G. Rodgers, William Cook, Harry McCabe, Clarence Meeser, James T. Sheehan, John Silberman, John Scullin and John Hanna did not appear in court to plead to indictments charging them with frauds in the Thirteenth division of the Seventh ward at the election held last November, and Judge Bregy declared their bail forfeited and issued bench warrants for their arrest. Coroner Dugan received from Salter a letter tendering his resignation as Deputy Coroner, which was accepted.

— A sub-committee of Councils' Electrical Committee unanimously agreed to report negatively the bill to grant privileges to the Kensington Electric Company, which promised to do city lighting at twenty cents a lamp per night.

— At the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Philadelphia Commercial Museums, Justus C. Strawbridge was elected President, Charles F. Warwick Vice-President, Daniel Baugh Treasurer and Benjamin W. Hanna Secretary.

January 9. Sixty delegates from this city and various towns in the State were present at the opening of the first annual convention of the American Catholic Union.

— The dye works of Meinhardt's Sons, Westmoreland and Emerald streets, were damaged by fire to the amount of about $15,000; fully insured.

January 11. Both branches of Councils passed three bills which give authority to the Mayor to execute the plans of the experts for the improvement and extension of the water supply. Select Council struck out the amendment, inserted by the Water Committee, requiring that plans for filtration should be approved before contracts were awarded.

— Robert W. Brown was hanged in Moyamensing Prison for the murder of his wife.

January 13. A check for $25,000 was given to Senator Hanna, Chairman of the National Republican Committee, on account of the $100,000 pledged by the Citizens' Association when it was determined to hold the National Convention in this city.

— Judge Ashman presided at a very large meeting of citizens in sympathy with the Boers. Other speakers were Dr. Robert Ellis Thompson, Dr. C. J. Hexamer, Rudolph Blankenburg, John M. Vanderslice, Rev. Gerald P. Coghlan and Michael J. Ryan.

January 15. A complimentary dinner was given at the University Club to the Citizens' Committee, the city and railroad officials who planned and executed the Reading subway. Speeches were made by Clinton Rogers Woodruff, ex-Mayors Stuart and Warwick, ex-Chief Justice Paxson, Samuel Dickson, Professor Edwin J. Houston and Clarence L. Harper.

— Suit was begun by the District Attorney against the bondsmen for ex-Deputy Coroner Salter and five other alleged fugitives from justice, charged with election frauds in the Thirteenth division of the Seventh ward, to recover on the bail bonds declared forfeited by the Court.

January 18. A bill was introduced in Select Council to repeal the ordinances granting privileges to the Mutual Automatic and Standard Telephone and Telegraph Companies.

— Major General Nelson A. Miles was a guest of the Clover Club at its annual dinner.

— W. W. Foulkrod was re-elected President of the Trades League.

— Dr. C. J. Hexamer was elected President of the German Society, at its annual meeting, to succeed General Louis Wagner, who had declined renomination.

— By the explosion of a stick of dynamite, which they had placed in a drill hole in a quarry at the Falls of Schuylkill, Patrick McCormick, aged 50 years, and James Perlott, aged 35 years, had their right hands torn off and their eyes dangerously burned.

— James Thompson, aged 22 years, was hurled a distance of twenty feet and badly injured by an explosion of chemicals, or fine dust, which also blew out a wall of Robert C. Simister's mill, Falls of Schuylkill.

January 19. Brown & Hunt's hosiery mill, at Hazzard and Sepviva streets, was damaged by fire to the extent of $25,000.

January 20. Professor Edgar Marburg was elected President at the annual meeting of the Engineers' Club.

January 23. Wu Ting-Fang, Chinese Minister to the United States, was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Presbyterian Social Union, and made an address in which he protested against the operation of the Chinese Exclusion law, and made a plea that his countrymen be treated as are other immigrants.

— In the United States Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Gray affirmed the decision of the Circuit Court of this district, which was to the effect that the widow of John S. Hopkins, former Cashier of the People's Bank, could not recover on a $10,000 policy of life insurance held by him, because he committed suicide.

January 24. Michael Hulihan, aged 34 years, and Samuel Ganoski, aged 46 years, were scalded by the blowing out of a boiler tube in the Baldwin Locomotive Works. Hulihan died soon afterward.

— Diamonds valued at about $6000 were stolen from a safe in the office of Joseph K. Davison & Son, manufacturing jewelers, 718 Sansom street. The safe bore no evidence of having been forcibly opened.

— May Bibighaus, aged 19 years, died in the Hahnemann Hospital shortly after having been removed from a house on Vine street, near Eleventh, in which she had smoked opium until she became unconscious. Six men found in the house were taken into custody.

January 25. At the one-hundred-and-thirteenth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Prison Society Caleb J. Milne was re-elected President.

— On petition of counsel for the bondsmen for ex-Deputy Coroner Salter and the other fugitives from justice under indictment for election frauds in the Thirteenth division of the Seventh ward, Judge Bregy granted a rule to show cause why the forfeiture of bail should not be remitted.

— In the case of May Bibighaus, aged 19 years, the Coroner's jury found that she "came to her death from the effects of opium administered at the hands of Hugh Kennedy, as principal, and Harry Parker, Frank Reynolds, Frank Gregg and James Grey as accessories." All five men were sent to prison to await the action of the Grand Jury. It was testified that opium may readily be purchased in "dozens of places in Chinatown."

January 26. Fire destroyed the main building of the Angora Manufacturing Company's mills, Sixtieth street and Baltimore avenue. Fourteen operatives, thirteen being girls, were injured in escaping from the flames, some by dropping from windows to outstretched overcoats, held by two trolley-car motormen, two conductors and two other men, and some by going upon the roof, from which they were taken by firemen. The loss was estimated at $150,000; insurance, $125,000.

January 27. Kate Hill, aged 32 years, was instantly killed by falling headlong against the front door of her home, having stumbled while carrying coal.

— William Schwartzkopf, 26 years old, was killed by a fall downstairs at his home.

January 29. Seven houses in Chinatown, reputed to be opium joints, were raided by the police, who took into custody four white women, one white man and thirty-nine Chinamen, and seized a great quantity of opium, pipes, lamps and other material used by smokers, together with an outfit for playing fan tan. One woman was sent to the House of Correction, and the men were sent to jail in default of bail to answer charges of keeping opium dens, keeping a gambling house or of smoking opium.

— Professor Charles L. Doolittle, the astronomer, had his collar bone broken and was otherwise injured by falling from a trolley car.

— While unloading Spanish cartridges at the Frankford Arsenal, William Stafford, 31 years old, and Peter Drexler, aged 55 years, received injuries which may prove fatal by the explosion of powder.

— William P. Ford, a brakeman in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, was held to answer the charge of entering a railway mail car and stealing a decoy letter containing money.

January 30. Charles Dunwoody was elected President of the Commercial Exchange.

January 31. An appeal was taken from this decision to the Secretary of the Treasury who decided in their favor.

— James E. Kittson, a former well known turfman and breeder of fast horses, committed suicide by shooting at the home of his brother, on Bethlehem pike, near Fort Washington. He was the son of the late "Commodore" Norman W. Kittson, owner of the famous stock farm, "Erdenheim."

November 17. Henry Ivory and Charles Perry, who were convicted of the murder of Roy Wilson White, were sentenced to death by Judge Arnold after new trials had been refused them.

— Judge Sulzberger entered judgment for the Commonwealth in the suit brought upon the forfeited bail bonds of former Deputy Coroner Salter and his associates in the Seventh Ward election fraud cases.

— Ex-Councilman Robert T. Smith, after a series of rapid promotions over the heads of men who had given years of good service, was made lieutenant of the Moyamensing avenue police station.

November 19. Four persons convicted of keeping "speak-easies" were sentenced by Judge Finletter, three to eighteen months' imprisonment and a fine of $1000 each, and the other to six months' imprisonment and a fine of $500.

November 20. Nearly 10,000 members of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor have registered at the headquarters of the fourteenth annual Convention of the Pennsylvania Christian Endeavor Union. The Convention opened with meetings in the Baptist Temple and Second Regiment Armory, at which addresses of welcome were delivered and the State officers made their annual reports.

— Magistrate Cunningham was notified by the Mayor of his appointment as a consulting Magistrate in the City Hall Police Court, to succeed Magistrate South. The Mayor declined to state his reasons for making the change, but they are generally understood to be purely political, South being a follower of Senator David Martin and Cunningham a henchman of Select Councilman McNichol.

— Peter A. Fitzpatrick, proprietor of a "speak-easy" known as the "Army and Navy Club," was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1000 by Judge Finletter, who also imposed a sentence of one year in prison and a fine of $1000 on John McComb, who had pleaded guilty to the charge of illegal liquor selling.

— Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese Minister, as the guest of Clinton Rogers Woodruff, inspected points of interest along the Delaware from a tugboat, and later visited several large industrial establishments. He addressed the American Academy of Political and Social Science on "The Causes of the Unpopularity of Foreigners in China." Other speakers were ex-Minister to China George F. Seward and Rev. W. A. P. Martin.

— Lieutenant Harry Wolf, of the Park and Lehigh avenues police station, who refused to appear before a police court of inquiry to answer charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, neglect of duty, intoxication and inefficiency, was discharged from the service by the Director of Public Safety.

— Harold McCormick, aged 2 years, was accidentally shot and killed by his mother with a pistol which Harold and a younger brother had found in an upper room. Mrs. McCormick, unaware that the pistol contained a cartridge, was amusing the children by exploding caps with the weapon.

— The Federal Grand Jury ignored bills of indictment charging the Reading Railway Company and former General Superintendent Sweigard with discriminating against certain employees because of their affiliation with the Brotherhood of Trainmen.

November 21. Secretary Gibboney, of the Law and Order Society, denounces as an attempt to villify and intimidate him the arrest of a New York detective, on the charge of conspiracy in offering to vote illegally in this city, and to procure others to do so, at the recent election. Mr. Gibboney says the instructions given the detective were perfectly proper. The detective was subsequently discharged on habeas corpus proceedings.

— Annie Waer, convicted before Judge Finletter of keeping a "speak-easy," was sentenced to imprisonment for eighteen months, and to pay a fine of $1000, and Michael Moloney, convicted of a like offence, was sent to prison for six months, his fine being made $500.

November 22. While trimming an arc lamp in the Pencoyd Iron Works, Samuel W. Levins, aged 20 years, was fatally shocked by the electric light current.

— George Woods, who disappeared about a year ago, after having been held in bail to answer the charge of padding the list in the Second Division of the Seventh Ward, of which he was assessor, was surrendered by his bondsman, Samuel Maloney, and obliged to furnish another surety.

— Abraham Raisen, colored, was convicted of the illegal sale of liquor in the rooms of the "Henry C. Dunlap Political Club of the Thirteenth Ward," a chartered organization of which he was a member. Before sentencing him to two years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1000, Judge Finletter declared his purpose to investigate resorts of like character and have their charters revoked. Judge Finletter also expressed his disapproval of pleas for leniency for women convicted of keeping "speak-easies."

— John Briscoe and Walter Briscoe, alias Robert Briscoe, both colored, were held by Magistrate Eisenbrown on the charges of assault and battery with intent to kill and conspiracy to kill Patrick McBride, judge, and other election officers of the Fourteenth Division, Fourth Ward, and interfering with the election officers. Police Sergeant William Morrow was also held on the charges of assault and battery, false arrest and interfering with an election officer.

— The New York Shipbuilding Company, of Camden, has contracts for building four vessels for the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company and one for Robert Dollard, a lumber merchant of San Francisco.

November 23. The Real Estate Investment Company announced a temporary suspension of business after the Board of Directors had determined to make a voluntary assignment to John J. Ridgway, the President of the concern. The cause of the embarrassment was stated to be the Company's inability to realize at a profit on its real estate holdings, valued at nearly $300,000, because of the sluggish condition of the market. The liabilities are placed at $110,000.

November 24. Founders' Day was celebrated by the Union League at a dinner that was attended by President McKinley and nearly all the members of his Cabinet and Vice-President-elect Roosevelt. Speeches were made by the President, Governor Roosevelt, United States Senators Wolcott and Lodge, Postmaster General Smith, and President Darlington, of the Union League, who presided. The Presidential party was escorted by the First City Troop. A reception was given the President at the residence of Mr. E. T. Stotesbury.

November 27. Congressman McAleer, who will contest the election of Henry Burk, expects to show that the majority returned for his opponent is fraudulent. John R. Lloyd, fusion candidate for Senator in the Second District, and John H. Fow, Democratic nominee for State Representative from the Seventeenth District, will also begin contests.

— Henry, alias "Kid," Henderson, who was in prison awaiting trial for the theft of a trayful of rings from a store in Ninth street, above Market, last July, having been arrested in Indianapolis in September on the positive identification of a salesman, was released by order of Judge Finletter. Detectives have taken into custody James A. Barrington, alias "Jack Carny," who bears a striking facial resemblance to Henderson, and who has confessed the robbery.

— Louis Genastasio, convicted of keeping a "speak-easy," was sentenced by Judge Finletter to imprisonment for two years and to pay a fine of $1000. The bail bonds of fifteen persons accused of selling liquor illegally and who failed to appear for trial were ordered forfeited.

— E. P. Percival's jewelry store and residence, 221 North Eighth street, were destroyed by fire. He estimates the loss at $35,000, which is partly covered by insurance.

November 28. When bids were opened for lighting Fairmount Park, it was found that in each instance the same price, $9.25 per month per light, was asked. Notwithstanding the protest of Common Councilman Wilson H. Brown, who charged collusion among the bidders in fixing the rates, the contracts were awarded.

— Lewis Spealer, aged 75 years, was struck and killed by a train at Ninth and Girard avenue. An unknown man, who made a desperate attempt to save him, narrowly escaped a like fate.

— William Rhodes, a real estate broker and builder, was arrested in New York city on a charge of being a fugitive from justice wanted in Philadelphia to answer a charge of obtaining by false pretences $5000 from Mrs. M. H. Rand. Rhodes disappeared from this city in November, 1898.

November 29. The University of Pennsylvania foot-ball team closed its season by defeating Cornell by a score of 27 to 0.

November 30. Frederick T. Clark, a conveyancer, notary public and real estate agent, was committed under $10,000 bail by Magistrate Kochersperger to answer the charges of forgery and the embezzlement of upward of $11,000, the property of John S. Marks and his mother, Martha Marks. It was charged that Clark had given them forged mortgages and ground rent deeds as security for the money they handed him for investment. The signatures of several Recorders of Deeds were also alleged to have been forged to the papers.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION.

The Fifty-sixth Congress held its first session December 4. Both branches adjourned as a mark of respect to the memory of Vice-President Hobart. Debate on the Republican Currency bill was begun in the House within a week. The bill was passed December 18 by a vote of 190 to 150, 11 Democrats voting with the Republicans. On February 15 the Senate passed its substitute, amended in favor of international bimetalism and to provide for national banks with $25,000 capital in towns of not more than 4000 inhabitants. The bill was sent to conference and was finally adopted on March 13. It definitely establishes the gold standard. There was much discussion of the relations of the United States to its island possessions, and bills were passed providing forms of government for Hawaii and Porto Rico. The latter bill imposed 15 per cent. of the American duties upon the products of Porto Rico, and was resisted on principle by those who held that the island had become a part of the United States and was entitled to free trade. The bill provided, however, that the revenue should be employed to pay the expenses of government in Porto Rico; that the duties should be imposed for only two years, and for a less time if the other revenues of the island should be sufficient to meet expenses. The Nicaragua Canal bill was passed by the House but did not reach a vote in the Senate. The House also passed a bill by almost unanimous vote recommending a constitutional amendment for the election of United States Senators by popular vote. It was not acted on by the Senate.

The House refused to admit to membership and then expel Brigham H. Roberts, member from Utah, because of his polygamist practices, but excluded him by a vote of 268 to 50.

The Senate refused by a vote of 33 to 32 to admit M. S. Quay on appointment from the Governor of Pennsylvania, and was about to exclude Senator Clark, of Montana, when the latter resigned his seat.

The Senate ratified various treaties, the more important being the Samoan treaty, the Hague peace treaty, and the Argentine extradition treaty. The Hay-Pauncefote treaty relating to the Nicaragua Canal, which is held to revive the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, was debated in the Senate but laid over. Both Houses adjourned on June 7.

Several important measures besides the Nicaragua Canal bill failed to pass. The Shipping bill which provides a heavy subsidy for shipbuilders, was allowed to go over until the next session on account of the approaching political campaign; the Pacific Cable bill failed because of a disagreement between the two Houses, although both favored the laying of a cable, and the Army Reorganization bill was halted in the House for purely personal reasons. All of these bills it is expected will be passed during the second session.

In 1896 Bryan was on two tickets, but the vote above given represents the combined vote of Democrats and Middle-of-the-Road Populists. The Prohibition vote in 1896 was 132,007; the Socialist vote, 36,274. In 1900 Bryan received fewer votes than in 1896. McKinley's plurality was the largest given since the organization of the Republican party. Returns for the electors of the minor parties are incomplete. As far as recorded Debs, Social Democrat, received 97,426; Barker, Populist, 46,081; Malloney, Socialist Labor, 36,372.

ELECTIONS IN 1901.

In 1901 general elections will be held in Philadelphia as follows :

For city and ward officers on Tuesday, February 19th. To be chosen: Receiver of Taxes, Magistrates, members of Select and Common Councils, School Directors and Constables.

Last day for payment of taxes, January 19th.

Last day for naturalization, January 19th.

For State and county officers on Tuesday, November 5th. To be chosen: Justice of the Supreme Court, State Treasurer, District Attorney, Recorder of Deeds, Controller and Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions.

Last day for payment of taxes, October 5th.

Last day for naturalization, October 5th.

QUALIFICATIONS OF ELECTORS.

Residence.—A voter must have resided in the State one year, and in the election district or division for at least two months, before the election. Where a citizen previously a resident has removed and returned, he must have resided in the State six months before the election.

Taxes.—No citizen can vote who is over twenty-two years old without having previously paid a State and county tax within two years, assessed at least two months before the election, and paid, at the latest, one month before the election.

Age.—Every male citizen between twenty-one and twenty-two years of age, having the proper qualifications of residence, native birth, or claiming the naturalization of his father during his minority, may vote without being assessed.

Naturalized citizens may vote if they have the qualifications of residence in the State and district and payment of taxes, and have been naturalized one month before the election.

Proof of Right to Vote.—If the name is not on the registry of voters, the person claiming must make affidavit of his claims, and prove his right by at least one qualified voter of the district or division. Proof of payment of taxes is made by producing the tax-receipt or by affidavit that it has been lost, destroyed or never received. A naturalized citizen must produce his naturalization papers, unless he has been for five consecutive years a voter in the district.

IN THE PHILIPPINES.

In the spring of 1900 opposition to American rule in the Philippines by organized armies was overcome, but the Tagalos continued a guerrilla warfare which entailed considerable losses to the Americans. They were especially active prior to the Presidential election, but after the re-election of President McKinley large bands surrendered. Aguinaldo disappeared with the collapse of the army, and there were many unconfirmed rumors of his death. At the close of 1900, a commission was at work establishing civil government in the island, and although a considerable force of troops was required to maintain order, there was no organized enemy against which military operations could be carried on. The government of the Philippines was referred to Congress by the President under the terms of the Paris treaty.

The only city in the United States having more than 1,000,000 population in 1880 was New York. In 1890 Chicago and Philadelphia barely managed to creep into the 1,000,000 class, the former with an excess of 99,000 and the latter with 47,000. This year Brooklyn is admitted. Twenty years ago the only cities having more than 500,000 population were Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn, and in 1890 no others were added to that class. This year St. Louis, Boston and Baltimore are admitted.

In 1880 and also in 1890 the only cities in the 300,000 class were St. Louis, Baltimore and Boston. By the present census all three of them have been promoted to the 500,000 class, and five new candidates have been admitted to the 300,000 class—Cleveland, Buffalo, San Francisco, Cincinnati and Pittsburg.

Twenty years ago only twenty cities in the United States had more than 100,000 population, as follows :

New York.	Cleveland.	Jersey City.
Chicago.	Washington.	Newark.
Brooklyn.	Cincinnati.	New Orleans.
Philadelphia.	Louisville.	San Francisco.
St. Louis.	Milwaukee.	Detroit.
Boston.	Buffalo.	Pittsburg.
Baltimore.	Providence.

The census of 1890 added Minneapolis, St. Paul, Indianapolis, Rochester, Omaha, Allegheny, Kansas City and Denver to the list, and the present census adds Toledo, Columbus, Worcester, Syracuse, New Haven, Paterson, Fall River, St. Joseph, Los Angeles and Scranton.

THE CHINESE IMBROGLIO.

Trouble in China had been brewing for a long time before it manifested itself in the murder of missionaries. The Dowager Empress, who was opposed to foreigners and to all reform movements, gathered about her a strong court party, and suppressed or controlled the Emperor, who was disposed to be liberal. On January 25 the Emperor, at the dictation of the Empress Dowager, nominated as his successor a boy of nine, son of Prince Tuan. The next day the Empress dismissed Lung Lee, chief of the Chinese forces, on account of his opposition to the coup d'état by which she had resumed the reins of government. On February 1 a joint note was sent to the Chinese Government by the American, British, Italian, French and German Ministers, at Peking, demanding protection for all missionaries in China. On April 7 these Ministers united in a demand for the suppression of the Boxers, an anti-foreign society which had begun to commit outrages. On May 22 the Chinese authorities sent troops ostensibly to put down the Boxer movement, but the soldiers fraternized with the mob and were apparently encouraged to do so by the imperial authorities. On May 30 the allies ordered troops to Peking to guard the legations, and on June 17 the Taku forts, at the mouth of the Peiho River, fired upon foreign warships, which thereupon bombarded the forts and compelled their surrender. A long period of doubt and suspense followed.

Toward the end of May all the Powers began sending troops to China. On May 29 Admiral Kempff sent 100 American marines and sailors from Taku to Tien-tsin, these being the first Caucasian troops to arrive. On June 10 Vice-Admiral Sir Edward Seymour started for the relief of Peking with a column consisting of about 2000 sailors and marines from the ships of the allies. Nothing was heard from him for many days. He was unable to advance and ultimately retreated to Tien-tsin under cover of a relief expedition. On June 16 the murder of Baron Von Ketteler, the German Minister to Peking, was reported, and soon afterward all communication with the Chinese capital was cut off. For more than a month the whole world was disquieted by rumors of massacres that turned out to be greatly exaggerated, although it was a fact that the buildings of all the foreign legations at Peking, except the British, were destroyed by the Boxers, and the foreign Ministers, their families and retainers, were besieged in the British reservation and frequently bombarded. They held out until rescued by the allied troops; but the latter were greatly delayed while awaiting the arrival of a sufficient force. Brig.-Gen. Adna R. Chaffee was ordered to China to command the American forces there, which numbered more than 11,000 by the middle of July. The Chinese troops, instead of co-operating with the allies, fraternized with the Boxers and prepared to resist the advance of the foreigners. Several battles occurred in and about Tien-tsin, but all the forts were captured by the allied troops on July 14. The Americans lost 215 killed and wounded.

On August 2 the Peking relief column, 16,000 strong, started for Tien-tsin. After a battle at Peitsang, in which the Chinese were defeated and the allies lost about 1200 men, little resistance was offered to the advance. August 10 the allies agreed to the appointment of Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee (German) as commander of the allied forces, but he did not arrive in China until long after the relief of Peking, which occurred on August 14. The legations were found safe, though they had been besieged and had suffered severe losses.

On Sept. 4 Li Hung Chang, Yung Lu and Han Tung were appointed peace commissioners on the part of China. Thereafter there were no warlike moves on the part of China, but the allies sent out various expeditions against the Boxers.

The Chinese Government, keeping at a distance from Peking, tried to conciliate the Powers by degrading Prince Tuan and other officials, but the Powers insisted upon more severe punishment.

THE WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The beginning of the war in South Africa was described in the LEDGER ALMANAC for 1900. The disasters to the British arms continued for some months. General Gatacre was badly beaten at Stormberg Natal, on December 10; General Methuen suffered severe losses at Magersfontein on December 11, and General Buller was repulsed at the Tugela River, December 15, with heavy losses. As a result of these disasters, Lord Roberts was sent to South Africa with General Kitchener as chief of staff, and an army of over 200,000 men was organized. Before his arrival General Buller again advanced to the relief of Ladysmith and again suffered a costly repulse at Spion Kop, which had been captured but could not be held. A third attempt to relieve Ladysmith failed. In February, Lord Roberts had assembled three armies, each superior in numbers to the entire Boer force, and then began a systematic campaign. He was in personal command of the forces opposed to Cronje, and forced the latter to capitulate with 4000 troops. The result of his operations was the relief of Ladysmith, Kimberley, and Mafeking, and the occupation of Bloemfontein, the capital of the Orange Free State. The death of General Joubert was reported on March 27, and thereafter the Boer opposition seemed to lack direction, although they greatly harassed the advancing British troops. General Roberts rested for a long time, not beginning his advance northward until May 3; but he met with no great opposition. Mafeking was relieved on May 16. On May 27 Lord Roberts announced the annexation of the Orange Free State, and on May 30 the British entered Johannesburg. Pretoria, the objective point of the campaign, was surrendered on June 5. But the war was by no means over. De Wet and other Boer commanders continued to inflict severe losses upon the British, carrying on what might be called a kind of guerrilla warfare. President Kruger escaped by way of Lorenzo Marquez, and visited Europe, where he was warmly welcomed, although he failed to receive governmental support. In the meantime De Wet carried on the campaign with such success that, in December, 1900, Lord Roberts, then about to surrender his command to General Kitchener, called for reinforcements of 20,000 men. The British had lost all told not less than 50,000 men, and the Boers had not been conquered, although they had no army in the field worthy of the name. The war party, however, was sustained at the Parliamentary elections, and the Transvaal was formally annexed to British South African possessions.

NOTE.—It is probable that the fish laws of Pennsylvania will be materially changed in 1901.POLAR EXPEDITIONS OF THE YEAR.

The Polar work of 1900 was more than usually interesting. Nansen's great record of 86 degrees 14 minutes north latitude, made in 1895, was surpassed by the members of the expedition commanded by the Italian Duke of the Abruzzi, who reached 86 degrees 33 minutes. The party under the Duke sailed from Christiana, in the Stella Polare, on June 21, 1899, and the plan of Polar attack was exactly opposite to that made by Dr. Nansen. The latter attempted to approach the Pole by the longest route, and with his ship, either by the open sea or by letting himself drift with the ice, trusting to the strength of his vessel to withstand the tremendous strain. The Duke planned to make only a limited use of the Stella Polare, and to push on in as straight a line as possible over the ice with sleds after leaving the ship. Although the Duke of the Abruzzi made the farthest north, his party suffered great hardships; three members lost their lives, and the vessel narrowly escaped being wrecked. A great hole was stove in her side, and the ship would have sunk only that she was providentially thrown up on the ice fields, where the hole could be leisurely repaired. The Duke's party returned to civilization during the first week in September.

During the summer the ship Windward sailed for Greenland carrying supplies to Lieutenant Peary. Mrs. Peary was also on board. Subsequently a letter was received from Captain Bartlett, the commander of the vessel, dated August 10, announcing his safe arrival at Godhaven, Island of Disco. Since then nothing has been heard of the vessel, which has undoubtedly been beset by the ice and cannot return until next summer. Intelligence, however, was received of Lieutenant Peary from two sources. It appears that Lieutenant Peary and his companions are wintering at Fort Conger, Lady Franklin Bay, once the headquarters of the Greely expedition. They have an abundance of food, including fresh meat. Lieutenant Peary's expressed intention is to make a final dash for the Pole in the spring.

The Stein expedition, of which mention is made, located itself in Ellesmere Land. Dr. Kaun, one of the party, returned home early in the autumn on a whaling ship.

The whereabouts of the Sverdrup expedition with the famous Fram is unknown.

Nothing has been heard of Andree, and there are few who still believe the unfortunate balloonist and his companions to be alive.

About the middle of September an adventurer named Captain Banendahl, a German sailor, with six companions, embarked in the Matador, an ordinary two-masted brig of forty-four tons, and sailed northward, with the avowed intention of seeking the North Pole. Nothing has since been heard of him or his party.

SPORTING RECORDS OF 1900.

FOOT-BALL.

The foot-ball season of 1900 was filled with surprises. Yale is the only club with a clean record. She was scored against only twice, making 336 points to her opponents' 10. Harvard stands next, having been beaten only by Yale. Her scores were low, however, as she made only 205 points against 44 for her opponents. Pennsylvania is third only because of her defeat by Harvard. She won all her other games and scored 335 points to 45 for her opponents. The order of the other colleges is not easy to determine. Cornell stands well up, having won all her games except those with Lafayette and the University of Pennsylvania. Columbia was beaten by Harvard, Pennsylvania and Yale, and Princeton suffered defeat at the hands of Cornell, Columbia and Yale. Brown was beaten only by the University of Pennsylvania, Princeton and Yale. The Carlisle Indians were beaten by Harvard, Yale, Pennsylvania and Columbia, but, nevertheless, played a strong game, scoring in every contest except with Yale and Columbia, and running up a good total.

As the several colleges have different lists of opponents, exact comparisons cannot be made between them. Sometimes at the end of the season there are two or three leaders who have not met, and who have records that are about even, but this year Yale is clearly first, with a clean score, and Harvard is just as clearly entitled to second place, for, though Pennsylvania lost no more games than Harvard and scored more points, she was beaten by Harvard, and that puts her in third place. The records of the several college teams follow:

The annual game between West Point and Annapolis was played at Franklin Field on December 1, and resulted in a victory for the Naval Cadets, the score being 11 to 7.

The 1900 season of the Inter-academic Association brought out no single team which could claim an undisputed right to the championship. Penn Charter and Germantown Academy defeated all the other teams in the association and then played a tie game, each side scoring 11 points.

Outside of the Inter-academic Association there was no other foot-ball league among the Philadelphia schools, but the Drexel Institute was generally acknowledged the strongest of the independent teams.

The Central High School was weak this year, and for the first time since 1894 it lost its annual game with the Central Manual Training School.

BICYCLING.

Since the L. A. W. abandoned jurisdiction over the sport of bicycle racing contests for amateurs have not been noteworthy, and that class of competitive riders have gradually become an unknown quantity. The National Cycling Association, the new governing body, has made a feeble effort to reinstate the sport, and the subjoined official records show that it has been partially successful:

CRICKET RECORDS.

The cricket season of 1900 witnessed a complete change in the methods governing the championship series—the schedule being considerably lengthened, the competition for the Club Record Cup abolished, and a new series inaugurated for the Philadelphia Cup, embracing contestants from Moorestown, Belfield and Linden, as well as from the four Halifax Cup contestants.

These changes, though tried merely as an experiment, proved so popular and successful that the Committee of the Associated Cricket Clubs will, after a few amendments in minor details, arrange similar championship competitions for 1901.

The Halifax Series was one of the most stubbornly contested in the annals of the game, and after ending in a tie between Germantown and Merion, the former won the deciding match by the narrow margin of 9 runs.

The standing of the clubs follows:

Clubs.	Germantown	Merion	Belmont	Philadelphia	Games won	Percentage of wins
Germantown.....	...	4	4	8	16	.640
Merion .....	5	...	1	4	10	.588
Belmont .....	4	3	...	2	9	.562
Philadelphia .....	0	0	2	...	2	.125
Games lost.....	9	7	7	14

Germantown entered two teams.

Merion entered two teams for the Philadelphia Cup, and won the trophy in the easiest kind of fashion.

INDIVIDUAL PRIZES.

The race for the George W. Childs Batting and Bowling Cups created unusual interest owing to the length of the schedule and the fact that the winners would necessarily surpass all previous records in the matter of runs and wickets. A. M. Wood won the Batting Cup, scoring 791 runs and securing an average of 60.85, nearly double that of the next batsman on the list.

The Bowling Cup was awarded to A. P. Morris, who took 53 wickets, and secured the excellent average of 10.09 per wicket.

INTERNATIONAL CRICKET.

The annual match between the United States and Canada was played in Philadelphia, September 21 and 22, and after an exciting contest resulted in a victory for the former by 15 runs, the scores being: Canada, 108 and 120; United States, 119 and 124.

This was the only international match played, the arrangements for the visit of a team of English amateurs falling through at the last moment, owing to some misunderstanding amongst the leaders of the invading force.

AQUATIC.

During the year the eight-oared shell crew of the Vesper Boat Club of this city, in addition to sweeping the waters of this country, journeyed to Paris and competed at the World's Fair Regatta, defeating all the crack crews of the Continent, and for the first time in the history of American aquatics an eight-oared shell championship of the world is held by American amateurs.

YACHTING.

Sir Thomas Lipton has again challenged for the America's Cup and the New York Yacht Club has accepted his challenge, the races to be sailed in August, 1901. Sir Thomas is building Shamrock II for the races, and two yachts will be built in this country to compete in trial races with the Columbia for the honor of defending the cup. The record of these international races follows:

ALMANAC COOK BOOK.

JAM FRITTERS.—Take some stale sponge cakes; cut them in halves; spread any kind of jam on one-half; place the other on the top and press firmly together; cut in half across. Make some frying batter; dip in the pieces of cake; put them gently into plenty of clean fat from which a faint smoke is rising; fry a golden brown. Drain on paper; dust with pulverized sugar. Arrange in a pile on a hot dish and serve at once.

POTATOES IN GRAVY.—Peel some raw potatoes and cut them into fairly even dice; heat some fat in a stewpan, throw in a few chopped onions, a pinch of chopped parsley, salt and pepper and cover with good stock. Put on the lid; let them stew till tender without stirring them at all; most of the stock will now be absorbed. Add a teacupful of good meat gravy, a pinch of grated nutmeg, and serve.

SAGE-AND-ONION STUFFING.—Peel four large onions, cut them into quarters and throw them into boiling water for five minutes. Drain off the water and refill the pan with fresh water. When this second water boils put back the onions and boil till soft. Meanwhile, take eight or more (according to whether you like it strongly flavored or not) sage leaves. Put them in boiling water for five minutes, then dry them, and when the onions are done chop them both very finely together. Now add six ounces of bread crumbs, a dust of pepper and salt and two ounces of chopped suet. Next beat up two eggs and bind the stuffing with them. It is then ready for use.

MACARONI CROQUETTES.—Boil till soft a quarter of a pound of macaroni which has been broken into small pieces. Melt one ounce of butter or dripping in a saucepan, and add to it one teaspoonful of chopped onion and one of parsley. Chop and add two ounces of any cooked bacon, ham or meat to the macaroni. Season with salt and pepper and moisten with a little milk or white sauce. Heat all together in a pan, then add one egg, stirring all for a few minutes over the fire; then turn the mixture on to a plate to cool. Make it up into shapes like corks, add egg and crumbs to them; then fry them in boiling fat a golden brown. Serve with fried parsley.

POMMES SOUFFLES.—These, when well cooked, are as delicious as can be, but there is a knack about preparing them which it is difficult to attain. Every detail of the instructions should be most carefully followed, for failure is generally due either to the temperature of the fat or to the thickness of the potato slices. With a thermometer, however, it is hardly possible to go far wrong. After experimenting with this it is easy to tell the various stages of heat by the appearance of the fat. Some of the best culinary authorities have decided that lard is the safest material to use. Peel and wash the potatoes and cut them in very even slices, about the thickness of a silver dollar piece (not quite a quarter of an inch); reckon one pound of lard to every half pound of potatoes thus prepared. When the fat has been heated to 110 degrees put in the slices, and moderate the fire (gas is far the best for this operation); let them fry for about eight minutes, when the degree of 140 should have been reached. The fat at this point will no longer emit the bubbles caused at first by the evaporations of the moisture, and the potatoes will float, having become slightly inflated. Of course, they should be in the ordinary frying basket; remove this, heat the fat to 200 degrees, and plunge the basket in again quickly for a few seconds, when the right swelling will be reached. When they are all done leave them in the basket over a strainer, and, one minute before dishing them up, put them once more into boiling fat, drain them quickly and send them to table immediately.

VEGETABLE SOUP WITHOUT MEAT.—Take three ounces of onion, three ounces of turnip, three ounces of carrot and an ounce of celery, and fry for ten minutes in one ounce of clarified beef dripping (or butter); do not allow the vegetables to become in the least brown. Stir into the pan one and a half tablespoonfuls of flour; let it cook for three minutes, stirring all the time to prevent it from burning; then add gradually one pint and a half of warm water. When the mixture has boiled and thickened season it with pepper and salt, add two cloves, a small blade of mace, a sprig of thyme, some parsley and a bay leaf, and let it simmer gently until the vegetables are quite tender. Pass it and the vegetables, except the carrot and herbs, through a sieve, and about ten minutes before the soup is required add a pint of boiling milk to the vegetable stock, and let it simmer until it is required. When ready it should be of about the consistency of thick cream. If preferred thicker, a piece of butter which has been worked up with a little flour should be added to the milk. The appearance of the soup will be improved by a sprinkle of parsley after it has been poured into the tureen. Fried bread cut into dice should be served with it. The carrots (which would be noticeable in a white soup of the above description) should not be thrown away; they would make a garnish for some little meat dish, either sprinkled with chopped parsley or passed through a sieve, or they could be added to a savory mince.

FAIRY DROPS.—Cream well together four ounces of butter and four ounces of sugar. Beat four eggs. Add them gradually to the butter and sugar. Now work in gently four ounces of flour, and add one ounce of cleaned currants. Line a baking tin with a piece of buttered foolscap paper. Drop on the mixture in little heaps about the size of a small walnut. Keep a good space between each. Bake in a quick oven till a pretty brown. Lift very gently off the paper.

SOUP BALLS.—These balls are very good to serve in soup. To prepare them, put a gill of cold milk with a tablespoonful of butter, and when it boils add a rather scant half cup of good pastry flour and stir well. Let it cool about ten minutes, and then add two eggs, beating them in one after the other. Roll out this pastry until it is about as thick as a good-sized pea. Cut it out into balls the size of large peas and fry them in hot fat. They will swell up into hollow, tender souffles, of golden paste, like that of cream cakes.

PLANKED SHAD.—For planked shad a board is, of course, necessary, and any of the house-furnishing stores will supply the need at modest cost. But if this should be beyond your means get a carpenter to plane off for you a board of hard wood about two inches thick, two feet long and eighteen inches wide. Split the fish as if you were to broil it. Place it, skin down, on the board and fasten with tacks or thumb tacks. Put the board before the fire to get hot before the shad is put on it. Put the fish before the fire with the large end down. In a few minutes reverse it, and do this every few minutes till the fish is cooked. Rub it from time to time with a little butter—melted and seasoned. When the flesh flakes it is done. Serve on the plank, or on a dish, after removing the tacks. Be sure your plank is of seasoned hard wood. Pine and soft woods give their flavor to the fish.

FISH PIE.—For this you can use the remains of any cold fish, and also cold potatoes. Rub one and one-half pounds of cold potatoes through a sieve, or mash them fine with a fork. Melt one ounce of dripping in a saucepan, and stir in the potatoes; then add one tablespoonful of the milk. Take one pound of cold fish, remove the skin and bones, and cut it up very fine; put in a greased pudding dish, season with salt and pepper, add about one tablespoonful of milk or fish-stock. Cover the dish with one and one-half pounds of mashed potato, smooth it neatly down, mark it over with a fork, and bake for three-quarters of an hour.

DRIED HADDOCK AND TOMATOES.—Take a dried haddock, soak it in tepid water for one hour. Then remove all bones and skin; chop the remainder into large flakes; take a piece of Spanish onion about the size of a small nut, chop it fine, also two teaspoonfuls of parsley; melt one and one-half ounces of butter in a stewpan. Put in the fish, onion and half of the parsley, also two sliced tomatoes. Cook till the flakes of fish and the tomatoes are cooked. It will take about eight minutes. Season carefully and pile up on a hot dish. Put around a border of carefully boiled rice; sprinkle the remainder of the parsley all over.

SUMMER SOUP.—Melt two ounces of butter in a saucepan and add two carrots, one large onion and two turnips, all sliced, one shredded lettuce, a few sprays of parsley and chervil, and, if procurable, half a pound or more of fresh asparagus stalks. Cook all together in the butter for ten minutes, but do not allow the vegetables to become brown; add by degrees a large tablespoonful of flour, stirring it well into the butter, and then moisten the contents of the pan with three pints of white stock (preferably veal); when the liquid has boiled draw the pan to the side of the stove, add white pepper, salt, a dust of cayenne and a suspicion of mace, and let the soup simmer for one hour. Strain it into a clean stewpan and cut up some of the cooked carrot and turnip into narrow strips, and put these into the soup with a handful of finely-shredded lettuce and some green peas which have been cooked separately. Let the soup boil up, and stir into it the yolks of one or two eggs which have been beaten in a teacupful of cream or milk; continue stirring until the soup thickens, then remove the pan at once from the fire, or it will curdle and be spoilt. If a rather more economical soup is desired the eggs can be omitted; the soup can also be made with half milk and half water if no white stock is at hand, and will be very good.

MOCK DUCK.—Have a shoulder of mutton boned; this is easily done with a sharp knife. Begin cutting the meat off the broad end and work upwards. Make some stuffing as for goose or pork, and fill in the cavity left by the removal of the bone. Skewer the open ends securely, and tie with tape or string into a neat, compact shape, rolling the sides rather under, so as to lessen the breadth of the joint. Put it on a baking pan and bake in the usual way, allowing twenty minutes for each pound that the meat weighs. Remember to baste it well. About three-quarters of an hour before it is cooked put into the dripping tin with the meat a pound or so of peeled and halved potatoes. These will be cooked and a tempting brown by the time the joint is finished. Take out the skewer and untie before dishing. Serve with thick brown gravy and plenty of apple sauce. If liked, powdered dry sage as well. For the Stuffing—Peel four large onions, cut them into quarters, and throw them into boiling water for five minutes. Drain off the water and refill the pan with fresh water. When the second water boils, put back the onions and let them boil until soft. Meanwhile, take eight or more sage leaves. Put them in boiling water for five minutes, then dry them, and when the onions are done chop both very finely. Now add six ounces of bread crumbs, a dust of pepper and salt, and two ounces of chopped suet. Next beat up two eggs and bind the stuffing with them. It is then ready for use.

LEMON PIE.—No pie on the culinary roster is easier or cheaper to make than the lemon. In the first place, the shell crust should be made before the filling is put in, pricking it in several places before baking to prevent the air blisters. When the family is large and especially devoted to pies, several of these crusts may be made at once and then set aside to fill as required. One of the best fillings is made of one cup of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, the yolks of two or three eggs, one cupful of boiling water, the juice and grated rind of one lemon and one tablespoonful of cornstarch dissolved in cold water. Stir the cornstarch into the hot water, cook until clear, then add the butter and sugar. When creamy push back on the range, and when nearly cool add the lemon and beaten eggs. Fill the crust and cover with a thick meringue. This is made of the whites of three eggs beaten very stiff with a wire whip. Add, still beating; three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and one teaspoonful of lemon juice. Spread evenly over the pie and stand in a slow oven until it becomes firm, with a gold-brown glaze. This last operation will require about twenty minutes, as a meringue requires slow drying. It becomes tough and leathery if put in a hot oven.

PEANUT AND CHEESE SANDWICHES.—Shell and skin sufficient fresh roasted peanuts to make a small cupful when pounded or rolled. Sprinkle them lightly with salt and mix them with enough cream cheese to hold them together. Spread this on squares of thin bread. These sandwiches are particularly nice served with lettuce salad.

THE EPHEMERIS.

THE Ephemeris for the present year gives the day of the year, the day of the month, and day of the week in civil time, according to which the day begins at midnight. Next are given the time of sunrise, the time at which the sun's center souths, or is on the meridian, and the time of sunset. The times of sunrise and sunset are in each case for the upper limb or edge of the sun and corrected for refraction. They are more accurate than usually found in popular almanacs, and will give the time with sufficient accuracy for ordinary purposes. A surveyor's level will give the horizon where the upper edge of the sun should be at the time given in the Almanac. If the telescope of the leveling instrument inverts, the upper edge will, of course, be apparently the lower one. Next are given the times of rising, southing and setting of the moon. The rising and setting are for the upper limb, corrected for parallax and refraction, and the southing is for the moon's center. The age of the moon gives the number of days elapsed since the last new moon. They follow the times of high and low water at Washington ave., Philadelphia (for high and low water at other places, see table on page 15). In the last column are given the times when the Moon is in Perigee or Apogee, also a collection of interesting astronomical phenomena for the year. All data in this Almanac are given in Eastern Standard Time, which is 38'' ahead of Philadelphia local time; hence the two times are practically the same; except for sun's southing; in this case subtract 38'' to get the corresponding local time.

CHRONOLOGICAL ERAS.

The year 5663 of the Jewish era begins at sunset on October 1.

The year 1902 corresponds to the year 2655 since the foundation of Rome according to Varro; to the year 2678 of the Olympiads, or the second year of the 670th Olympiad; to the year 2562 of the Japanese era, and to the 35th year of the "Meiji;" to the year 1320 of the Mohammedan era, which begins on April 10.

MAY.

Quadrature (☐) of JUPITER (♃) and SUN (☉), May 7.

Eclipse of the SUN (☉), May 7.

THE PLANETS IN 1902.

MERCURY (☿) will rise before the Sun, being Morning Star from February 26 until April 16; also from October 25 to November 27. It will be seen as Evening Star, setting after the Sun, from January 15 to February 14; from May 9 to June 17, and from August 21 to October 10. This planet will be farthest west on March 17, July 15 and November 4; and farthest east February 3, May 28 and September 24.

VENUS (♀) will be Morning Star arising before the Sun, from February 21 to October 20, being farthest west April 25. It will be Evening Star from January 1 to February 8. The following are the dates of its greatest brilliancy: January 10, March 21.

MARS (♂) will be Morning Star from May 10 to end of year, and Evening Star from January 1 to February 25. It will not be in opposition this year.

JUPITER (♃) will be Morning Star from February 1 to August 5, when it will be in opposition with the Sun, being on the meridian at midnight. After this date it will be Evening Star.

SATURN (♄) will be Morning Star from January 25 to July 17, when it attains its greatest brilliancy, passing the meridian at midnight; after this it will become Evening Star.

THE twenty-second of November is known as Almanac Day, because in the latter part of the eighteenth and the beginning of the nineteenth century it was the habit of publishers in England to issue almanacs for the ensuing year on that day.

THE strongest ale known is Chancellor's Ale. It is brewed at Oxford, and sixteen bushels of malt are used to the barrel. Two wine glasses full will intoxicate most people.

A LARGE number of people in rendering the quotation "to the manner born" erroneously write it "to the manor born."

THE original "Amen Corner" is a spot in Paternoster Row, London.

Election Day . . . . .	Nov. 4.††
Thanksgiving Day . . . . .	Nov. 27.‡
Christmas Day . . . . .	Dec. 25.

All Saturdays after 12 o'clock noon are half holidays.

*Third Tuesday in February (in 1902, February 18).

†First Monday in September (in 1902, September 1).

††First Tuesday after first Monday (in 1902, November 4).

‡Designated by President or Governor, usually the last Thursday of November (i. e., in 1902, November 27).

When a holiday falls on a Sunday it is to be observed the following Monday.

The list of legal holidays in New Jersey does not include Good Friday.

In some parts of England, instead of the yule log, a huge fagot of sticks or branches of ash, tied together with ash bands or withes, is burned on Christmas Eve. This is called the Ashton fagot.

RED-LETTER days, or memorable days, have their origin in an old custom of printing the more important festivals and saints' days of the church in red instead of black letters.

It is not generally known, but there is a patron saint for persons who have the toothache. Her name is Apollonia, and her day is February 9th.

THE famous wrist bone of St. Anne, that created so much religious excitement in New York in 1901, was brought to that city in 1892.

CUBAN INDEPENDENCE.

The Constitutional Convention of Cuba was exceedingly dilatory in framing a form of government for the island, and not until some pressure had been exerted from Washington was the instrument made satisfactory to the United States. It contains a few limitations upon the liberty of the Cubans, chiefly relating to the power to contract debts, and the right of the United States to establish military posts is recognized. Arrangements have been made whereby it is probable that in the spring of 1902 Cuba will be declared free and a native government inaugurated. It is recognized, however, that in the ordinary course of events Cuba will become, in time, a State or territory of the Union. For the present there is no disposition on the part of the United States to annex the island. The promises made at the outbreak of the war with Spain will be literally fulfilled. Cuba will be free. But the conditions will be such that in a short time a party in favor of annexation will be formed, and when it has attained sufficient power the United States will be asked to admit the island to the Union. Not until that time arrives will there be any effort to annex the island.

SOME years ago there was a fancy for the graceful cut-leaved weeping birch, and hundreds were planted by residents of suburban Philadelphia. Last spring a mysterious disease attacked these trees, and in a short time nearly every one died. It is a strange fact that the disease did not appear to attack any other species of birch or other tree.

THE Arabs assert that the tomb of Eve is at Jiddah, the seaport of Mecca. The temple in which her alleged remains repose has a solid stone roof, and out of this rock a palm tree is said to grow. According to Arabian tradition the mother of mankind was a giantess among giants, her height being over 200 feet.

OUR LADY OF HATRED is the name given a church in Treguier, Brittany.

DEATH OF QUEEN VICTORIA.

Queen Victoria of England, who had been in failing health for some time, largely as the result of agitation resulting from the Boer war, became alarmingly ill on January 16, 1901, and soon developed symptoms of paralysis. The royal family was summoned and on January 22 the Queen died. She was remarkable both as sovereign and woman. Domestic in her tastes, she married for love, and was a most dutiful wife and mother. As sovereign she exerted a real power in the politics of the State. The Queen or King of England is largely a figure-head. The real ruler is the Prime Minister, who holds his office by the will of Parliament. But the titular ruler may guide, if not control, the Prime Minister, and Queen Victoria, during her long reign, acquired such knowledge of politics that she became a real ruler at critical periods of the nation's history. Her reign was exceptionally peaceful because she exerted her influence to prevent conflicts with other Powers; and there is every reason to believe that in her old age and weakened condition the injustice of the war against the Boers, and the losses incident to that war, preyed upon her mind and helped to break down her strong physique.

THE natural lakes of Pennsylvania all had their origin in the glacial period of North America. They were either formed by a creek being dammed by a terminal moraine, or from springs which bubble up in the bottoms of depressions on the sides of moraines.

DURING the year 1900 three hundred and eighty-eight thousand nine hundred and thirty-one persons emigrated to this country from Europe.

AMONG the Irish mountaineers a marriage is considered a tame affair unless the bridegroom runs away with the bride.

THE shooting season in England begins on August 12.

LATE CENSUS RETURNS.

The Census Bureau issued in October, 1901, a bulletin showing the population of the United States by sex, general nativity and color, for 1900. Of the total population of the United States there were 39,059,242 males and 37,244,145 females. The native element numbered 65,843,302, and the foreign born 10,460,085. Of the colored population there was a total of 9,319,585, divided as follows: Colored, 8,840,789; Chinese, 119,050; Japanese, 85,986, and Indians, taxed, 137,342, untaxed, 129,519.

There has been practically no change in the proportions of the sexes since 1890. The foreign-born element has increased since 1890 only 12.4 per cent. of its former number, as against 22.5 per cent. in the native-born gain. There has been a slight decrease during the past ten years of persons of colored descent, the proportion now being 11.6 per cent. In 1890 it was 11.9 per cent. The Chinese show a loss and the Indians have decreased 2.5 per cent.

In the United States proper the largest proportion of foreign-born is found in North Dakota, where this element comprises 35.4 per cent. of the total population; the next largest percentages of foreign-born being found in Rhode Island, with 31.4 per cent.; Massachusetts with 28.9, and Minnesota, Montana, Connecticut and New York, with about 26 per cent. each. The native Indians of Alaska number 29,536, a gain of 16.5 per cent. since 1890.

PLATINUM is peculiarly the electrician's metal. Its quality of resisting oxidation indefinitely, and its ability to make a tight joint with glass, when fused into the body of that material, or even through the thin wall of an X-ray tube, make it absolutely invaluable, and no other material has taken its place for these uses.

In olden times a Welsh woman might beat her husband with a poker, but if she hit him with a pair of tongs she committed an offense for which she could be severely punished.

THE contribution box in churches is an American invention. When it was first practiced in colonial days a warming pan was the utensil used.

THE BOER WAR.

In December, 1900, the Boer forces in South Africa had been dispersed, the Transvaal annexed to the British possessions and Lord Roberts was preparing to leave South Africa in charge of General Kitchener. The celebration in honor of the return of General Roberts was postponed, however, because of unfavorable reports from the scene of conflict, and the war continued throughout the succeeding year, although there were only small bands of Boers in the field and no general battles could be fought. The British adopted the severest repressive measures, but without any apparent success. They met with repeated reverses, small garrisons being captured by roving bands, and in the fall of 1901 the situation was apparently even worse than in the fall of 1900. Great Britain had over 300,000 soldiers in the field and yet the scene of disturbances had been transferred to Cape Colony, a supposedly loyal British possession. Kruger remained in Europe, resolutely refusing to consider any terms of peace which did not include absolute independence. There was, however, no abatement of the war spirit in England; the Government was criticised but not condemned, notwithstanding the enormous expense of the struggle. At this writing, late in 1901, there is no indication that the war can be brought to a speedy conclusion. The Boer military forces are outlawed and the members of their marauding bands will apparently fight on until they are exterminated. The British have already lost more men than the highest estimate originally given of the army opposed to them.

THE supposition is that by far the greater number of earthquakes, whether large or small, have their origin at only a moderate depth beneath the surface—that is, not more than from ten to fifteen miles.

THE celebration of April Fools' Day is said to have originated in France.

THE STEEL WORKERS' STRIKE.

An abortive strike, unusual in character, followed the organization of the Steel Trust. The latter included both mills that had been union and those that had been independent. During the summer of 1901 a strike was inaugurated which had for its primary object the unionizing of all mills controlled by the Steel Trust. Those who inaugurated the strike made the fatal mistake of advising the workmen to repudiate contracts already made. The strike was quite general, and lasted for about five weeks, but was a complete failure, because it had no real basis of grievances. There was no complaint as to wages or hours of labor; the sole purpose of the strike was to compel the Trust to unionize some mills that had been theretofore non-union. The result was disastrous to the Amalgamated Association, for at the end there were fewer union mills than before. But the Steel Trust took no advantage of the situation. Wages and hours of labor remained the same for union and non-union mills. The only difference was that at the end of the strike the Amalgamated Association was less strong than it had been before, and that its leaders were wholly discredited. The strike occurred when there was a great demand for American steel, but the only sufferers were the workmen. The great steel corporations managed to tide over the difficulty, or to make an extra profit out of the market; but for the workmen who dropped their tools there was no compensation. They had followed false leaders and suffered the consequence. The Trust wisely refrained from reducing wages or increasing the hours of labor, and when work was resumed at the end of the strike the conditions remained practically the same as before the revolt.

As it is believed by many geologists that the interior of the earth has a density of possibly fifteen or twenty times as much as that of water, it is argued that the core of the earth is probably composed of pure metal.

THE PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

The Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, although of no great importance as an exhibition, because of its limited scope, was notable for its artistic features.

GRANITE is regarded by many as the foundation stone of the earth, because the cores, or deep interiors of many of the biggest mountains, are constituted of this rock.

FULLY nine-tenths of all the rocks that are known to the geologist, barring possibly the more ancient rocks of the metamorphic series, are transformed ocean sediments, inorganic and organic limestones.

IN Wyoming there is a basaltic tower 625 feet in height, known as "Mato Tepee," or Bear Lodge. It was formed by an ancient volcanic eruption.

THE grand canon of the Colorado has a length of more than 200 miles and a depth in its deepest parts of more than 7000 feet.

Explanations to Tide Tables.

To find the times of high or low water for any place given in the table above, apply the correction opposite the place to the times of high or low water for Philadelphia given on each calendar page of this Almanac. Add the correction when it is plus, and subtract it when it is minus.

EXAMPLE—At what time in the morning will it be high water at Atlantic City on February 8, 1902?

Time of high water at Philadelphia, February 8, A.M. . . . . = 1h. 12m. A.M.

Time of high water at Atlantic City, February 8, A.M. . . . . = 7h. 37m. A.M.

The places, instead of being arranged alphabetically, are put as nearly as may be in their geographical order, beginning on the northern New Jersey coast, and following*the coast of the Delaware, and thence up that river and the Schuylkill.

CHURCHES AND RELIGIOUS SERVICES IN PHILADELPHIA.

[Corrected to November 8, 1901.]

When not otherwise stated, the hours of service are—10½ morning and 7½ evening.

The Public Ledger, on Saturday of each week, contains a summary of the Religious News of the week, embracing important facts relating to all denominations, Selections of Religious Thought and a department devoted to Sunday-school Lessons.

On Saturdays the Ledger contains advertisements of the Religious Services of the principal churches.

THE BREDELL-TAYLOR COUNTERFEITING CASE.

The most remarkable counterfeiting case ever developed in this country was brought to public attention on April 20, 1899, when Baldwin S. Bredell and Arthur Taylor were committed in default of $20,000 each to answer the charge of conspiring to defraud the Government by means of counterfeit silver certificates and counterfeit internal revenue stamps. The story, as afterwards developed, was that Bredell and Taylor, who were skillful engravers, had been engaged to counterfeit revenue stamps to be used by William M. Jacobs and William L. Kendig, cigar-makers, of Lancaster, Pa. Ex-United States District Attorney Ellery P. Ingham and Harvey K. Newitt, a member of the bar, had been engaged by the principals to furnish protection by the bribery of internal revenue agents, and Samuel P. Downey, of Lancaster, a Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, was held to answer charges of accepting bribes. Ingham and Newitt were convicted on October 20, and recommended to mercy. They were subsequently disbarred, but extraordinary efforts were made to release them from prison, the Legislature passing an act greatly increasing the allowances made for good behavior of prisoners for their express benefit. The effect of this act was a general jail delivery of notorious criminals, but Ingham and Newitt were not released, being Federal prisoners. They were sentenced to two years and six months' imprisonment. President McKinley was importuned for a pardon, but refused it. The trial of Ingham and Newitt developed another scandal. Henry J. Fairbanks and Thomas O'Dea were indicted for corruptly endeavoring to influence the jury in this case. Fairbanks was convicted and O'Dea pleaded guilty. The principals, Jacobs, Kendig, Burns and Downey, as well as Fairbanks and O'Dea, were sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from one to twelve years. In the meantime, on May 7, 1900, Harry Taylor, brother of Arthur Taylor, had been arrested for passing $20 counterfeit notes, and the most extraordinary part of the story was then developed. Bredell and Taylor had been kept in Moyamensing Prison awaiting sentence until the time should expire when Ingham and Newitt could make an appeal. During this time they had made the counterfeiters. The story was developed in the trial of John L. Semple, an attorney of Camden, N. J., who had been engaged to defend them. According to the testimony in his trial, which took place in November, 1901, the counterfeiters while in jail were supplied by relatives and friends with steel plates, chemicals, an oil lamp, a small press and a tent-like screen of dark muslin, under which screen they engraved during the night a counterfeit $20 plate. The notes were printed on one-dollar bills bleached for the purpose, which notes, it was alleged, were furnished them by Attorney Semple. His alleged purpose was to secure for his clients immunity from punishment by an offer to surrender the plate from which the counterfeiters were made. The latter were so well executed that bank officials were deceived by them. Incredible as the story seemed, it was supported by much corroborative evidence. Attorney Semple denied in toto the story told by the engravers.

Judge McPherson's charge to the jury accepted as proved the fact that the counterfeiters were made in jail, and that the chief motive for making them was that the plates might be used as a means of making a bargain with the Government for immunity from punishment. This he described as the heart of the case. If this was the motive then the jury was to consider whether Bredell and Taylor or Semple were to be believed. Bredell and Taylor were accomplices. On the other hand, Semple had a great interest in the outcome of the case. The question at issue was really one of veracity—the story of Bredell and Taylor on the one side and the denial of the story by Semple on the other side. The Judge in his charge dismissed the implication that the Secret-Service agents of the Government had set up an accusation against the defendant.

The jury having considered the case for several hours, reported a disagreement; but the Judge sent them back again, insisting upon a verdict.

After about thirty hours of deliberation the foreman of the jury told the Court that no further instructions were required as the differences were not on matters of law. There was a conscientious difference of opinion which could not be removed. As it appeared to be impossible to reach an agreement, Judge McPherson finally discharged the jury for the term.

It is supposed that Mauna Loa, the volcanic mountain of the Sandwich Islands, rises from the full depth of the ocean. This would make the complete height over thirty thousand feet.

RACES FOR THE AMERICA'S CUP.

The cup was originally offered in 1851 by the Royal Yacht Squadron for a race around the Isle of Wight, open to all comers. The America was built by Mr. George Steers for a syndicate, of which Commodore Stevens was the head, for the express purpose of being sent to England to race, but not to enter the particular race in which she won the cup, for at the time she was built her owners had no knowledge that such a cup had been offered.

The race was sailed August 22, 1851. The America was one of a fleet of eighteen vessels ranging in size from 47 to 392 tons. The America was a schooner of 170 tons. She distanced all her competitors except the Aurora, the smallest cutter in the fleet. The Aurora (47 tons) came in twenty minutes behind the America. Had there been allowance for tonnage, the America would have won by two minutes. The record of the race is :

	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed Time.
America . . . . .	10.00.00	8.35.00	10.37.00
Aurora . . . . .	10.00.00	8.55.00	10.55.00

SECOND MATCH.

The cup became the absolute property of the winners. But in 1857 they made it a perpetual challenge cup, and entrusted it to the New York Yacht Club. It remained unchallenged, however, until 1868, when Sir James Ashbury proposed to bring over the yacht Cambria; but he undertook to dictate the terms of the race, and so much correspondence ensued that the challenger did not appear until 1870. The Cambria was obliged to sail against a fleet, being one of eighteen that started, over a course of thirty-eight miles. The Cambria came in tenth. The old America finished fourth. The record was :

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Magic . . . . .	4.07.54	3.58.26
Cambria . . . . .	4.34.57	4.37.38

THIRD MATCH.

Mr. Ashbury got the terms changed for the third attempt to lift the cup. He was not to sail against a fleet, but a series of races with any one schooner named by the New York Yacht Club, best three out of five. The first race was sailed October 16, 1871, the record being :

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia . . . . .	6.17.42	6.19.41
Livonia . . . . .	6.43.00	6.46.55

Columbia won by 27 minutes 14 seconds.

On October 18 they sailed again, the record being :

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia . . . . .	3.01.33	3.07.41
Livonia . . . . .	3.06.49	3.18.15

Columbia, although disabled, was obliged to race again the next day, and again broke down, Livonia winning. This is the only heat ever won by a challenger. The record was :

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Livonia . . . . .	3.53.05	4.02.25
Columbia . . . . .	4.12.38	4.17.35

Sappho then took up the defense of the cup and won two races, the records being :

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Sappho . . . . .	5.33.24	5.36.02
Livonia . . . . .	6.04.38	6.09.23

And for the fifth of the series :

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Sappho . . . . .	4.38.05	4.46.17
Livonia . . . . .	5.04.41	5.11.44

Mr. Ashbury claimed the cup on absurd grounds, and bad feeling was engendered by acrimonious correspondence on the subject, so that five years elapsed before another challenge was received, and then it came from Canada.

FOURTH MATCH.

The races were to be the best two out of three. Both contestants were center-board schooners. The defender of the cup won, these being the records :

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Madeline . . . . .	5.24.55	5.23.54
Countess of Dufferin . . . . .	5.34.53	5.34.53

Second Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Madeline . . . . .	7.19.47	7.18.46
Countess of Dufferin . . . . .	7.46.00	7.46.00

The above races were sailed in August, 1876.

FIFTH MATCH.

The Canadians tried again in 1881, with the Atalanta. The Mischief was selected as the defender and won. Both were center-board sloops.

First Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Mischief . . . . .	4.17.09	4.17.09
Atalanta . . . . .	4.48.24	4.25.29

Second Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Mischief . . . . .	4.54.53	4.54.53
Atalanta . . . . .	5.36.32	5.33.47

SIXTH MATCH.

A new deed of gift was then made, and in 1886 the Puritan and Genesta were the racers. An accident occurred at the start of one of the trials, and Sir Richard Sutton, the owner of the Genesta, was notified that he could sail over the course and claim the race, but he declined to do so, saying that he wanted a race, not a walk-over. The Puritan won.

First Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Puritan . . . . .	6.06.05	6.06.05
Genesta . . . . .	6.22.52	6.22.24

Second Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Puritan . . . . .	5.09.14	5.03.14
Genesta . . . . .	5.05.23	5.04.52

SEVENTH MATCH.

The Galatea was sent over the next year, with no better success. In her races with the Mayflower these were the records :

First Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Mayflower . . . . .	5.26.41	5.26.41
Galatea . . . . .	5.39.21	5.38.43

Second Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Mayflower . . . . .	6.49.00	6.49.00
Galatea . . . . .	7.18.48	7.18.09

EIGHTH MATCH.

Scotland was the next contestant, sending over the Thistle in 1887. The Volunteer was built to meet her, and won with these records:

First Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Volunteer . . . . .	5.53.18	4.53.18
Thistle . . . . .	5.12.46	5.12.41

Second Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Volunteer . . . . .	5.42.56	5.42.56
Thistle . . . . .	5.54.51	5.54.51

NINTH MATCH.

The terms of gift were again changed, so as to provide for ocean courses. In 1893 Lord Dunraven brought over the Valkyrie, which was beaten by the Vigilant, in a series of close races, the records being:

First Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Vigilant . . . . .	4.05.47	4.05.47
Valkyrie II. . . . .	4.13.23	4.11.35

Second Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Vigilant . . . . .	3.25.01	3.25.01

Third Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Vigilant . . . . .	3.24.39	3.24.39
Valkyrie II . . . . .	3.26.52	3.25.14

The latter race was won by only 35 seconds, corrected time.

TENTH MATCH.

Lord Dunraven tried again in 1895 with Valkyrie III. Defender won two races, and was given the third on a foul. The record:

First Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Defender . . . . .	5.00.24	4.59.55
Valkyrie III . . . . .	5.08.44	5.08.44

Second Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Defender . . . . .	3.56.25	3.55.56
Valkyrie III . . . . .	3.55.09	3.55.09

This race was awarded to Defender on a foul.

Third Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Defender . . . . .	4.43.11	. . .
Valkyrie III . . . . .	. . .	. . .

In this race Valkyrie crossed the line and then withdrew, leaving Defender to go over the course alone. Lord Dunraven made false charges against Mr. Iselin, and was expelled from the New York Yacht Club.

ELEVENTH MATCH.

Sir Thomas Lipton was the next challenger, with Shamrock I. The races were sailed in September, 1899, nearly two weeks being consumed in the attempts. They resulted as follows:

First Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia . . . . .	4.53.53	4.53.53
Shamrock . . . . .	5.04.07	5.04.01

Second Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia . . . . .	3.37.00	. . .
Shamrock . . . . .	. . .	. . .

Shamrock lost her topmast and withdrew.

Third Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia . . . . .	3.38.25	3.38.09
Shamrock . . . . .	3.44.43	3.44.43

TWELFTH MATCH.

The races of 1901 excited special interest because of the failure of the New York Yacht Club to produce a new yacht to meet Shamrock II. The Constitution was built for the purpose, but failed to equal the Columbia in preliminary trial races. The Independence, also built to enter the races, did not qualify as a member of the New York Yacht Club and was ruled out. She had, however, been beaten by Columbia in some preliminary races and was never seriously considered. The Committee was compelled to name Columbia as the defender of the cup, and did it with some misgivings, although Columbia had been tuned up and was believed to be a faster boat than she was in 1899. However, Columbia won handily in all kinds of weather, the second race having been sailed in a gale. The races in light weather, however, were very close. The races were sailed September 28 and October 3 and 4.

First Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia . . . . .	4.31.07	4.30.24
Shamrock II . . . . .	4.31.44	4.31.44

Second Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia . . . . .	3.13.18	3.12.35
Shamrock II . . . . .	3.16.10	3.16.10

Third Race.

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia . . . . .	4.33.40	4.32.57
Shamrock II . . . . .	4.33.38	4.33.38

THE Allegheny was the first steamboat to ply between Warren, Pa., and Olean, N. Y., on the Allegheny river. This was in 1830. By this trip it was demonstrated that the river was navigable for 255 miles above Pittsburg.

THE Mississippi river annually discharges not less than 7,500,000,000 cubic feet of solid mud material. This will account for the rapid growth of the deltas.

THE giant geyser in the Yellowstone Park sometimes throws a jet to the height of 200 feet.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY'S LAST SPEECH.

President McKinley delivered an address at the Pan-American Exposition on September 5 which attracted world wide attention because of its liberal views. All the leading newspapers of the country commented upon it the next day. It was the uppermost topic of discussion when the news was flashed over the wires that the President had been shot. Fresh significance was given to the address by the assassination of the President, for it became his last public utterance. For this reason and because of the intrinsic value of the President's remarks the speech is here reprinted:

President Milburn, Director General Buchanan, Commissioners, ladies and gentlemen: I am glad to be again in the city of Buffalo, and exchange greetings with her people, to whose generous hospitality I am not a stranger, and with whose good will I have been repeatedly and signally honored. To-day I have additional satisfaction in meeting and giving welcome to the foreign representatives assembled here, whose presence and participation in this Exposition have contributed in so marked a degree to its interest and success. To the Commissioners of the Dominion of Canada and the British colonies, the French colonies, the Republics of Mexico and of Central and South America, and the Commissioners of Cuba and Porto Rico, who share with us in this undertaking, we give the hand of fellowship and felicitate with them upon the triumphs of art, science, education and manufacture, which the old has bequeathed to the new century.

TIMEKEEPERS OF PROGRESS.

Expositions are the timekeepers of progress. They record the world's advancement. They stimulate the energy, enterprise and intellect of the people, and quicken human genius. They go into the home. They broaden and brighten the daily life of the people. They open mighty store-houses of information to the student. Every Exposition, great or small, has helped to some onward step. Comparison of ideas is always educational, and as such instructs the brain and hand of man. Friendly rivalry follows, which is the spur to industrial improvement, the inspiration to useful invention and to high endeavor in all departments of human activity. It exacts a study of the wants, comforts and even the whims of the people and recognizes the efficacy of high quality and new prices to win their favor. The quest for trade is an incentive to men of business to devise, invent, improve and economize in the cost of production. Business life, whether among ourselves, or with other people, is ever a sharp struggle for success. It will be none the less so in the future. Without competition we would be clinging to the clumsy and antiquated processes of farming and manufacture and the methods of business of long ago, and the twentieth would be no further advanced than the eighteenth century. But though commercial competitors we are, commercial enemies we must not be.

WORK WELL DONE.

The Pan-American Exposition has done its work thoroughly, presenting in its exhibits evidences of the highest skill, and illustrating the progress of the human family in the Western Hemisphere. This portion of the earth has no cause for humiliation for the part it has performed in the march of civilization. It has not accomplished everything; far from it. It has simply done its best, and without vanity or boastfulness; and recognizing the manifold achievements of others, it invites the friendly rivalry of all the powers in the peaceful pursuits of trade and commerce, and will co-operate with all in advancing the highest and best interests of humanity. The wisdom and energy of all the nations are none too great for the world's work. The success of art, science, industry and invention is an international asset and a common glory.

WHOLE WORLD IN TOUCH.

After all, how near one to the other is every part of the world. Modern inventions have brought into close relation widely separated peoples and made them better acquainted. Geographic and political divisions will continue to exist, but distances have been effaced. Swift ships and fast trains are becoming cosmopolitan. They invade fields which a few years ago were impenetrable. The world's products are exchanged as never before, and with increasing transportation facilities come increasing knowledge and larger trade. Prices are fixed with mathematical precision by supply and demand. The world's selling prices are regulated by market and crop reports. We travel greater distances in a shorter space of time and with more ease than was ever dreamed of by the fathers. Isolation is no longer possible or desirable. The same important news is read, though in different languages, the same day in all Christendom. The telegraph keeps us advised of what is occurring everywhere, and the press foreshadows, with more or less accuracy, the plans and purposes of the nations. Market prices of products and of securities are hourly known in every commercial mart, and the investments of the people extend beyond their own national boundaries into the remotest parts of the earth. Vast transactions are conducted and international exchanges are made by the tick of the cable. Every event of interest is immediately bulletined. The quick gathering and transmission of news, like rapid transit, are of recent origin, and are only made possible by the genius of the inventor and the courage of the investor. It took a special messenger of the Government, with every facility known at the time for rapid travel, nineteen days to go from the city of Washington to New Orleans with a message to General Jackson that the war with England had ceased and a treaty of peace had been signed. How different now.

UTILIZING THE TELEGRAPH.

We reached General Miles in Porto Rico by cable, and he was able through the military telegraph to stop his army on the firing line with the message that the United States and Spain had signed a protocol suspending hostilities. We knew almost instantly of the first shots fired at Santiago, and the subsequent surrender of the Spanish forces was known at Washington within less than an hour of its consummation. The first ship of Cervera's fleet had hardly emerged from that historic harbor when the fact was flashed to our capital, and the swift destruction that followed was announced immediately through the wonderful medium of telegraphy.

So accustomed are we to safe and easy communication with distant lands that its temporary interruption, even in ordinary times, results in loss and inconvenience. We shall never forget the days of anxious waiting and awful suspense when no information was permitted to be sent from Peking, and the diplomatic representatives of the nations in China, cut off from all communication, inside and outside of the walled capital, were surrounded by an angry and misguided mob, that threatened their lives; nor the joy that thrilled the world when a single message from the Government of the United States brought through our Minister the first news of the safety of the besieged diplomats.

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCES.

At the beginning of the nineteenth century there was not a mile of steam railroad on the globe. Now there are enough miles to make its circuit many times. Then there was not a line of electric telegraph; now we have a vast mileage traversing all lands and all seas. God and man have linked the nations together. No nation can longer be indifferent to any other. And as we are brought more and more in touch with each other the less occasion is there for misunderstanding, and the stronger the disposition, when we have differences, to adjust them in the court of arbitration, which is the noblest form for the settlement of international disputes.

NATIONAL PROSPERITY.

My fellow citizens, trade statistics indicate that this country is in a state of unexampled prosperity. The figures are almost appalling. They show that we are utilizing our fields and forests and mines, and that we are furnishing profitable employment to the millions of workmen throughout the United States, bringing comfort and happiness to their homes, and making it possible to lay by savings for old age and disability. That all the people are participating in this great prosperity is seen in every American community and shown by the enormous and unprecedented deposits in our savings banks. Our duty is the care and security of these deposits, and their safe investment demands the highest integrity and the best business capacity of those in charge of these depositories of the people's earnings.

We have a vast and intricate business, built up through years of toil and struggle, in which every part of the country has its stake, which will not permit of either neglect or of undue selfishness. No narrow, sordid policy will subserve it. The greatest skill and wisdom on the part of manufacturers and producers will be required to hold and increase it. Our industrial enterprises, which have grown to such great proportions, affect the homes and occupations of the people and the welfare of the country. Our capacity to produce has developed so enormously and our products have so multiplied that the problem of more markets requires our urgent and immediate attention. Only a broad and enlightened policy will keep what we have. No other policy will get more. In these times of marvelous business energy and gain we ought to be looking to the future, strengthening the weak places in our industrial and commercial systems, that we may be ready for any storm or strain.

RECIPROCITY.

By sensible trade arrangements which will not interrupt our home production, we shall extend the outlets for our increasing surplus.

A system which provides a mutual exchange of commodities is manifestly essential to the continued and healthful growth of our export trade. We must not repose in fancied security that we can forever sell everything and buy little or nothing. If such a thing were possible, it would not be best for us or for those with whom we deal. We should take from our customers such of their products as we can use without harm to our industries and labor. Reciprocity is the natural outgrowth of our wonderful industrial development, under the domestic policy now firmly established. What we produce beyond our domestic consumption must have a vent abroad. The excess must be relieved through a foreign outlet, and we should sell everywhere we can and buy wherever the buying will enlarge our sales and productions, and thereby make a greater demand for home labor.

The period of exclusiveness is past. The expansion of our trade and commerce is the pressing problem. Commercial wars are unprofitable. A policy of good will and friendly trade relations will prevent reprisals. Reciprocity treaties are in harmony with the spirit of the times; measures of retaliation are not.

If perchance some of our tariffs are no longer needed, for revenue or to encourage and protect our industries at home, why should they not be employed to extend and promote our markets abroad?

OUR MARKETS ABROAD.

Then, too, we have inadequate steamship service. New lines of steamers have already been put in commission between the Pacific coast ports of the United States and those of the western coasts of Mexico and Central and South America. These should be followed up with direct steamship lines between the eastern coast of the United States and South American ports. One of the needs of the times is direct commercial lines from our vast fields of production to the fields of consumption that we have but barely touched. Next in advantage to having the thing to sell is to have the convenience to carry it to the buyer. We must encourage our merchant marine. We must have more ships. They must be under the American flag, built and manned and owned by Americans. These will not only be profitable in a commercial sense: they will be messengers of peace and amity wherever they go. We must build the Isthmian canal, which will unite the two oceans and give a straight line of water communication with the western coasts of Central and South America and Mexico. The construction of a Pacific cable cannot be longer postponed.

In the furtherance of these objects of national interest and concern you are performing an important part. This Exposition would have touched the heart of that American statesman whose mind was ever alert and thought ever constant for a larger commerce and a truer fraternity of the republics of the new world. His broad American spirit is felt and manifested here. He needs no identification to an assemblage of Americans anywhere, for the name of Blaine is inseparably associated with the Pan-

American movement which finds this practical and substantial expression, and which we all hope will be firmly advanced by the Pan-American Congress that assembles this autumn in the capital of Mexico. The good work will go on. It cannot be stopped. These buildings will disappear; this creation of art and beauty and industry will perish from sight, but their influence will remain to “Make it live beyond its too short living,

With praises and thanksgiving.”

VICTORIES OF PEACE.

Who can tell the new thoughts that have been awakened, the ambitions fired and the high achievements that will be wrought through this Exposition? Gentlemen, let us ever remember that our interest is in concord, not conflict, and that our real eminence rests in the victories of peace, not those of war. We hope that all who are represented here may be moved to higher and nobler effort for their own and the world's good, and that out of this city may come, not only greater commerce and trade for us all, but, more essential than these, relations of mutual respect, confidence and friendship which will deepen and endure.

Our earnest prayer is that God will graciously vouchsafe prosperity, happiness and peace to all our neighbors, and like blessings to all the peoples and Powers of earth.

ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT McKINLEY.

President McKinley who had been resting for a month at his home in Canton, Ohio, went to Buffalo on September 4, to deliver an address on September 5, which had been set apart as President's day. This address, which precedes this article in the Almanac, would have been a notable public utterance if the President had not been assassinated; as it turned out it became the farewell address of Mr. McKinley to the American people.

On Friday, September 6—the day after the delivery of the speech—the Presidential party visited Niagara Falls. Returning to Buffalo early in the afternoon Mrs. McKinley was sent to the house of Mr. Milburn, President of the Exposition, where the President and his wife were guests, while President McKinley drove to the Temple of Music, where he was to hold a public reception. He was accompanied by Mr. Milburn, Secretary Cortelyou and others. Taking his place the President, guarded by secret-service agents, began to receive the tens of thousands who sought to shake his hand. The reception had not lasted many minutes before a youth approached the President who had his hand wrapped in a handkerchief. The President held out his hand, but the youth instead of accepting it fired two shots from a revolver concealed in his bandaged hand. One shot passed through the President's stomach and lodged in the muscles of his back. The other probably struck a button and glanced off. It bruised the flesh but fell harmlessly to the floor when his clothing was removed. In an instant the assassin was knocked down and secured, but the fatal wound had been inflicted. He gave the name of Nieman, but was soon recognized as Leon Czolgosz, a native American descended from Polish emigrants. His home was in Cleveland, Ohio, and his parents were hard working, respectable people. Czolgosz denied that he was the agent of Anarchists, but admitted that he had been influenced by Anarchistic teachings, chiefly those of Emma Goldman, whose lectures he had attended. The Goldman woman and many other Anarchists were arrested, but there was no evidence to connect them with the crime except in a general way and they were finally discharged from custody.

The President was taken at once to the hospital on the Exposition grounds, and there a surgical operation was performed which at first gave promise of success. For several days the bulletins issued by the surgeons promised recovery of their patient, but on the Friday following the shooting his condition became alarming, and on Saturday, September 14, he died.

The autopsy showed that he had been correctly treated, but that the wound inflicted was necessarily fatal. Nature had failed to repair the damage done by the assassin's bullet, partly because of the President's age, partly because of his physical condition, for, although in good condition to withstand ordinary attacks, he had led a sedentary life for so many years that he was ill prepared to overcome the effects of a wound in vital parts.

As the end approached the President chanted the first lines of his favorite hymn, “Nearer My God to Thee,” and a little later he said, “Good bye all! good bye! It is God's way. His will be done.” These were his last words.

The mourning over his death was universal, for, in spite of political differences of opinion, President McKinley was generally respected. There was no party and no faction of a party represented by his assassin. Just two weeks after the President had left Canton in perfect health his remains were deposited in Westlawn Cemetery near the graves of his two children. In the meantime a public funeral had been held at Washington, D. C.

The assassin, Leon Czolgosz, was tried with all the forms of law. He was given eminent counsel who were, however, unable to offer any defense, for experts found him to be sane and he never exhibited any regret for his crime. He was found guilty of murder in the first degree on September 24, and sentenced to be electrocuted. On October 29 he paid the penalty of his crime, and his body and all his belongings were destroyed by quicklime after the execution.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S PLEDGE.

Theodore Roosevelt hurried to Buffalo upon receiving news of the President's death, and on September 15 took the oath of office as President in the library of the residence of Ansley Wilcox, a personal friend. Immediately thereafter he said: “In this hour of deep and terrible national bereavement, I wish to state that it shall be my aim to continue absolutely unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace and prosperity and honor of our beloved country.”

The great, far-reaching significance of this pledge to continue the policy of the dead President, announced at the very threshold of a new governmental regime, profoundly impressed his hearers. His first act was to ask the members of the Cabinet to retain their portfolios, in order to aid him to conduct the Government on the lines laid down by him whose policy he had declared he would uphold.

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S MEMORIAL ADDRESS.

On September 19 Princeton University paid tribute to the late President by impressive memorial services at which ex-President Cleveland delivered the following address:

"To-day the grave closes over the dead body of the man but lately chosen by the people of the United States from among their number to represent their nationality, to preserve, protect and defend their Constitution, to faithfully execute the laws ordained for their welfare, and to safely hold and keep the honor and integrity of the Republic. His term of service is ended—not by expiration of time, but by the tragedy of assassination. He has passed from public sight—not joyously bearing the garlands and wreaths of his countrymen's approving acclaim, but amid the sobs and tears of a mourning nation. He has gone to his home—not a habitation of earthly peace and quiet, bright with domestic comfort and joy, but to the dark and narrow house appointed for all the sons of men, there to rest until the morning light of the resurrection shall gleam in the East.

"All our people loved their dead President. His kindly nature and lovable traits of character and his amiable consideration for all about him will long be in the minds and hearts of his countrymen. He loved them in return with such patriotism and unselfishness that in the hour of their grief and humiliation he would say to them, 'It is God's will; I am content. If there is a lesson in my life or death, let it be taught to those who still live, and have the destiny of their country in their keeping.'

"Let us then, as our dead is buried out of our sight, seek for the lessons and the admonitions that may be suggested by the life and death which constitute our theme.

"First in my thoughts are the lessons to be learned from the career of William McKinley by the young men who make up the student body of our university. These lessons are not obscure nor difficult. They teach the value of study and mental training; but they teach more impressively that the road to usefulness and to the only success worth having will be missed or lost except it is sought and kept by the light of those qualities of heart which it is sometimes supposed may safely be neglected or subordinated in university surroundings. This is a great mistake. Study, and study hard; but never let the thought enter your minds that study alone or the greatest possible accumulation of learning alone will lead you to the heights of usefulness and success.

"The man who is universally mourned to-day achieved the highest distinction which this great country can confer on any man, and he lived a useful life. He was not deficient in education; but with all you will hear of his grand career and of his services to his country and his fellow-citizens you will not hear that either the high place he reached or what he accomplished was due entirely to his education. You will, instead, constantly hear, as accounting for his great success, that he was obedient and affectionate as a son, patriotic and faithful as a soldier, honest and upright as a citizen, tender and devoted as a husband, and truthful, generous, unselfish, moral and clean in every relation of life. He never thought any of these things too weak for manliness. Make no mistake. Here was a most distinguished man, a great man, a useful man, who became distinguished, great and useful because he had and retained unimpaired the qualities of heart which I fear university students sometimes feel like keeping in the background or abandoning.

"There is a most serious lesson for all of us in the tragedy of our late President's death. The shock of it is so great, it is hard at this time to read this lesson calmly. We can hardly fail to see, however, behind the bloody deed of the assassin horrible figures and forces from which it will not do to turn away. If we are to escape further attack upon our peace and security, we must boldly and resolutely grapple with the monster of anarchy. It is not a thing that we can safely leave to be dealt with by party or partisanship. Nothing can guarantee us against its menace except the teaching and practice of the best citizenship, the exposure of the ends and aims of the gospel of discontent and hatred of social order and the brave enactment and execution of repressive laws.

"Our universities and colleges cannot refuse to join in the battle against the tendencies of anarchy. Their help in discovering and warning against the relationship between vicious counsels and deeds of blood and their steadying influence upon the elements of unrest cannot fail to be of inestimable value.

"By the memory of our murdered President, let us resolve to cultivate and preserve the qualities that made him great and useful, and let us determine to meet the call of patriotic duty in every time of our country's danger or need."

IN THE FIRST CHURCH.

In the First Church, Princeton, on the same day, Mr. Cleveland said:

"My friends, I could not refrain from saying a word this afternoon, and it must be only a word. The death of our lamented President and the solemnities that followed it, have especially touched me. I not only sustain my full share of the grief which is common to all my fellow-citizens, but it seems to me that I have been brought within a more inner circle of relationship to these things which is exclusively my own. I recall with sharp distinctness when Mr. McKinley came from his home to receive on a surrender from my hands the great office to which he had been elected. I remember the pleasant social meetings we had together, and the technical formalities that passed between us at the time, and I remember how through it all the incoming President in his amiable manner manifested his serious appreciation of the responsibilities he was about to assume. An incident, which is interesting now, occurred on our way to the Capitol, where he was to take the oath of office. As we sat side by side amid the cheers of many thousands of his rejoicing fellow-citizens and friends, while he acknowledged these hearty greetings in the most friendly manner, he wore the sober expression that plainly showed his thought was on the solemn things that awaited him. I shall never forget his manner when he turned to me and said: 'What an impressive thing it is to assume tremendous responsibilities.' I have always thought since that I was in possession of the key to his manner of administration.

"I recall our parting at the White House on our return there from the inauguration ceremonies and the exchange of hearty good wishes for each other—he, the President, and I, a private citizen. As I held his hand and wished for him the greatest measure of success, I added: ‘And I hope, Mr. President, when your term ends you will not have all the reasons that I now have to welcome retirement.’

“Hardly more than forty-eight hours ago I went to Washington again, and, for the first time since I went with Mr. McKinley, I again visited the Capitol building. Again my presence was related to him, but my way there was lined with quiet, sad, weeping men and women, and when I arrived I stood by his coffin. He had met the responsibility he so keenly realized when we went together there. The manner in which he had met and borne it had been known to God and approved by his fellow-countrymen, and his accounts had been submitted to God for final audit. As the incidents of the time when I saw him assume these responsibilities crowded into my mind, the thought came upon me with tremendous impressiveness that I had seen and been related in a most intimate way to the beginning of a distinguishing Presidential career of which the end was before me in death—death with honor and death without fear of the judgment seat of God. What is there left behind for our people by the President we mourn? He has left us a priceless gift in his example of a useful and pure life, of his fidelity to public trust, and his demonstration of the value of the kindly virtues that not only ennoble mankind, but lead to success. It is for us who remain to enforce this example and make it a saving influence for good in all our progress as a nation and in every vicissitude that awaits our future.

“We are in church to-day; and the churches throughout the land are open to memorial services. These services should be but the beginning of more strenuous exertions on the part of our churches to arouse our people to their obligations in the fulfillment of every civic duty and to the enforcement of the fact that the laws of God, if kept and obeyed, are sufficient for all our needs and vicissitudes. God still lives and reigns, and He will not turn His face from us, who have always been objects of His kindness and love.”

RIPPER LEGISLATION.

One result of the struggle over the Senatorship from Pennsylvania was to give Senator Quay absolute control over legislative action. A majority of the members had been elected to oppose him, but, having succeeded in converting that majority into a minority, the Legislature was thereafter obedient to his will. His strongest county opponent was Senator Flinn, of Pittsburg, the Republican leader of Allegheny county. To break the power of Senator Flinn what became known as the Ripper bill was introduced in the Legislature. It was a bill to change the government of second-class cities, and, although aimed at Pittsburg, necessarily included Scranton. Under its provisions the Mayors of these cities could be removed from office by the Governor (Quay's Governor) and Recorders appointed in their place. The act became known as the Ripper bill because of a remark by Senator Quay to the general effect that it would rip Senator Flinn up the back. The constitutionality of the law was sustained by the Supreme Court, and Governor Stone removed the Mayor of Pittsburg and put Brown in his place as Recorder. The latter did exactly what was expected of him—he turned the government of Pittsburg over to the opponents of Senator Flinn. But the revolt against machine rule in the State became so formidable that it became necessary to conciliate Senator Flinn. What happened no one who will can tell. But this result followed: Senator Flinn gave earnest support to the administration ticket, so that it rolled up its usual majority in Allegheny county, and soon after the election Governor Stone removed Recorder Brown from office and appointed in his place J. O. Brown, a staunch friend of Senator Flinn, who at once proceeded to restore Senator Flinn's friends to office. The State outside of Philadelphia and Allegheny had voted by 17,000 majority against the administration, but this was easily overcome by the corrupt vote of Philadelphia and Pittsburg. The “ripper” legislation had served its purpose. It had helped to maintain the power of the State machine. Its effect upon the cities affected by it was not considered, every consideration being subordinated to the effort to maintain the control of the machine over the politics of Pennsylvania.

FREDERICK FRALEY.

Frederick Fraley who died September 23, 1901, in his 98th year, was one of the most useful citizens of Philadelphia. He had been in public life for eighty years. He was born in Philadelphia, May 28, 1804. When he was 18 years of age he joined the volunteer firemen and was always thereafter engaged in some public service. In 1824 he helped to found the Franklin Institute and was the last survivor of the original members. For many years he was Treasurer of the Institute. He entered City Councils in 1834. A resolution offered by him led to the construction of the Philadelphia Gas Works and he was one of the original Board of Trustees. He also served in the Senate of Pennsylvania and was one of the directors of Girard College in its early days, preparing the plan for its organization and serving for some time as President. He was one of the founders of the Union Club and of its successor the Union League, and helped to found the National Board of Trade of which he was President from its organization in 1868 to the day of his death. He was one of the chief promoters of the Centennial Exposition of 1876 and the Treasurer of its Board of Finance. He was also the oldest trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, having served in that capacity forty-seven years; President of the American Philosophical Society from 1879; President of the Philadelphia Board of Trade and of the Western Savings Fund for many years. His mind remained vigorous and clear to the end, but for several years his eyesight had failed him and he was in a weakened physical condition.

ACCORDING to the latest researches the earth is practically solid to the center, and not a mass of molten material with a solid crust of only about fifty miles. The molten material thrown from volcanoes is supposed to come from pockets, or perhaps forms a shell at no great depth below the surface.

LOCAL CHRONOLOGY.

[From December 1, 1900, to November 30, 1901.]

1900.—December 4. Judge Biddle refused to grant articles of incorporation to the Deutsch Amerikanischer Volksfest Verein, for the stated reasons that the organization does not need a charter, and that its title is in a foreign language.

December 5. In an opinion deciding that the will of Joseph M. Bennett is legal, Judge Hanna, in the Orphans' Court, finds that Mrs. Imogene E. Bennett Wellens, the contestant and disinherited daughter, had not proved that her father lacked testamentary capacity when the will was executed.

— Suits brought by the Commonwealth to recover on the bail bonds ordered forfeited, because of the non-appearance for trial of defendants in Seventh ward election fraud cases, were appealed by the bondsmen to the Superior Court.

December 6. Harry E. Sollenberger and Ezra Sheets, who were in charge of the "Beulah Orphanage" last July, pleaded guilty to manslaughter, growing out of the death in that place of a child 7 months old. The defendants, who are "faith curists," had refused to call a physician to attend the infant. They were sent to prison for three months.

December 7. Frank Di Ienno was convicted of involuntary manslaughter in exposing for sale in front of a baker shop in South Eighth street on Fourth of July torpedoes, the explosion of which caused the death of three children and dangerous injuries to six others. Antonio Mammarello, the baker, and Isaac Harris, the 12-year-old colored boy, who discharged a revolver causing the torpedoes to explode, were acquitted of a like charge.

— The Art Club gold medal was awarded to C. Harry Eaton, of New York, for his painting, "The Willows."

December 14. Permission was granted by the Park Commission to the Colonial Dames to fit up two rooms in the Randolph Mansion in Fairmount Park. The society will keep the rooms in good condition and place in them colonial relics.

December 17. Select Council concurred in the passage by Common Council of the resolution authorizing the City Solicitor to take action to recover any commissions belonging to the city and retained by City Treasurer McMichael during his term of office.

— Judge McPherson, in the United States Circuit Court, decided that Collector of Internal Revenue McClain had no lawful right to exact a tax upon the estate of the late Isaiah V. Williamson, and directed that judgment be entered against the Collector for $185,361.26, with interest, making the total $193,927.40.

— Mrs. Teresa Haug, aged 60 years, was almost instantly killed in a collision at Forty-fourth street and Westminster avenue between the wagon in which she was driving and a trolley car. Matthew Armond, the driver of the wagon, was seriously injured.

December 18. The convention to revise the rules of the Republican party adopted changes that centralize the control of the organization in the City Committee.

— A Coroner's jury decided that Charles Jacobs and Jacob Klaus, employees of the Bergner & Engel Company, came to their death from congestion of the kidneys, due to inhaling fumes of wood alcohol while varnishing casks, and exonerated the Company from blame.

December 19. Fire which is supposed to have started in the drying room destroyed the building on Delaware avenue, above Fairmount avenue, occupied by the Franklin Baker Company, manufacturers of prepared cocoanut. Loss estimated at $200,000.

— Thomas Dorsey, who was judge in the Fourteenth Division of the Third ward at the recent election, was convicted of charges of conspiracy to procure an illegal vote and conspiracy to make a false return, and was sentenced by Judge Audenried to nine months' imprisonment.

December 25. Harry L. Wilbur, son of H. O. Wilbur, a widely-known chocolate manufacturer, was thrown from his horse and killed during a fox hunt near Berwyn. Mr. Wilbur, who was 37 years old, was a graduate of Amherst College.

December 31. Philadelphia's welcome to the twentieth century was begun with an illumination of the City Hall. Then followed a parade of the First, Second and Third Regiments and the Third Battalion of the Sixth Regiment, a concert in the court yard and a reception in the Mayor's room. At midnight there was a pyrotechnic display from the roof and a military salute. Independence Hall was illuminated with candles, the bell rang in the new century and the First Regiment fired a salute.

1901.—January 1. A parade of mummers was the concluding number on the programme of the city's welcome to the new century, and the line was reviewed by the Mayor and Councilmen at the City Hall. Prizes aggregating $1725 were awarded, the Elkton Association being adjudged the first among the fancy dressed clubs, and the White Caps to be the most deserving among the comics.

— William McClary gave the Masonic Home of Pennsylvania $20,000 as a memorial to his son, the late Charles J. McClary, a former manager of the Home, and $30,000 to establish a home for orphans of Masons.

January 2. Before the Geographical Society Dr. R. Donaldson Smith delivered an address descriptive of his exploration to the east of the Upper Nile. President Amos Bonsall presented to Dr. Smith the Elisha Kent Kane medal in recognition of his work as an African explorer.

— In consequence of protests from various ministerial and religious associations, the Mayor rescinded the order to have Independence Hall open on Sundays.

— James H. Priestly, a retired carpet manufacturer, was accidentally asphyxiated by illuminating gas. He was 82 years old.

January 3. Suit was begun by the city against City Treasurer McMichael to determine the legal ownership of certain fees and commissions retained by him out of the receipts of the office under a claim of right.

January 4. Chief Webster, of the Bureau of Surveys, submitted to Councils' joint Special Committee plans for elevating the Reading Railway tracks on Ninth street and abolishing its grade crossings at Frankford and Kensington avenues, on its Port Richmond branch. The estimated cost, including land damage, is $8,342,000.

— Frederick Clark, a conveyancer and real-estate agent, pleaded guilty to three bills of indictment, charging him with defrauding clients by means of bogus mortgages, and was sentenced to imprisonment for five years.

— In its final presentment the Grand Jury for December recommended that the whipping post be established for the punishment of wife beaters.

— Frederick Fraley was re-elected President of the American Philosophical Society at its annual meeting.

— The personal estate of the late James McManes was appraised at $2,408,205.73.

January 5. Henry Howard, who died at the Old Man's Home, had lived in three centuries, having been born January 24, 1799.

January 7. At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Reading Railway Company the offer made by a syndicate represented by J. Pierpont Morgan of a controlling interest in the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey was accepted and a resolution was adopted authorizing the Reading's officers to arrange for the purchase.

— City Treasurer Moore and Register of Wills Singer on assuming the duties of their respective offices gave out statements of intentions concerning the disposition of fees, in which both promise to relinquish extra compensation, provided that legislation prohibiting the retaining of such compensation is enacted before their terms expire.

January 8. Director Haddock requested the American Product Company to resume the collecting and disposing of the city's garbage, the American Contracting and Manufacturing Company having refused to continue the work because of police interference. The extra cost to the city is $114,200.

January 10. It was testified at a hearing before Magistrate Kochersperger that the Rev. Charles P. Riegel, who was found dead in the hallway of a house in North Eighth street, had been enticed into an adjoining house and there given "knock-out drops" and robbed. This testimony is corroborative of the confession said to have been made by Robert Bryan, arrested in New York City for complicity in the murder. Jacob Wynne, Charles Burns, Anna Miller, Ella Barret and a boy, known as "Kid" Howard, who are alleged to have been present when the clergyman was induced to enter the place, were held to await the action of the Coroner.

January 11. It was unanimously agreed by Councils' joint special committee to report favorably an ordinance to create a loan of $8,500,000 for the abolishment of grade crossings along Ninth street and on the Port Richmond branch of the Reading Railway. Chief Webster, of the Survey Bureau, estimated the total cost to be $8,342,000. President Harris announced that the Reading Railway Company will pay $1,500,000 of this amount.

January 15. T. Morris Perot, President of the Mercantile Library Company, with which he had been connected forty-one years, announced his resignation at the annual meeting. The Board of Directors was directed to examine plans for improving the status of the library, including the possible sale of the property, and report a definite plan for the stockholders' approval within nine months.

January 16. In the United States Circuit Court Judge McPherson delivered an opinion dismissing the equity proceedings instituted by heirs of Stephen Girard to recover possession of coal lands in Cumberland and Schuylkill counties.

January 17. Councils' special joint committee ordered a favorable report to be made on the plans prepared by Chief Webster, of the Survey Bureau, for abolishing grade crossings along Ninth street and on the Richmond branch of the Reading Railway.

— John Schock, who admitted that he had voted in both the Fourth and the Ninth divisions of the Eleventh ward at the November election, was sentenced by Judge Wiltbank to three years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $300.

— Having pleaded guilty to voting in the Second and Fourth divisions of the Fourteenth ward at the November election, Richard Brogan was sentenced to six months' imprisonment by Judge Finletter.

— Rear Admiral George W. Sumner, the successor to Rear Admiral Casey as commandant at the League Island Navy Yard, arrived at the yard with his family.

January 18. The Citizens' Union for Good Government was organized by the committee appointed at the Academy of Music town meeting on January 9, and a declaration of principles was adopted. The Union aims, among other things, to arouse public sentiment to the danger of the widespread apathy prevailing among citizens on questions of public moment, to secure the nomination and election of men possessing character, capacity and fitness to public office, to prevent unjust legislation, to secure better election laws, to assist in the suppression of vice, punish those guilty of maladministration in office or misappropriation of public funds and co-operate with other organizations formed for similar purposes.

January 19. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict that Rev. Charles P. Riegel, who was found dead in a hallway on Eighth street, above Callowhill, on the morning of January 5, came to his death from opium poison administered by Robert Bryan, Jacob Wynne, Annie Miller, Ella Barrett, Edward Hartman, Stephen Bryan, Paul J. Jones, Harry Leech, Paul Goodwin and a boy known as the "Bowery Kid."

January 20. Fire in the wire works of Edward Darby & Sons, on Bread street, which spread to the stove warehouse of F. M. Borden & Bro., C. E. Porter's tinware establishment and other buildings, caused nearly $40,000 damage. More than a dozen firemen were burned or frost bitten, only one severely.

January 22. In a suit brought by a passenger to recover damages for ejection from a trolley car a Common Pleas jury returned a verdict for the defendant, thus deciding that it is within the discretion of a conductor to eject a prospective rider who carries a bundle above the average size.

January 23. Sitting as a committing magistrate, Judge Finletter began an inquiry into charges made by the North American that the police were suppressing evidence in policy and "speak-easy" cases.

January 25. Investigation by Judge Finletter of published charges that the police were suppressing evidence in cases against "policy dealers" was concluded. Directors of the First Sectional School Board testified that the resolutions commending the police, adopted at a meeting on Thursday evening, had been agreed upon at a caucus held Wednesday night.

January 26. Law and Order men raided the rooms of the Morton Club, Twelfth street, above Market, and the Commonwealth Club, in Sansom street, above Tenth, and in each place seized a large quantity of liquors and also gambling paraphernalia. The police to whom a warrant for the arrest of the proprietors of one of these places had been given to serve had reported their inability to locate the establishment.

January 28. Concerning the published charges of suppression of evidence of the selling of lottery policy to school children, Judge Finletter handed down an opinion that the testimony produced at the recent hearing showed that pupils bought policy, but that the police were not obstructing the prosecution of policy dealers.

January 31. Judge Wiltbank remitted the fine of $10 he imposed on Dr. William D. Moore for contempt of court for being late in answering a subpoena. Dr. Moore was detained by a patient seriously ill with diphtheria. The Judge said he was not aware of the serious nature of the case, "yet it were better that the patient should die than the Commonwealth witnesses should place themselves in contempt of court."

— James H. Moore, colored, messenger for the Republican State Committee, and an active politician, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment by Judge Finletter on his plea of guilty to charges of selling liquor without a license and keeping a disorderly house. He had been arrested on a Law and Order writ on the "Patterson Club," in Camac street, below Walnut.

February 4. The centenary of Chief Justice John Marshall's elevation to the Supreme Court of the United States was celebrated under the auspices of the Law Association and Lawyers' Club, the Pennsylvania Bar Association and the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania.

February 5. It was agreed by the Survey Committee of Councils to have prepared an ordinance to place on the city plan a street, 30 feet in width, to extend along the western end of Christ Church, from Church street to Filbert, with a view to the better protection of the historic edifice from fire.

February 6. Mrs. John Fox killed her infant by forcing carbolic acid down its throat and attempted to kill another child, aged 4 years, and then herself by means of the same poison.

February 7. The Controller's annual statement shows that the total "revenues" last year were nearly $33,000,000—including about $5,500,000 from loans—and that the total expenditures were $30,628,246. Three millions were added to the debt.

February 8. Judge Ashman decided that Colonel Joseph M. Bennett did not suffer from insane delusions, and dismissed the contest by his daughter as to the validity of Colonel Bennett's will.

February 13. Captain Vladimir Behr and the other officers of the new Russian cruiser Variag gave a farewell reception to nearly 600 invited guests on board the warship at Cramps'.

February 14. Common Council passed the bill to place on the city plan American street, 35 feet in width, from Church street to Filbert street, west of Second, the object being to afford better protection to Christ Church against fire.

February 19. Joseph Swope, an employee of the melting room in the Mint, pleaded guilty to stealing fifty-five abraded nickels, and was sentenced to eighteen months in the Eastern Penitentiary.

February 21. The Board of Directors of the Mercantile Library elected officers, with Richard Wood as President, to succeed T. Morris Perot, resigned.

February 22. Bishop Potter, of New York, delivered the oration at the University of Pennsylvania celebration of Washington Day at the Academy of Music. Honorary degrees were conferred on Rear Admiral Melville, Bishop Potter, President Pritchett, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Judge Clement Biddle Penrose, the Rev. John Sparhawk Jones and President Prather, of the University of Texas.

— During the progress of the official count of the vote cast at Tuesday's election it developed that while the return sheets of the Eighth division of the Seventeenth ward indicated the election of the Republican candidate for judge of the division, a memorandum showed that the Municipal League nominee had received the majority of votes, and the Court, therefore, declared the latter elected.

February 25. In obedience to orders from the "front," forty-six street sergeants engaged for the first time in the form of exercise known as the "setting-up drill."

February 27. A fire which started in Delaware avenue, above Race street, badly damaged buildings occupied by the Phillips Oil Company, Cunningham & Co., dealers in oil, and several adjoining structures. The loss exceeded $100,000.

February 28. The building at the southeast corner of Willow street and York avenue, occupied by Emil Hubschman, manufacturer of leather fittings and suspender trimmings, was burned out, as was a three-story dwelling adjoining. Several other near-by dwellings were damaged by smoke and water. The total loss was estimated at $50,000.

— Judge Sulzberger granted a preliminary injunction restraining the Mayor and Director of Public Works from awarding the contract for the construction of a filter plant at Roxborough, the laying of pipe, etc., to Daniel J. McNichol, and set a day for a hearing on a bill in equity entered by the firm of Ryan & Kelly, contractors, who ask that the Court compel a readjustment of the specifications in order that they may be enabled to make an intelligent bid.

March 1. In its final presentment the Grand Jury for the February term expressed its belief that the American Contracting Company was physically and financially able to perform the requirements of the contract awarded it for the removal of garbage, but was hampered by the police. The contract was taken from the Company and awarded to a higher bidder at an added cost of more than $100,000.

— David S. Ogden, convicted of unlawfully selling oleomargarine, was sentenced by Judge McPherson, in the United States District Court, to imprisonment for two months and to pay a fine of $200 and costs. The defendant took an appeal to the United States Circuit Court and was released on $1000 bail.

March 2. Captain Beckwith and crew of nine sailors, of the four-masted schooner George W. Bailey, were rescued at sea, 1000 miles out of her course, after the vessel had lost her rudder and the sailors had been helpless more than two weeks. The men were brought to port by the German steamer Bremerhaven.

March 4. The Board of Judges elected James Butterworth as a member of the Board of Education from the Twenty-ninth ward, and re-elected William H. Staake, Joseph S. Rosengarten and N. After viewing the places along the Delaware river front and hearing the views of leading physicians who accompanied the members on the trip of inspection, the Department of Charities and Correction agreed to recommend to the Mayor and City Councils that Petty's Island be purchased as a site for an almshouse and a hospital for the insane. It was suggested that a maternity hospital, a home for foundlings and a hospital for contagious diseases, also, could be erected on the property. The opinion was expressed that possession could be acquired for $500,000 or less, and that the total cost of construction would be about $3,000,000.

— The indictment presented against John Haggenbotham, charging him with the murder of his mother, Sarah A. Haggenbotham, was ignored by the Grand Jury, which returned a true bill against Mary Wright, colored, accusing her of the crime.

— William Jordan, aged 25 years, shot Mrs. Margaret Kitzen three times and then fired a bullet into his own brain, dying almost instantly. The woman expired about nine hours later. She had spurned his professions of love.

June 26. After an existence of thirty-one years, during which it expended upward of $24,000,000, the Public Buildings Commission held its last meeting. In accordance with the provisions of an act of Assembly and an ordinance of Councils the control of the City Hall is transferred to the Department of Public Safety, under the immediate charge of the Bureau of City Property.

June 28. District Attorney P. F. Rothermel, Jr., was formally notified of his nomination at a town meeting and signified his acceptance.

June 30. Twenty deaths resulted out of many hundred heat prostrations. The highest temperature was 102 degrees at 3.45 P. M. This was on the top of the Post Office building. Thermometers on the street indicated several degrees higher.

July 1. The City Hall was formally transferred by the Building Commission to the city.

— The maximum temperature was 102.8, and it was the hottest day Philadelphia has ever known, according to the records at the Weather Bureau and the Pennsylvania Hospital. There were seventy-six deaths and more than 400 cases of heat prostration were treated at the hospitals.

July 2. The Director of Public Works awarded the contract for the construction of a water conduit from Torresdale to the pumping station at Lardner's Point to D. J. McNichol for $1,281,000, and to be completed within nine months. E. D. Smith & Co. offered to do the work for $1,246,131 and within fifteen months.

July 4. It was noted in almost every section of the city that the observance of Independence Day was less noisy than in other years. About 5000 persons attended the municipal demonstration in Independence Square, where Wu Ting-fang, the Chinese Minister, delivered an oration. Fully twice that number witnessed the contests in the people's regatta on the Schuylkill river, their enjoyment being marred by the rain, which also interfered with various other local celebrations and caused the postponement of fireworks displays.

— Fire of unknown origin in the establishment of A. A. Jewett & Co., dealers in meats, etc., at Noble and Willow streets, damaged machinery, stock and building to the extent of from $100,000 to $150,000. Several firemen were overcome by heat while fighting the flames.

July 6. Count de Sugny, formerly commander of the French cruiser D'Estrees, who had been ill with typhoid fever since the cruiser visited Philadelphia in May, left the Medico-Chirurgical Hospital for Atlantic City.

— Orders were given the police not to permit liquor seized by Law and Order Society agents to be taken to police stations, or to allow patrol wagons to be used to convey the Society's prisoners to Magistrates' offices for hearings.

July 8. Mary Wright, colored, was arraigned before Judge Stevenson on the charge of murdering Mrs. Sarah A. Hagenbotham, her mistress, and pleaded not guilty.

— Fifteen true bills of indictment were returned by the Grand Jury charging as many officers in various divisions in the Fifteenth ward with receiving votes of persons whose names were not on the assessors' lists without requiring proofs of their right to vote.

July 10. Councils' Committee on Finance agreed to report with a favorable recommendation an amendment to the Loan bill increasing the rate of interest. Favorable action was taken also upon a bill to create a temporary loan of $740,000 to meet shortages in several bureaus and provide for new projects, including $250,000 for dredging in the river, $50,000 for the speedway in the West Park, $50,000 for the purchase of a site for a manual training school in the southern section of the city and $75,000 for new bridges.

July 11. A Coroner's jury in finding that Ferdinand Winters, a youth, was drowned by the capsizing of a yacht near Riverton, characterized as inhuman the conduct of the crew of the steamboat Pokanoket in not having made an effort to rescue the men on the overturned craft. A recommendation also was made that steamboat racing be stopped.

July 15. In the will of the late Lewis Elkin the bulk of his large fortune is left to create a fund, out of which any unmarried female teacher, who shall have taught in the public schools for a period of twenty-five years, and has, at the time of her application, no means of support, will receive an annuity of $400. Payments to such teachers are to be begun one year after his death. It is believed the "Lewis Elkin Fund" will exceed $1,000,000.

— After a sensational hearing, in which he denounced the action of Magistrates and of the Law and Order Society's representatives in prosecuting "the poor and unfortunate" and provoked spirited rejoinders from Magistrate Eisenbrown and Secretary Gibboney, Judge Stevenson discharged from custody fourteen women who had been committed to the House of Correction on charges of keeping or being inmates of disorderly houses.

July 17. Judge Stevenson, in a letter to D. C. Gibboney, counsel for the Law and Order Society, recalled Mr. Gibboney's declaration that he had legal evidence that men in high position were and are the protectors of vice and crime in this city. The Judge said he would sit as a committing magistrate and "hear your testimony and issue warrants for the arrest of all persons against whom legal information is laid." In reply, Mr. Gibboney wrote to Judge Stevenson, declining to "lay any information" before his Honor. The attorney said in his letter: "Your Honor's remarks in court the other day indicated such a spirit of hostility to the methods and purposes of the organization which I represent as counsel that, in my judgment and that of my clients, the best use of the testimony in their possession would not be made by instituting proceedings before your Honor, under all the circumstances."

— A bequest of $13,000 in the will of the late Henry M. Phillips for the erection and maintenance of a memorial fountain in Fairmount Park became operative in consequence of the deaths of two sisters of Mr. Phillips, who was President of the Park Commission.

July 18. According to his announced purpose, D. C. Gibboney did not appear before Judge Stevenson, who was sitting as a committing magistrate to investigate charges made by the attorney for the Law and Order Society and Magistrate Eisenbrown that politicians, court officers and the police are protecting women charged with keeping or being inmates of disorderly houses, and in consequence a rule was entered upon him to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt of court. Magistrate Eisenbrown obeyed a subpoena, but declined to be sworn, in which action he was supported by counsel, whose advice was admitted by the Court to be legally sound.

— Chairman De Haven, of the Highway Committee, omitted from the batch of bills he called up for passage in Council one granting permission to John Wanamaker to construct a conduit under Thirteenth street to connect his store with a projected power house in Ludlow street, thus postponing action on the measure until after the summer recess.

July 19. Dr. Lawrence F. Flick, President of the Free Hospital for Poor Consumptives, announced that a camp for male patients would be opened within ten days in White Haven, where the erection of buildings will be begun in the fall.

July 20. On convening the Quarter Sessions Court for the consideration of the rule on Secretary D. C. Gibboney, of the Law and Order Society, to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court, Judge Stevenson read an opinion, in which he decided that the rule was technically defective and the proceeding should be dismissed.

July 22. Captain Jacob Swain, of the Clyde Line steamer Benefactor, was held in bail to answer the charge of manslaughter in refusing to lower a boat or make any effort to rescue Francis Fisher, who was drowned after the collision between the steamer and the yacht Spalpeen, off Seabright, N. J., on July 13.

July 23. The headless body of Francis Fisher was found in the surf at Asbury Park. The young man, who was a son of George Harrison Fisher, of this city, was drowned while trying to board the yacht Spalpeen from the deck of the Clyde Line steamship Benefactor, the two vessels having been in collision off Seagirt on the night of July 13.

July 28. Henry Schadewald's weaving mill was destroyed by fire to the extent, it was estimated, of $100,000, the loss being covered by insurance. Several firemen were overcome by smoke and one had an ankle sprained.

July 29. Judge Pennypacker filed an opinion granting a new trial to Amos Stirling, one of the three colored men convicted of the murder of Roy Wilson White. The Judge ruled that the admission as evidence of a certain photograph of the prisoner, upon the back of which extraneous matter was written, was improper and likely to create in the minds of the jury an impression unfavorable to the prisoner.

July 30. W. W. Lane, a convict in the Eastern Penitentiary, died of the effect of burns, the result of his setting fire to a straw mattress in his cell. It is believed his purpose was not to end his life, but to create excitement. The fire was quickly extinguished by a keeper.

— Louis Le Bron, 58 years old, was arrested on the charge of counterfeiting, and a complete collection of tools, with the exception of moulds, which the prisoner said he had destroyed, was found in his room along with 200 dimes and 200 nickles.

August 1. After a stormy debate the Jeffersonian Society adopted resolutions condemning the leadership of Donnelly and Ryan, and calling upon the State Convention to refuse to seat any delegates certified by them. An amendment expressing confidence in ex-Governor Pattison and in his announced purpose, as he expressed it in the meeting, to bring about the success of the Democratic party, was defeated. By a large majority the Society voted to recommend the nomination of Rothermel and Stevenson.

August 2. Law and Order Society agents testified at a hearing of persons charged with maintaining disreputable houses that the police of the Seventh and Eighth districts and politicians identified with the city administration are in direct connivance with the keepers of such places, and that money has been paid for immunity from punishment. Fifty-two women and four men found in dives were held for court.

August 5. Five buildings, stores and dwellings on the south side of Locust street, west of Tenth, were demolished by the explosion, it is said, of a tank of gasoline in a grocery store. Four persons are known to have lost their lives. Nearly forty others were injured and taken to the Pennsylvania and Jefferson Hospitals.

— Captain Hill, of the American Line steamer Belgenland, which arrived from Liverpool, told of the suicide of Patrick Grimes, a fireman, by drowning, and the heroism of John Price, an engineer, who jumped overboard in mid-ocean in a vain attempt to save his shipmate. When the steamer was stopped Price was about two miles astern and was picked up in an almost exhausted condition.

August 6. The bodies of Sarah Mountain, aged 35 years; Armstead Jeffries, colored, aged 23 years, and an unknown man, also colored, were found in the ruins of the houses in Locust street, above Tenth, wrecked by an explosion supposedly of gasoline, making the total number of deaths at the latest report seven.

— Representatives of the Union party, Municipal League, Allied Organizations for Good Government, Young Democracy, Jeffersonian Society and Citizens' Union, at a conference, resolved that "a complete State and county ticket, non-partisan in composition and thoroughly representative of administrative reform," should be recommended to the organizations represented for presentation to the people at the November election.

— Joseph King and Edward McConnell were committed to prison without bail to answer the charge of attempted highway robbery, and King with shooting Policeman Looney and three other persons while trying to escape.

September 20. After the Democratic County Convention nominated a "straight" Democratic ticket, former Governor Robert E. Pattison resigned the Chairmanship of the Democratic City Committee. Mr. Pattison said, in a letter to the committee: "After weeks of the most arduous labor, the action of the Convention convinces me that I am without voice or influence in the direction of the existing organization. Believing, as I do, that it is the overwhelming sentiment of the Democrats of Philadelphia that this is an occasion when we should unite with the independent Republicans for the overthrow of the corrupt ring which is disgracing the administration of public affairs, I am prepared to give my time and services towards any movement which will bring about such a condition of affairs as will insure complete fusion and will accomplish this result. I further believe that the most direct way of reaching such a result is the organization of a new Democratic committee, which will lead to the nomination of a fusion ticket such as will command the suffrages of the majority of voters of Philadelphia."

— A loving tribute to the late President McKinley was paid by the Union League, in special meeting, at which Joseph G. Darlington presided, and Colonel A. Loudon Snowden, ex-Judge Dimmer Beeber, United States Senator Penrose and Joel Cook made addresses. October 11. The Wilmington Steamboat Company has asked the United States District Court to limit its liability for damages arising from the explosion and burning of its steamboat City of Trenton, whereby twenty-four lives were lost and many persons were injured. The Company wishes the amount of liability not to exceed the value of the Company's interest in the steamer.

— After overruling a motion for a new trial for Amos Stirling, twice convicted of the murder of Roy Wilson White, Judge Audenried sentenced the prisoner to be hanged.

October 12. Before Judge Wiltbank, counsel for the city administration and Republican organization opposed the proposed purging of the assessors' lists in the several election districts of the city, and protested against the appointment of overseers of election. The Court decided favorably to the petitioners as to the striking from the lists the supposed fraudulent names by refusing to quash the petitions as moved by counsel for the Republican organization.

— Counsel for Mrs. Josephine C. English filed a petition in Common Pleas Court No. 5 to compel the Prothonotary to furnish him the master's report in the divorce proceedings between Mrs. English and A. L. English, Director of Public Safety.

October 14. Howard K. Sloan, D. Knight Finlay and Oscar S. Dunlap were committed to prison without bail to answer charges of conspiracy to assault, kidnap, secrete and rob Mabel Goodrich, and Henry E. Wallace on charges of being an accessory and of aiding and abetting the kidnapping.

— The tenth anniversary dinner of the Municipal League, held at Horticultural Hall, took the form of a testimonial to the retiring President, George Burnham, Jr., who was presented with a loving cup and set of engrossed resolutions. Finley Ackey was toastmaster, and speeches were made by Mr. Burnham, Charles J. Bonaparte, Clinton Rogers Woodruff and William Dudley Foulke. President Harry B. French, who was kept away by an accident, sent a written speech of greeting to the League, which was read by the Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tomkins

October 15. Richard C. Dale, a member of the class of '72, College, was elected a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, to succeed the late John C. Sims.

— David Work was killed by coming in contact with the framework of an electric light, while trying to recover a football that had lodged in it.

October 16. The work of purging the assessors' lists was begun before Judge Wiltbank, who ordered that twenty-one names be stricken off in five divisions.

— A warrant was served on William B. Ahern, former Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court, through his counsel, charging him with the embezzlement, as Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions, of $5000, which had been deposited with his predecessor in office, as a cash bail bond. The prosecutor is Henry Brooks, present Clerk of the Quarter Sessions.

October 17. Both branches of City Councils adopted a resolution authorizing the sending of the Liberty Bell and other relics from Independence Hall, in the care of four policemen, to the Charleston Exposition.

— Decision was reserved by the Superior Court on appeals by Edwin H. Vare, John F. Slater and Edward P. Mackin from the decision of Judge Sulzberger, making absolute the rule to forfeit the bonds entered by them for the appearance in court of Samuel Salter and five other men, who were indicted for election frauds in the Seventh ward, and are fugitives from justice.

— Judge Wiltbank, at the request of counsel for the Union party, ordered thirty-eight names stricken from the assessors' lists of voters in the Thirteenth and Seventeenth divisions of the Thirteenth ward.

— At a meeting in the Mayor's office a Citizens' Committee was formed to raise funds for a monument in Fairmount Park to President McKinley. John H. Converse was chosen Chairman and George C. Thomas, of Drexel & Co., Treasurer.

— William B. Ahern, ex-Clerk of the Quarter Sessions, waived a hearing and entered $2500 bail to answer in court a charge of embezzling $5000, representing a cash bail deposit received by him when he was in office.

October 18. Judge Wiltbank, against the protest of counsel for the Republican organization, ordered that twenty-seven out of twenty-nine names assessed as those of voters from the Salvation Army barracks, at Eighth and Vine streets, be struck from the list.

October 21. State Senator David Martin announced to the Republican Executive Committee of the Nineteenth ward his purpose to vote for District Attorney Rothermel and the other nominees of the Union party.

— Judge Sulzberger ordered sixty-three names stricken from the assessors' lists of voters in the Fifth ward. He decided that ordinarily a lodging house is not a place of residence, and a "wayfarer" is not a citizen.

— Counsel for Mrs. Josephine C. English withdrew proceedings begun in Common Pleas Court No. 5 to vacate the decree of the divorce suit brought by her against Abraham L. English, Director of Public Safety, announcing to Judge Martin his purpose to carry the case to the Superior Court.

October 22. Judge Sulzberger ordered stricken from the assessors' lists of voters in the Second, Seventh, Ninth, Tenth and Sixteenth divisions of the Fifth ward, the Seventh division of the Thirteenth and the Twenty-seventh division of the Twenty-second ward, nearly one hundred names.

— Thomas Marsh, a retired builder, who while a member of City Councils in the consolidation period is said to have originated the present system of numbering the streets west from the Delaware river, beginning a new 100 at each street, died, in his 89th year.

— While walking from her home, in Summit avenue, towards the railroad station at Jenkintown, Mrs. S. B. Hillman was attacked by a footpad, who gagged her by causing a piece of sticking plaster to adhere to her mouth, knocked her down, wrenched a pocketbook from her hand, and, while she lay prostrate, poured coal oil from a bottle upon her clothing, which he ignited with a match, and then ran away. Mrs. Hillman succeeding in casting off the burning skirt and getting back to the door of her home, where her cries brought assistance.

October 23. In the suit brought by Robert S. Johnston against the city, to recover $90,762.50 as a balance on the Boys' New High School, John D. Austin testified that while he was architect for the Board of Education, he told Johnston that the latter would have to add $30,000 to his proposal for the work, so that it might be divided between other bidders and himself. He further admitted that during 1897, 1898 and 1899 he received nearly $10,000 from Johnston, but not a penny until after he had resigned his position.

— Josephine C. English, as a citizen of New York, entered suit in the United States Circuit Court against Judge Robert Ralston, of Common Pleas Court No. 5, to recover damages because of his alleged action in preventing her from obtaining a copy of the record in her divorce proceedings against her husband, Abraham L. English, Director of Public Safety.

October 24. Judge Wiltbank ordered stricken from the assessors' lists of voters 7 names in the Third, 49 in the Tenth and 3 in the Sixteenth division of the Fifth ward, and 5 in the Third and 8 in the Seventh division of the Thirteenth ward.

— In his suit to recover a balance of $90,762.50, claimed to be due him for work on the Boys' High School, Robert S. Johnston denied that he had been in collusion with other bidders for the contract, and averred that the money he had given Architect Austin was in the nature of loans and gifts, at the solicitation of the recipient.

— Notwithstanding that Secretary Gibboney, of the Law and Order Society, made a plea for mercy for the defendant, Judge Ralston confessed to severity while sentencing to one year's imprisonment James McCaffrey, who had been convicted of striking Charles McCone with an icepick. McCaffrey maintained that he had acted in self-defense, having been assaulted because he had testified against a "speak-easy." Mr. Gibboney denied the Court's assertion that he was "villifying the city."

— While coming up the Delaware Bay the schooner Ida Fowler, laden with coconuts and oranges from Porto Rico, ran into the submerged wreck of the schooner Lavinia Campbell and was sunk. R. R. Evans, the cook, went down with the vessel, but Captain Wright and the remaining five men of his crew were saved.

— The building at Thirteenth and Spring Garden streets, erected by the Caledonian Club, has been purchased by the Philadelphia Battalion of the Sixth Regiment, formerly known as the State Fencibles, for an armory and gymnasium.

October 25. Twenty persons are known to have perished in a fire that started in and destroyed the furniture store and factory of Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., on Market street, above Twelfth, three buildings adjoining on the west and a small dwelling in the rear on Commerce street.

— By the direction of Judge Wiltbank 177 names were stricken from assessors' lists of voters. Most of those expunged were of persons assessed as residents of lodging houses in the Fifth and Eleventh wards.

October 26. Judge Robert Ralston, of Common Pleas Court No. 5, filed a special plea and answer in the United States Circuit Court, explaining his suppression of papers in the divorce suit of Josephine C. English against Abraham L. English, Director of Public Safety. Counsel for Mrs. English also took preliminary steps in the Superior Court toward instituting mandamus proceedings against the Judges of Court No. 5 to recover the divorce papers.

— The torpedo boat destroyer Chauncey was launched at Neafie & Levy's shipyard.

October 28. In the suit brought by Robert S. Johnston against the city, to recover $90,762.50, claimed to be due on the contract for erecting the new building for the Boys' High School, the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $65,000.

— Argument was heard by Judges Arnold, Willson and Audenried in the equity suit brought by Mary Helen Lyndall to obtain an injunction restraining the Committee on Hygiene of the Board of Education and others from interfering with her position as a teacher in the Girls' High School because of her refusal to be vaccinated.

— Daniel Collins, 36 years old, a painter, fell ten stories down the light well at the Betz Building and was killed. Collins was at work on a scaffold when a rope broke.

October 29. Eighty-two names were stricken from assessors' lists of voters by order of Judge Wiltbank, who heard argument and testimony on amended petitions to have expunged 201 names from the assessors' list in the Seventeenth division of the Thirteenth ward.

— On the ground that it had no jurisdiction, the Superior Court refused the petition filed by Mrs. Josephine C. English for a mandamus on the Judges of Court of Common Pleas No. 5 to give her access to the papers in her divorce suit against her husband, Abraham L. English, Director of Public Safety.

— The Peace Jubilee Executive Committee agreed to turn over to the Citizens' McKinley Memorial Committee its balance of $1980.34.

— Law and Order Society agents captured more than 200 slot machines and other gambling devices in stores in various parts of the city.

October 30. Councils' Committee on City Property authorized the appointment of a subcommittee to confer with the Board of Health and to report to the Finance Committee upon a new site for the Municipal Hospital, with an estimate of the cost.

— By the explosion of a boiler at the Baldwin Locomotive Works, John Colden, aged 50 years, and Edward Mehan, aged 35 years, were instantly killed, and James Dansen, aged 35 years, was probably fatally injured.

— Thirty persons in whose places Law and Order agents seized slot machines waived hearings and entered bonds for their appearance in court.

October 31. Edwin S. Cramp was elected Vice-President of the William Cramp Ship and Engine Building Company, to succeed his brother, the late Henry W. Cramp.

— Counsel for Mrs. Josephine C. English agreed to abandon the proceedings begun in the United States Court to have testimony taken in the suit brought against Judge Ralston, of Common Pleas Court No. 5, with a view to compelling him to produce the papers in the divorce granted her from her husband, Abraham L. English, Director of Public Safety.

November 1. Judges Pennypacker and Sulzberger granted numerous petitions from the Union party for the appointment of overseers of election in divisions in which the election officers are under indictment or are all of one political faith.

— Alfred Smith was sentenced to be hanged for the killing of his wife by shooting on September 7. The prisoner said he shot his wife accidentally, but pleaded guilty on the advice of counsel.

— Counsel for Josephine C. English took an appeal to the Superior Court in the divorce suit which she brought in Common Pleas Court No. 5 against her husband, Abraham L. English, Director of Public Safety. Accompanying the assignments of error on which the appeal is based is a severe arraignment of Judge Ralston in connection with the litigation.

November 2. Meetings held by the Union party and under the auspices of the Republican organization concluded the campaign. Despite the act prohibiting political parades within ten days of election, hundreds of men marched in procession to show their loyalty to the City Hall ticket, and this defiance of law resulted in the murder of one colored man and injury to six persons by an explosion of fireworks.

— Captain Jacob Swayne, of the steamship Benefactor, was acquitted in the United States Circuit Court of a charge of manslaughter in not rendering sufficient assistance to Francis Fisher, while the latter was drowning, near Sea Girt.

— During a fight among men who were among paraders going to a Republican meeting, Teddy Watts, colored, was mortally wounded with a knife in the hands of Robert Moore, also colored, who claims to have acted in self-defense.

— Captain Conwell, of the schooner Thomas Winsmore, reported to the police that during a fight between two of his crew on November 1 one of them, David Larrimore, was killed. Daniel Brown, who is charged with having killed Larrimore, was handed over to the police.

— When the Rev. Albinus Kaminski, rector of St. Anthony's Chapel for Lithuanians, started to take up the collection he was assaulted by some members of the congregation, led by a woman, and a general fight ensued. Finally eleven men and three women were taken into custody, but were released without bail by Magistrate Toughill.

November 5. Municipal election day. The Republican ticket elected.

— In acknowledging notification of his election as an honorary member of the Union League, President Roosevelt writes to President Joseph G. Darlington, of the League: "I can say with all sincerity that there is no other organization in existence from which I would more keenly appreciate such an honor."

— The party of Porto Rican merchants and planters delegated by Governor Allen to visit this country attended a reception arranged in their honor by the Manufacturers' Club.

November 6. Dr. A. Donaldson Smith was presented with the Elisha Kent Kane medal by the Geographical Society in recognition of his exploration of the region of the Upper Nile.

November 7. By reason of the gifts of two friends, amounting to about $45,000, the Philadelphia Society for Organizing Charity is enabled to erect a building in Lombard street, west of Seventeenth, for the Wayfarers' Lodge, established many years ago. The structure is designed to be a model of its kind.

November 8. During the official count of the votes cast Tuesday, Judges Sulzberger, McMichael and Audenried showed their purpose to "go back of the returns," many of which had not been signed by overseers. Other sheets lacked the signatures of minority inspectors. Because of glaring inaccuracies, the ballot box of the Second division of the Seventh ward was taken into another room and its contents examined. Election officers were interrogated by the Court, which issued subpoenas for the appearance of others. The Court also summoned the District Attorney to have his office represented during the count, to take such action as the developments may warrant. An overseer in the Fifth ward averred that he was ejected from the polling place, assaulted by a policeman, locked up and had his memoranda of futile challenges destroyed.

— P. J. McGuire, one of the founders of the American Federation of Labor, and for the last twenty years Secretary and Treasurer of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, waived a hearing on the charge of embezzling $10,074 from the funds of the Brotherhood, and was held in $5000 bail for court.

November 9. During the session of the court where the votes were being computed officials in several divisions were brought to the bar of the Court on subpoenas or attachments to explain peculiarities in their returns. In most instances the explanations were unsatisfactory to the Court, and Judge Sulzberger so expressed himself, but none of the election officers were held for further investigation.

November 10. A historic stone barn belonging to the estate of A. S. Roberts, in Lower Merion, near the City line, was destroyed by fire, with the crops, causing a loss of about $20,000.

November 11. An explosion which wrecked the laboratory of the Liberty Chemical Company, at Sydenham and Hazzard streets, resulted in injuries to ten persons, seven of whom were employees. Of these latter four young women and one man were injured in jumping from second-story windows. Loss, $50,000.

November 12. After the ballot box used in the Sixteenth division of the Third ward at the recent election had been opened and the vote recounted under the supervision of Judge Audenried, Judge Sulzberger held Edward D. McGinn, judge of election; Christian Schmelz, minority inspector, and Edward Swayne and John Green, clerks, in $1200 bail each to answer charges of neglect of duty, criminal conspiracy and making fraudulent returns.

— Five firemen, a police patrol sergeant and a spectator were injured by the explosion of gas in an underground electric conduit at Ninth and Sansom streets. Incandescent lights in stores and other places in the neighborhood were extinguished and business interrupted.

November 13. At a conference between school authorities of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, under authority of the Legislatures of the two States, reciprocity was established in teachers' permanent certificates and Normal School diplomas.

— Counsel for Mrs. Josephine C. English was permitted by the Prothonotary to make a copy of the records in the divorce suit brought against her husband, Abraham L. English, Director of Public Safety.

November 14. By the completion of the official count it was shown that G. Harry Davis was elected Judge of Common Pleas Court No. 5 by 148 votes over Henry Budd, his colleague on the Union party ticket.

— Judge Arnold refused the injunction asked for by Mary Helen Tyndall, teacher in the High School for Girls, to restrain the Board of Education from suspending her because of non-compliance with the order that all teachers must be vaccinated who are unable to produce a certificate of successful vaccination within the last five years. The opinion views the relation of a teacher to the Board as that of a servant to a master.

— Three architects and three builders constituted the Coroner's jury in the inquest on the twenty-two victims of the fire which destroyed Hunt, Wilkinson & Co.'s furniture warehouse. Insurance Inspector McDevitt and Fire Marshal Lattimer expressed the opinion that the fire was started by a candle or lamp left in the cellar of the building by men who were installing a new elevator. Chief Hill of the Bureau of Building Inspection, said the structure was in no sense fireproof, but at the time of its erection met all the requirements of the building laws.

November 15. Resolutions were adopted by the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Institute of Architects condemning the "program" of the State Capitol Commission, which solicited from the architects of Pennsylvania designs for the completion of the new State Capitol at Harrisburg. The Philadelphia Chapter advises the architects of Pennsylvania not to enter the competition, declaring the present program "is calculated only to encourage favoritism and injustice; that it obligates the Commission in no way to select the best design or architects."

— Sixteen true bills of indictment were returned by the Grand Jury against George MacClemmy with murder and voluntary and involuntary manslaughter by having caused the death of eight persons by a gasoline explosion in his store in Locust street, above Tenth, on August 5.

November 16. Thomas J. Mitchell, judge of election in the Second division of the Thirteenth ward, was held by the Judges constituting the court to count the votes at the recent election under $2000 bail on charges of election frauds.

— Judge Ralston made a decree establishing the Forty-second ward out of the eastern part of the Twenty-second ward, a majority of voters in the ward having voted in favor of the division.

November 18. John L. Semple, a member of the Camden Bar, was placed on trial in the United States District Court on a charge of complicity with Arthur Taylor and Baldwin S. Bredell, his clients, in preparing a $20 counterfeit plate in Moyamensing prison, where they were awaiting trial for participation in the Lancaster counterfeiting conspiracy. The jury disagreed.

— It was resolved by a committee of the Board of Education to dismiss Miss M. Helen Lyndall, instructor in physics in the High School for Girls, because of her refusal to comply with the order that all school employees must be vaccinated.

November 20. The Coroner's jury found that the fire in Hunt, Wilkinson & Co.'s furniture establishment, on October 25, resulting in the loss of twenty-two lives, "originated from a cause unknown, the persons being dead who could probably explain the direct cause." To prevent similar fires the jury made a number of recommendations. One of these is "that in all department stores, mercantile and manufacturing establishments there shall be fire walls erected, limiting the floor area, openings in said walls to be protected with fire-proof doors, and where such buildings have floors and partitions of combustible materials, the elevator enclosures be built of incombustible materials, with fire doors."

— The Franklin Institute authorized President Birkinbine to appoint a committee to investigate recent disasters by fire and explosion.

— City Treasurer Moore notified the Board of Mercantile Appraisers that its Secretary, William H. Schober, can have no further official connection with his office, because of his alleged part in the settlement, or promised settlement, of cases against delinquent dealers outside of Magistrates' Courts to which they had been assigned.

November 21. Mayer Guggenheim, of New York, announced his intention of giving to the Jewish Hospital a sum not exceeding $60,000, to be used in the erection of a hospital for private patients. The income derived therefrom is to be devoted solely to the charitable purposes of the Jewish Hospital.

November 22. James S. Boyden, a Delaware county farmer, was awarded $12,500 damages in a suit brought against the city for injuries received in a runaway accident, due, Boyden alleged, to the front wheel of his wagon sinking into a hole in the pavement on Eleventh street, near Market.

November 23. At the dinner in honor of Founders' Day at the Union League, speeches were made by President Joseph G. Darlington, ex-Attorney General John W. Griggs, United States Senator William P. Frye, United States Solicitor General John K. Richards, and Governor of Porto Rico William H. Hunt. Among other guests were Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage and Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith.

November 27. Richard Bardsley, night engineer in the Washington Flint Glass Works, York and Thompson streets, was killed by an explosion of gas which had accumulated in an oil tank. His fireman, Andrew McCormick, was dangerously burned.

— Having pleaded guilty to the charge of involuntary manslaughter in causing the death of Florence Almond, aged 14 years, by hurling stones at her while she was "playing ghost" on a lot near Fifty-eight and Ludlow streets, Oscar McFall and Andrew Bethears, both colored, were sentenced to one year's imprisonment.

November 29. City Solicitor Kinsey sent to Councils' City Property Committee an opinion bearing upon the question of a new site for the Municipal Hospital. He says such an institution may be established "in what would be deemed not to be a built-up portion of the city, but not in a built-up portion thereof." The further opinion that "the city may not take title to and erect a hospital and have full control outside of the county line" would seem to have an adverse bearing upon the scheme to acquire Petty's Island as a site for a new almshouse.

— By the death of Mrs. Rebecca S. Elkinton, in her 77th year, the philanthropic bequests in the will of her husband, the late Thomas Elkinton, became operative. They include $50,000 to the Westtown Boarding School for Friends, $5000 each to the Jefferson, University, Pennsylvania, Orthopædic and Polyclinic Hospitals, and $25,000 to be divided in sums not exceeding $5000 each in assisting in the work of supplying bathing establishments in this city.

November 30. Auditor General Hardenbergh and City Treasurer Moore announced the appointment of Select Councilman Wm. McCoach, Joseph H. Klemmer and Harry J. Trainer, together with Gustave Bacharach, Secretary of the Civil Service Board, and William H. Murphy, Secretary of the Donnelly-Ryan organization, as Mercantile Appraisers to serve for three years.

— By the will of Samuel B. Huey bequests of $10,000 each to the Presbyterian Hospital and the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions will become operative following the death of his widow.

CAPTURE OF AGUINALDO.

General Frederick Funston again distinguished himself in the Philippines by capturing Aguinaldo by a most daring undertaking. Aguinaldo was living in Palanan in a mountainous and remote part of Northeastern Luzon. General Funston was stationed in a central province of Northern Luzon, and on the last day of February, 1901, came into possession of letters which were being carried by an agent of Aguinaldo directing that General Alejandrino should resign command of the province of Central Luzon to another leader, and asking that 400 men should be sent to Aguinaldo under guidance of the messenger. General Funston, with this information in his possession, designed a plan for the capture of Aguinaldo, which was approved by General MacArthur, and proved entirely successful, though it was attended by great risks. Funston commanded an expedition which consisted of himself, four American officers, four former insurgent officers, three of whom were Tagalogs and one a Spaniard and seventy-eight Macabebes. All of the latter spoke the Tagal language, and twenty of them wore insurgent uniforms, while the others were dressed as Filipino laborers. The expedition sailed from Manila on March 8 on the United States gunboat Vicksburg. Six days later the party was landed at Casiguran, in the province of Principe. The former insurgent officers took apparent command, and the five Americans in plain clothes personated an American surveying party that had been captured. The expedition traveled through country strongly in sympathy with the insurgents, but was supposed to be under orders to join Aguinaldo at his headquarters. After hard marching through a mountainous country for a week, during which they were short of food, the party arrived in the neighborhood of Palanan. A forged letter was sent to Aguinaldo, who received the party without any suspicion. He was surrounded by his staff and body guard. Suddenly the American officers took command; there was a brief combat, in which two insurgents were killed and Aguinaldo and several of his officers were made prisoners. The expedition reached the coast in two days by a direct route, and, boarding the Vicksburg, which was in waiting, returned to Manila. Aguinaldo was treated with proper consideration, and on April 2 took the oath of allegiance to the United States. He subsequently issued a manifesto recommending the Filipino insurgents to lay down their arms and accept American rule. Many of them did so, and thereafter only minor bands remained in the field. Military rule had to be maintained, but only as in a country infested by bandits.

For this brilliant achievement General Funston was on March 30 made a Brigadier General in the United States (regular) army.

SANDSTONE is one of the commonest of rocks, and is to be found almost everywhere.

COAL OIL was first discovered at Titusville, Pa., in 1859, by a man named Drake.

In 1896 Bryan was on two tickets, but the vote above given represents the combined vote of Democrats and Middle-of-the-Road Populists. The Prohibition vote in 1896 was 132,007; the Socialist vote, 36,274. In 1900 Bryan received fewer votes than in 1896. McKinley's plurality was the largest given since the organization of the Republican party. Returns for the electors of the minor parties are incomplete. As far as recorded Debs, Social Democrat, received 97,426; Barker, Populist, 46,081; Malloney, Socialist Labor, 36,372.

PENNSYLVANIA'S VOTE.

ELECTIONS IN 1902.

In 1902 general elections will be held in Philadelphia as follows:

For city and ward officers on Tuesday, February 18th. To be chosen: City Solicitor, Magistrates, members of Select and Common Councils, School Directors and Constables.

Last day for payment of taxes, January 18th.

Last day for naturalization, January 18th.

For State and county officers on Tuesday, November 4th. To be chosen: Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of Internal Affairs, Judge of the Superior Court, Sheriff, Coroner and City Commissioners.

Last day for payment of taxes, October 4th.

Last day for naturalization, October 4th.

QUALIFICATIONS OF ELECTORS.

Residence.—A voter must have resided in the State one year, and in the election district or division for at least two months, before the election. Where a citizen previously a resident has removed and returned, he must have resided in the State six months before the election.

Taxes.—No citizen can vote who is over twenty-two years old without having previously paid a State and county tax within two years, assessed at least two months before the election, and paid, at the latest, one month before the election.

Age.—Every male citizen between twenty-one and twenty-two years of age, having the proper qualifications of residence, native birth, or claiming the naturalization of his father during his minority, may vote without being assessed.

Naturalized citizens may vote if they have the qualifications of residence in the State and district and payment of taxes, and have been naturalized one month before the election.

Proof of Right to Vote.—If the name is not on the registry of voters, the person claiming must make affidavit of his claims, and prove his right by at least one qualified voter of the district or division. Proof of payment of taxes is made by producing the tax receipt or by affidavit that it has been lost, destroyed or never received. A naturalized citizen must produce his naturalization papers, unless he has been for five consecutive years a voter in the district.

Premium, for the following slain animal, or pelt thereof—Wolf, $10; Wild Cat, $2; Red or Gray Fox, $1, and Mink, 50 cents.

FISH.

Legal fishing for game fish is restricted to the use of rod, hook and line, or to hand-line, having not more than three hooks, or to trolling-line with spoon-hook.

Speckled Trout or California Mountain Trout—April 15 to July 31, inclusive.

Lake or Salmon Trout—January 1 to September 1, inclusive.

Black Bass, Rock Bass or Wall-eyed Pike (Susquehanna Salmon), Crappie, Grass, Strawberry, White and Rock Bass, Green Bass, Yellow Bass, Willow Bass, and Lake Erie or Grass Bass—June 15 to February 15, inclusive.

Pike, Pickerel, Sun Fish and Muscallonge—June 15 to February 15, inclusive.

Sea Salmon—April 1 to August 1.

Penobscot Salmon or Grilse—March 1 to August 15.

Sturgeon—December 31 to June 30.

Shad and Herring—In any waters of the Commonwealth (including the Delaware river below and excluding it above the Trenton Falls), from December 31 to June 20, and above Trenton Falls, from December 31 to June 15, excepting in the Delaware river from sunset Saturday night to twelve o'clock Sunday night in each week of said periods, and in the Susquehanna and Juniata rivers, from sunset on Saturday till sunrise on Monday of any week from March 15 to June 20.

German Carp—Unprotected.

Length of Fish which may be Legally Caught.

Trout, of any species or variety, except Lake Trout, six inches. (Legal catch limited to fifty per day.)

Lake or Salmon Trout, Green or Oswego Bass, Striped Bass, or Rock Fish, Blue Pike, Pike-Perch (Wall-eyed Pike), Susquehanna or Jack Salmon, Pike, Pickerel or Muscallonge, nine inches. (Length limit of Muscallonge in boundary lakes, fifteen inches.)

Black Bass, seven inches, except in Delaware river, and boundary lakes, and there nine inches.

White Bass, Rock Bass, Crappie, Strawberry or Calico Bass, five inches; except Salmon in Delaware river, and there nine inches.

Sturgeon, three feet.

Shad and Herring, unlimited, except by size of mesh of nets. (No net of any description to be used within two miles of entrance of boundary bay.)

Striped Bass or Rock Fish may be caught at any time of the year in the same manner as game fish.

Game fish are declared to be: Salmon, Brook Trout and all other fish belonging to the family of Salmon or Trout, Black Bass and all its species, Oswego Bass under its various names, Crappie, Strawberry Bass, White Bass, Rock Bass, Blue Pike, Pike-Perch or Susquehanna Salmon, Pike, Pickerel, Sun Fish and Muscallonge.

NEW JERSEY.

GAME BIRDS AND GAME MAMMALS.

Black, Gray or Fox Squirrel, Hare, Rabbit and Quail, or Virginia Pheasant, Ruffed Grouse or Pheasant—November 1 to December 31.

Deer or Fawn—October 25 to November 5.

Rail and Reed Birds, Marsh Hen—August 25 to December 31.

Upland or Grass Plover—August 1 to September 30.

Wild Dove—August 1 to September 3.

Web-footed Wild Fowl—September 1 to May 1.

Woodcock—During July and from October 1 to December 1.

Gray, English or Wilson Snipe—March 1 to April 30 and September 1 to December 31.

FISH.

Black Bass, Rock Bass, Wall-eyed Pike, Calico and White Bass—June 15 to November 30.

Pike or Pickerel—May 1 to November 30.

Brook, Brown or California Trout—April 1 to July 15.

Yellow Perch—June 15 to November 30.

NOTE.—New Jersey prohibits hunting Rabbits when there is snow on the ground. Pennsylvania requires non-residents to pay a license for the privilege of gunning. Both States prohibit taking dead game from their borders.

THE SCHLEY INQUIRY.

The Sampson-Schley controversy, which had its origin in the promotion of Admiral Sampson to chief command of the Atlantic fleet during the Spanish-American war over ranking officers, including Schley, and which was aggravated by the fact that Schley was in temporary command at the battle of Santiago, was brought to a climax by the publication of the third volume of Edgar Stanton Maclay's "History of the United States Navy." In that volume a bitter attack was made upon Admiral Schley, as follows:

"In his report about the coal supply of the vessels under his command Schley exhibited either a timidity amounting to absolute cowardice or a prevarication of facts that were intrinsically falsehoods. (Vol. iii, p. 296.) Schley, on May 28, 1898, * * * turned in caitiff flight from the danger spot toward which duty, honor and the whole American people were most earnestly urging him. Viewed in whatever light it may be, the foregoing dispatch cannot be characterized otherwise than as being, without exception, the most humiliating, cowardly and lamentable report ever penned by an American naval officer. (Vol. iii, p. 298.) 'Let the Texas take care of herself,' was the heartless reply, and the shameful spectacle of an American warship, supported by a force superior to the enemy's—a warship whose commander had expended such vast quantities of ammunition in target practice in the presence of a fashionable hotel at Hampton Roads in order to meet a worthy foe, deliberately turning tail and running away was presented. (Vol. iii, p. 364.) Schley was perfectly willing to avoid blanketing the fire of the American warships, even at the risk of a disastrous collision with the Texas, so long as he could escape getting too close to danger. * * * Schley's contribution to naval strategy, as too plainly shown by his conduct throughout the campaign, was 'Avoid your enemy as long as possible, and if he makes for you, run.' (Vol. iii, p. 365.)"

Although the preceding volumes of Maclay's history were in use as text books at the Naval Academy, this third volume was not admitted. Admiral Schley asked for an inquiry, which was accorded, and on July 26 the Secretary of the Navy appointed Admiral Dewey and Rear-Admirals Benham and Howison members of the Court. Counsel for Admiral Schley objected to Howison, and Rear-Admiral Ramsey was appointed in his stead. The Court assembled at Washington in September, and took a great amount of testimony. Its conclusions were given to the public on December 13. All the members of the Court agreed in their statement of facts:

MAJORITY OPINION.

Commodore Schley, in command of the Flying Squadron, should have proceeded with utmost dispatch off Cienfuegos, and should have maintained a close blockade of that port.

He should have endeavored on May 23 at Cienfuegos to obtain information regarding the Spanish squadron by communicating with the insurgents at the place designated in the memorandum delivered to him at 8.15 A. M. of that date.

He should have proceeded from Cienfuegos to Santiago de Cuba with all dispatch, and should have disposed his vessels with a view of intercepting the enemy in any attempt to pass the Flying Squadron.

He should not have delayed the squadron for the Eagle.

He should not have made the retrograde turn westward with his squadron.

He should have promptly obeyed the Navy Department's order of May 25.

He should have endeavored to capture or destroy the Spanish vessels at anchor near the entrance of Santiago harbor on May 29 and 30.

He did not do his utmost with the force under his command to capture or destroy the Colon and other vessels of the enemy which he attacked on May 31.

By commencing the engagement on July 3 with port battery and turning the Brooklyn around with port helm, Commodore Schley caused her to lose distance and position with the Spanish vessels—especially with the Vizcaya and Colon.

The turn of the Brooklyn to starboard was made to avoid getting her into dangerous proximity to the Spanish vessels. The turn was made towards the Texas, and caused that vessel to stop and to back her engines to avoid possible collision.

Admiral Schley did injustice to Lieutenant Commander A. C. Hodgson in publishing only a portion of the correspondence which passed between them.

Commodore Schley's conduct in connection with the events of the Santiago campaign prior to June 1, 1898, was characterized by vacillation, dilatoriness and lack of enterprise.

His official reports regarding the coal supply and the coaling facilities of the Flying Squadron were inaccurate and misleading.

His conduct during the battle of July 3 was self-possessed, and he encouraged, in his own person, his subordinate officers and men to fight courageously.

ADMIRAL DEWEY'S DISSENTING OPINION.

In the opinion of the undersigned the passage from Key West to Cienfuegos was made by the Flying Squadron with all possible dispatch, Commodore Schley having in view the importance of arriving off Cienfuegos with as much coal as possible in the ships' bunkers.

The blockade of Cienfuegos was effective.

Commodore Schley in permitting the steamer Adula to enter the port of Cienfuegos expected to obtain information concerning the Spanish squadron from her when she came out.

The passage from Cienfuegos to a point about twenty-two miles south of Santiago was made with as much dispatch as was possible, while keeping the squadron a unit.

The blockade of Santiago was effective.

Commodore Schley was the senior officer of our squadron off Santiago when the Spanish squadron attempted to escape on the morning of July 3, 1898. He was in absolute command, and is entitled to the credit due to such commanding officer for the glorious victory which resulted in the total destruction of the Spanish ships. GEORGE DEWEY, Admiral U. S. N.

RECOMMENDATION.

In view of the length of time which has elapsed since the occurrence of the events of the Santiago campaign, the Court recommends no further proceedings be had in the premises.

CARRIE NATION.

The extraordinary efforts of Mrs. Carrie Nation to smash the liquor saloons of Kansas was one of the sensations of 1901. To understand her movement it is necessary to have a correct view of the liquor question. Fifty years ago (or more) the whisky drinking evil threatened the destruction of American society. No one born since that time can conceive the extent of the curse. The remedy that found favor in some places was absolute prohibition of the liquor traffic. Beer was introduced as a substitute for whisky, and in the course of years temperance, in the proper sense of that word, won a notable victory. In 1850 no statesman lost caste by being seen drunk in public. To-day no man, no matter what his walk of life, is tolerated or trusted who allows himself to get under the influence of liquor. But the radicals persisted in their efforts to prohibit the sale of liquors. Maine was the only State that went that far, and, although Maine as a whole is temperate, some of its cities are notorious for their drunkenness. Experience has shown, in fact, that while temperance or abstinence may be enforced in country communities and small towns, it cannot be enforced in large cities. Some of the States adopted local-option laws to meet the evil, each community deciding for itself whether liquor should be sold. These laws usually resulted in the adoption of prohibition at the outset, and afterwards in a licensing of liquor saloons. South Carolina adopted the novel plan (borrowed from Sweden) of making the sale of liquor a State monopoly. In nearly all the States the sale of liquor was legalized but a high license fee was demanded, and this plan seems to have yielded the best results. Kansas followed the example of Maine and absolutely prohibited the sale of liquor, but the law was entirely disregarded in the large cities, and the politicians had neither the courage to enforce the law nor the courage to rescind it. Mrs. Carrie Nation, an undoubted fanatic, called attention to this state of affairs by her assault upon the saloons of Kansas. They were clearly illegal, and she undertook to smash them with her hatchet. She met with great success for a time, but made the mistake of carrying her crusade into other States where the liquor traffic was licensed, and there she came to grief as a matter of course. The only thing accomplished by her crusade, which was highly sensational, was the fact that prohibition does not prohibit and that temperance in the adoption of repressive measures affords the best means of promoting temperance.

THE HAY-PAUNCEFOTE TREATY.

The original Hay-Pauncefote treaty having been materially amended by the Senate before being ratified was rejected by the British Government; but just before the meeting of Congress in December, 1901, a new treaty was negotiated abrogating the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and providing that the United States may build and control an Isthmian Canal free from interference by any other nation. The canal is to be neutral, the United States alone guaranteeing its neutrality. Nothing is said in the treaty about fortifying the canal or its entrances, but the new treaty removes all the objectionable features of the old one.

POLAR EXPEDITIONS OF THE YEAR.

The year 1901 was marked by extraordinary activity in both Arctic and Antarctic work. In this respect all previous years were eclipsed. Besides the expeditions already in the field, there were others that departed both for the North and the South Polar regions. Two or three were for brief periods only, but one to the North and one to the South were for extended exploration, and had been widely advertised. The Baldwin-Zeigler expedition to the Arctics attracted perhaps the greatest attention. This was undoubtedly the best equipped venture ever made to the Polar regions. Evelyn Baldwin, a well-known and experienced explorer, headed the party that sailed from Dundee the latter part of June. The expedition required three vessels, one, the America, being the flagship. The avowed purpose of this expedition is to reach the North Pole, and an absence of twenty-seven months is expected.

A second venture that attracted widespread attention was one to the South Polar regions, under the command of Professor Otto Norden-skjold. The start was made on October 16 from Gothenburg on the steamer Antarctic. A party was to be taken as far south as possible, and left to pursue its work while the vessel was to return with other scientific men to explore Terra del Fuego. A few months previously an English expedition sailed in the same direction on the steamer Discovery.

Last year the Windward, with Mrs. Peary on board, was sent to the relief of Lieutenant Robert E. Peary, last heard of as on his way to Fort Conger, on Lady Franklin Bay, Arctic America. When late autumn arrived this vessel had not returned, and nothing was heard of it until early last September, when Herbert Bridgman, who headed a relief expedition three months before, returned with Mrs. Peary and news of her husband. Mrs. Peary had been prevented from returning the previous year on account of the Windward becoming frozen in by new ice. She was unable to join her husband until spring, spending the long winter night many miles from his headquarters. Lieutenant Peary, it appears, accomplished much valuable work during the previous year. He did not reach the Pole, but determined the outline of North Greenland and surpassed the point reached by Brainard and Lockwood, of the Greely expedition. There appears to have been an unfortunate difference between Lieutenant Peary and his surgeon, Dr. Dedrick, which resulted in the latter resigning his position and marooning himself at Etah, North Greenland. The members of the relief expedition endeavored to induce Dr. Dedrick to return to civilization with them, but failed, the Doctor declaring that, although no longer a member of Lieutenant Peary's party, he felt it his duty to remain near by in case his services were needed.

Some anxiety has been felt for the safety of the famous Fram, commanded by Captain Sverdrup, formerly with Dr. Nansen. Captain Sverdrup sailed from Christiana, Norway, in 1898, with eighteen companions, for Greenland. He spent the following winter, it is said, in Jones' sound. Since then nothing has been heard of him, his ship or companions. Dr. Stein returned from Ellesmere Land, after an absence of two years, with the Peary relief expedition under the command of Dr. Bridgman, having accomplished much valuable scientific and geographical work.

NATIONAL WORKS OF IRRIGATION.

President Roosevelt having recommended that the National Government take measures for the reclamation of arid lands in the Western States and Territories, a committee of Senators and Representatives from the arid States drafted a bill for that purpose which embodies some of the provisions of both the Shafroth and the Hansbrough-Newlands bills. Its central idea is the devotion of the proceeds of the sale of the public lands to the reclamation of those lands. It also increases the price of the public lands to be benefited by the proposed irrigation enterprises, so as to make settlers pay part of the cost of construction.

The bill provides that all moneys received from the sale and disposal of public lands in the arid land States shall be set aside as a reclamation fund; that examination and surveys of reservoir sites, tunnel sites for diversion of water and irrigation canals connected therewith shall be made; that the Secretary of the Interior may withdraw from public entry the lands required for irrigation works and the public lands proposed to be irrigated by them, and that upon the determination being reached that any irrigation project is practicable, contract shall be made for its construction, if the estimate of the engineer shows that the cost will not exceed $10 per acre on the land to be reclaimed.

After construction the lands to be irrigated are to be subject to homestead entry in areas not exceeding eighty acres upon the entryman's paying $5 per acre to the reclamation fund. This fund is to be used for the operation and maintenance of reservoirs and irrigation works until payments for the lands settled upon are made, when all the irrigation works except the reservoirs shall be turned over to the settlers, who are required as a body corporate to operate and maintain them. It also provides that in the event that there is sufficient water for public and private lands, water rights may be sold for the irrigation of private lands at a price of not less than $5 per acre.

Full power is given to condemn lands needed for reservoir and ditch purposes. It is provided that State laws shall govern in the matters of the appropriation and distribution of water. Power to make general rules and regulations is vested in the Secretary of the Interior.

END OF THE CHINESE WAR.

On December 22, 1900, the identical note embodying the preliminary conditions of peace in China was signed by the representatives of the Powers at Peking. Several executions followed, including that of the murderer of Baron von Ketteler, the German Minister. On February 6, 1901, the foreign ministers submitted a list of twelve Chinese officials whose execution was demanded. Some were executed; others banished. The United States Government by refusing its assent to reprisals against China blocked offensive operations, and on March 15 withdrew its troops from Peking except a legation guard of one hundred and fifty men. Affairs soon after quieted down, and by the close of the year normal relations between China and the other Powers had been resumed. A Chinese mission to the German Emperor made apology for the murder of Baron von Ketteler.

LI HUNG CHANG.

Li Hung Chang, the great Chinese statesman, who died November 7, was an extraordinary character not to be gauged by any one event of his career. He came into prominence during the Pai Ting rebellion of 1850-1864, when he became commander of the Imperial forces associated with Chinese Gordon. He enjoyed the confidence of Gordon until he massacred the rebel leaders, in spite of Gordon's pledge of protection. His conduct at this time was typical of his entire career. He was popular with foreigners because of his intelligence, liberality of views, mildness and truthfulness; he was popular with the Chinese because of his superstition, his racial instincts, his cruelty and his dissembling disposition. After the rebellion he became Viceroy of the capital province of Chihli and Prime Minister. He held this office in defiance of precedent for twenty-four years from 1870 to 1894. The war with Japan brought him into disgrace, but the Government had to call upon him to make terms of peace, and he did so with marked success. He was, nevertheless, in ill favor in China when he made the tour of the world in 1896 and was received with the highest honors in Europe and America. The Boxer uprising in China again compelled the Government to call upon his services, and the last act of his life was to prevent a division of the Empire by making terms with the foreigners who had suffered at the hands of Chinese rebels. He was the most progressive of Chinese statesmen, opposed to foreigners, but not to their methods. If he had had a free hand he would have brought China up to date; but he had to conciliate the prejudices of his countrymen, and he did so with more success than any of his fellows. Li Hung Chang acquired great wealth, and was accused of accepting bribes; but, taken all in all, he was probably the best Chinaman of the century.

EX-PRESIDENT HARRISON.

Benjamin Harrison, twenty-third President of the United States, died March 13, aged 68 years. His great grandfather was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and was for three terms Governor of Virginia; his grandfather, a soldier, was the ninth President of the United States, and his father, a farmer, was for two terms a member of Congress. Benjamin Harrison was born on his father's farm near North Bend, Ohio, August 20, 1833. He graduated at nineteen from Miami University, and having been admitted to the bar removed with a young wife to Indianapolis, when twenty-one years of age. He soon established a good reputation as lawyer and counselor, and was appointed reporter for the Supreme Court. In 1862, he entered the army as Colonel of the Seventieth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and after three years of active and honorable service he was mustered out with the rank of Brevet-Brigadier General. He resumed his professional duties in 1865, and practiced law with much success until 1881, when he was elected United States Senator from Indiana. He was elected President in 1888, but was defeated for re-election by his former opponent ex-President Cleveland. After his retirement he resumed the practice of law and took little part in public affairs, though he served as a member of the great International Court of Arbitration.

WIRELESS SIGNALS ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

Signor Marconi announced in December that he had succeeded in transmitting signals across the Atlantic by his wireless system of telegraphy. No messages have yet been sent, but for two successive days Mr. Marconi, stationed at St. John's, Newfoundland, received prearranged signals from Poldhu, on the Cornwall coast, 1700 miles distant. He did not return the signals, because he had not the necessary apparatus at the receiving station. As a matter of fact, his sole purpose at the time was to ascertain whether signals could be sent. In the successful experiment, of which announcement is made, the operator at Poldhu, with more powerful apparatus than had theretofore been used at transmitting stations, sent the letter "S," three dots, at frequent intervals during Wednesday afternoon, December 11, from 3 until 6 o'clock. During the corresponding hours at St. John's (11.30 A.M. to 2.30 P.M.), Signor Marconi was at the receiving station. He used a kite to carry the aerial wire to a considerable height, and was gratified by hearing the signal repeated so frequently that there could be little doubt whence the impulses came. To make assurance doubly sure, however, the experiment was repeated on Thursday, December 12, with the same result. In consequence of this success, Signor Marconi left his other work in the hands of assistants, and returned at once to England to arrange, if possible, for the transmission of messages across the Atlantic.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD IN NEW YORK CITY.

A. J. Cassatt made this announcement on December 11:

"The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is now prepared to carry out its policy, long since adopted, of extending its railroad into New York city, therein establishing a suitable passenger terminus for the accommodation of the public. To accomplish this on a comprehensive plan the Long Island Extension Railroad Company will withdraw its application for powers to construct its terminal railroad, and in lieu of such independent construction it is now proposed to build, under the charter of the Pennsylvania-New York Extension Railroad Company, just organized, and a New Jersey railroad company, about to be organized, a through underground connection between the Long Island Railroad and the Pennsylvania lines in New Jersey, and to construct a proper and commodious joint underground terminal station in New York city for the Pennsylvania and Long Island roads.

"After years of exhaustive study the conclusion has been reached that a tunnel line, operated by electricity, is in every way the most practical, economical and the best, both for the interests of the railroad company and of the city. The line as adopted will traverse the city of New York from the Hudson river to the East river and be underground throughout, and at such depth as not to interfere with future construction of subways by the city on all its avenues, similar to the one now building along Fourth avenue.

"As the railroad will be wholly underground and operated electrically, in the same manner as the recently-constructed Orleans Railway extension in Paris, it will not be objectionable in any way. There will be no smoke, dirt or noise, and, as all the surface property may be built upon after being utilized underneath for railroad purposes, the neighborhood of the station will be improved instead of marred, as is so often the case when railroad lines are constructed on the surface or elevated.

WORK TO MOVE RAPIDLY.

"The Company has acquired the bulk of its property for its principal station, and means to go forward in the acquisition of such additional properties as will be required, either by purchase or condemnation, in the belief that the city authorities will meet their application in a spirit of fairness and expedite as much as possible this much-needed improvement and great public convenience. Immediately upon the necessary authority being granted, the work of construction will proceed, and the whole line be completed and put in operation as soon as possible."

The plans call for two tunnels under the North river and three tunnels across New York and under the East river. There will also be a splendid underground station in New York.

DEATH RATE IN SOUTH AFRICAN CAMPS.

A blue book was issued by the British Colonial Office in December containing a detailed return of the deaths of Boers in the concentration camps in South Africa in the months of October and November, and also during the six months from June to November, inclusive. The deaths of whites in the six months number 12,441, including 10,113 children. The death rate per 1000 per annum for the entire mortality in all the camps increased from 109 in June to 338 in October, and sank to 284 in November. The death rate per 1000 per annum for children in the month of September was 433, in October 572 and in November 469.

The following figures of population and deaths in the concentration camps in the months of October and November are also given:

	POPULATION.
	Men.	Women.	Children.
October .....	17,309	39,385	55,185
November.....	17,981	42,329	57,945
	DEATHS.
October .....	151	372	2,633
November.....	147	389	2,271

Lord Milner, Governor of the Transvaal and Orange River Colony, proposes to break up some of the worst situated camps and to reduce the numbers in all the camps by sending the overflow from the Orange River Colony and the Transvaal to Cape Colony and Natal.

CUBAN CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

The Cuban Constitutional Convention completed its labors, adopting a constitution similar to that of the United States. Under pressure from the United States provision was made for U. S. Naval Stations on the island. Preparations are under way for an election to be held for president and other civil officers, and according to the present programme the government will be turned over to the Cubans, and Cuba will be declared free in March, 1902.

SPORTING RECORDS OF 1901.

FOOT-BALL.

The end of the foot-ball season of 1901 found Harvard the unquestioned champion of the grid-iron. The Crimson had an abundance of excellent material and developed one of the greatest teams in her history. Both of her championship games—with Pennsylvania and Yale—were won by large totals. After Harvard, the ranking of the other teams is a difficult task, and is really subject to the caprice of the public more than any real merit on the part of the different elevens. Yale, Princeton, Cornell and West Point each lost a single game. Yale won from Princeton, while the latter defeated Cornell. West Point did not meet Cornell, but the Army team played tie games with Yale and Princeton and suffered defeat by Harvard by a single touchdown and goal. In the matter of disastrous seasons Pennsylvania stands out alone. Not only was it a year of unprecedented reverses to the Quakers, but five defeats marks a record for one of the big university elevens. Columbia, Lafayette, Carlisle Indians, Annapolis and Brown had fairly successful years. The records of the several college teams are as follows:

The annual game between West Point and Annapolis was played on Franklin Field on November 30, and resulted in a victory for the former, the score being 11 to 5. Daly, quarterback of the West Point team, scored all of his team's points, making a goal from the field in the first half and a 100-yard run for a touchdown after the kick-off in the second half. There were 30,000 persons at the game, and for the first time since the teams have met in this city President Roosevelt with most of his Cabinet and many distinguished army and navy officers were present.

The William Penn Charter School eleven was the only team in the Inter-academic Athletic Association which did not suffer a single defeat throughout the season of 1901. The records of the teams follow.

BICYCLING.

Cycling records have been lowered with such frequency during the year that even those who have closely followed the sport have been unable to keep pace with the rapid record breaking, and all existing lists of times have been rendered almost entirely worthless. The following records have been revised by the National Cycling Association and formally adopted by the Board of Control of that organization. Only out-door performances are given, except in unusual instances, and where a record is held by more than one person all holders are named in the order of priority.

CRICKET.

There was a slight change in the Halifax Cup competition in 1901, five of the players on each of Germantown's two teams being non-interchangeable, and each team being entered as a separate contestant. Under the changed conditions Belmont captured the trophy, with Merion second and the two Germantown teams third and fourth respectively.

A record of the games won and lost is given below:

Clubs.	Belmont.	Merion.	Germantown, B.	Germantown, A.	Philadelphia.	Won.
Belmont.....	3	2	2	2	2	9
Merion.....	2	2	2	3	2	7
Germantown, B.....	1	1	2	2	2	6
Germantown, A.....	1	1	1	2	2	5
Philadelphia.....	1	0	0	0	1	1
Lost.....	3	5	5	6	9	28

PHILADELPHIA CUP.

The only change made in the Philadelphia Cup competition was the barring of professionals from the teams placed in the field by Belmont, Merion, Germantown and Philadelphia. The Cup was won by the Moorestown Club, which went through the entire season without losing a match.

A record of the games won and lost follows :

	Won.	Lost.	Per cent.
Moorestown .....	10	0	1000
Merion.....	9	6	.600
Germantown.....	6	6	.500
Belmont.....	4	7	.363
Philadelphia.....	4	7	.363
Belfield.....	2	9	.181

INDIVIDUAL PRIZES.

For the first time in several years George S. Patterson took part in most of the championship games played by his club, and by consistently good batting succeeded in once more winning the George W. Childs Batting Cup, averaging 43 as a result of ten innings.

The Bowling Cup was won by J. B. King, who took 52 wickets at a cost of only 8.86 runs a piece.

INTERNATIONAL CRICKET.

The annual match between the Gentlemen of Philadelphia and Canada was played in Toronto September 9, 10 and 11, and resulted in a victory for the former by 95 runs, the scores being: Philadelphia, 168 and 156; Canada, 128 and 101.

The international series with a visiting English amateur team, which was omitted in 1900, was resumed in 1901, and for the first time in years the Philadelphians won two of the three games played, as will be seen by the following record :

At Wissahickon Heights, September 20, 21 and 23, Philadelphia Colts, 173 and 242; Bosanquet's team, 131 and 98. Colts won by 186 runs.

At Haverford, September 27, 28 and 30, Bosanquet's team, 198 and 143; Gentlemen of Philadelphia, 103 and 177. England won by 61 runs.

At Manheim, October 4, 5 and 7, Gentlemen of Philadelphia, 312 and 186; Bosanquet's team, 166 and 103. Philadelphia won by 229 runs.

AQUATIC.

Emulating the Vesper Boat Club, the 'Varsity crew of the University of Pennsylvania journeyed abroad during the year, but, unlike the Maroon and Gray, lost the chief event they contested for. The crew competed for the Grand Challenge Cup at the Henley regatta, July 3 to 5 inclusive. The Pennsylvanians in their first trial heat beat the London Rowing Club crew by three lengths in 7.01½. The next day Pennsylvania beat the Thames Rowing Club easily in 7.22. On the third day of the regatta Pennsylvania met the Leander crew, made up of the best amateur oars of all England, and was beaten one length after a very hard race, the time being 7.04½. The University of Pennsylvania crew was made up as follows: R. R. Zane, bow; R. H. Eisenbrey, No. 2; F. L. Davenport, No. 3; S. Crowther, Jr., No. 4; A. H. Flickwir, captain, No. 5; G. S. Allyn, No. 6; W. G. Gardner, No. 7; J. P. Gardner, stroke; L. S. Smith, coxswain. A. C. Jackson and A. J. Kuhnmuensch were the substitutes and Ellis F. Ward was coach and trainer.

From Henley the Pennsylvania crew went to Ireland and on July 13 rowed the Trinity College, Dublin, eight a three-mile race on Lake Killarney, the Americans winning by about thirty lengths in 19.19½.

YACHTING.

The Columbia for a second time defended the America's Cup, Sir Thomas Lipton being again the challenger and bringing over a new yacht, Shamrock II, to compete for the prize. The Columbia won three straight races, an account of which is published on pages 40 and 41 of this ALMANAC.

SWIMMING.

[For other amateur records see LEDGER ALMANAC for 1901.]

America is gradually reaching the standard set by England in natatorial performances, and the following new records allowed during the year by the Amateur Athletic Union compare favorably with the records of Great Britain:

- 20 yards, bath, straightaway, feet and knees tied, 12 seconds, J. A. Ruddy, Chicago, Ill., March 8, 1901.
- 220 yards, straightaway, still water, 2 minutes 50 4-5 seconds, E. Carroll Schaeffer, Buffalo, N. Y., July 8, 1901.
- 300 yards, in stillwater, 4 minutes, 2-5 seconds, E. Carroll Schaeffer, Philad'a, Dec. 10, 1901.
- 400 yards, in still water, 4 minutes, 26 1-5 seconds, E. Carroll Schaeffer, Philad'a, Dec. 9, 1901.
- 440 yards, one turn, still water, 6 minutes, 26 seconds, E. Carroll Schaeffer, Buffalo, N. Y., July 9, 1901.
- 660 yards, two turns, still water, 10 minutes 37 4-5 seconds, Otto Wahle, Buffalo, N. Y., July 9, 1901.

ATHLETIC.

[For other amateur records, see LEDGER ALMANAC for 1901].

As each year begins the devotee of field and track sports is firm in the belief that no record will be supplanted. As the present year, however, marked a revival of interest due to the Pan-American Championship Games, numerous figures went by the board. The following new records have been allowed by the Amateur Athletic Union, the governing body of sport:

Throwing the hammer, 16-pound hammer, 171 feet 9 inches. John Flanagan, Celtic Park, Long Island City, September 3, 1901.

Throwing the discus, 120 feet 7¾ inches. M. J. Sheridan, Paterson, N. J., September 14, 1901.

Throwing weights, 56-pound weight, 36 feet 9½ inches. John Flanagan, Long Island City, N. Y., October 20, 1901.

Hurdle racing, 45 yards, four hurdles, 2 feet 6 inches high, 5 4-5 seconds, F. B. Scheuber, Boston, Mass., February 16, 1901.

45 yards, three hurdles, 2 feet 6 inches high, 5 3-5 seconds. F. B. Scheuber, Boston, Mass., March 16, 1901.

440 yards, ten hurdles, 2 feet 6 inches high, 56 1-5 seconds, H. Arnold, Buffalo, New York, September 7, 1901.

Running, 57 yards, 6 seconds, Arthur Kent, New York City, February 4, 1901.

40 yards, 4 3-5 seconds, A. G. Duffy, Boston, Mass., February 16, 1901.

60 yards, 6 2-5 seconds, W. D. Eaton, Buffalo, N. Y., September 6, 1901.

60 yards, 6 2-5 seconds, Washington, Delgado, New York City, February 4, 1901.

100 yards, A. G. Duffy, 9 4-5 seconds, Louisville, October 5, 1901.

110 yards, 11 2-5 seconds, W. D. Eaton, Buffalo, September 7, 1901.

Jumping, standing high jump, 5 feet 5¼ inches, Ray C. Ewry, Buffalo, N. Y., September 7, 1901.

Three standing jumps, 35 feet 7¼ inches, Ray C. Ewry, Buffalo, N. Y., September 6, 1901.

Rope Climbing, 25 feet, 6 2-5 seconds, E. Kimath, New York City, September 1, 1901.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS—FINAL SESSION.

The Fifth-sixth Congress assembled in final session December 3, 1900. The Army Reorganization bill was passed with an amendment prohibiting the sale of liquors at army posts. The Burleigh Reapportionment bill increasing the membership of the House from 357 to 386 was passed, also the bill to extend National Bank charters for twenty years after 1902. An appropriation of $5,000,000 was made to the St. Louis or Louisiana Purchase Exposition. On March 4 the Fifty-sixth Congress came to an end. Total appropriations, $1,440,002,445.95 as against $1,565,212,637.84 appropriated by the Fifty-fifth Congress.

ALMANAC COOK BOOK.

FROZEN COFFEE CUSTARD.—Eight eggs, one pint cream, one pound sugar, two pints milk, one pint strong coffee; scald milk, beat eggs and sugar till light and add to hot milk; cook for an instant, take off of fire and add cream and coffee; freeze.

FROZEN CHOCOLATE CUSTARD.—Eight eggs, two pints cream, two pints milk, one pound sugar, four ounces grated chocolate; put milk with grated chocolate on fire, add the beaten eggs and sugar to the hot milk, boil a minute, take off fire and add cream and vanilla; freeze.

SHERBETS AND PUNCHES.—To four and one-half pounds of sugar add five quarts boiling water, the juice of eight and rind of four lemons; stir all up well, strain and add the whites of six eggs, and freeze well. This is a general formula for all sherbets and punches, and gives the best satisfaction.

ROMAN PUNCH.—To the above mixture add before using two wine glasses of rum.

CARDINAL PUNCH.—To the above add two orange peels and the juice of four oranges; color bright red, and before serving add two wine glasses of sherry wine.

PINEAPPLE SHERBET.—Two small cans of grated pineapples or two small fresh-grated pineapples added to above.

ORANGE AND LEMON SHERBETS.—Add to formula for sherbets the grated peels of four and the juice of eight oranges or lemons. Other fruits for sherbets are used in the same proportions.

BATTER AND GOOSEBERRY PUDDING.—Put half a pound, or a large breakfastcupful, of flour and half a teaspoonful of salt in a bowl; beat up an egg till frothy, make a hole in the middle of the flour, and pour in the egg; take a pint, or two breakfastcupfuls, of milk—skim-milk will do nicely—add half of this, slowly stirring all the time. Beat for five minutes if you can spare the time, and add the rest of the milk; let this batter stand if possible; it could be made on Saturday if convenient. Take a quarter of a pound, or a breakfastcupful, of gooseberries, or a larger amount if you like. Give them a rub in a cloth, and with a pair of scissors cut off the spike at one end and the stalk off the other. When ready to bake grease a large dish or baking-tin with a good-sized piece of dripping, pour in the batter and shake in the gooseberries. Bake till crisp and brown; if the oven is hot it will take about three-quarters of an hour; serve with sugar.

BEEF TEA.—Three pounds shin of beef (meat and bone), the bone to be well crushed in the meat (this is best done by the butcher). Put the whole into a saucepan with enough cold water to cover it, and let it simmer from twenty to twenty-four hours, until the bone becomes as soft as marrow; then strain it, and let it remain to get cold, when it will be stiff jelly fit for use. It is best not to have less than three pounds at a time. The meat and bone can be covered with water again and treated in the same way; the result being a lower production, but useful in adding to the former if too strong. Season to taste.

CREAMED CABBAGE.—One of the most delicate ways to serve cabbage is to cream it. To do this, chop or slice the cabbage with a slow cutter; put over the fire with plenty of water boiling hot; cook for twenty or thirty minutes, not more. The cabbage remains fresh and delicate, it retains its color, and when the water is turned off and a dressing of cream and butter put over it and heated up, well seasoned with white pepper and salt, it is a dish to be relished even by one who taboos cabbage on ordinary occasions. Of course, the cabbage may have a dressing of vinegar and butter if preferred.

BAKED-APPLE SAUCE.—Choose tart apples, cut them in quarters and core them; they need not be peeled; put a layer of the apples in a small stone jar; sprinkle well with sugar, add another layer of apples, and so fill the dish; cover closely and set in the oven to cook slowly. They will need no water if the apples are juicy, and the longer they are baked the more delicious they will be, if closely covered and not allowed to bake fast or scorch.

WITH NO BRANDY.—Many people who are total abstainers are debarred from eating the Christmas pudding owing to its having brandy in it. Here is a recipe for them: Mix one pound of flour, one pound of breadcrumbs, one pound of stoned and chopped raisins, three-quarters of a pound of chopped suet, three-quarters of a pound of cleaned currants, three ounces of mixed peel, two teaspoonfuls of allspice, and a little salt; beat up three eggs with one gill of milk, or more if required. Thoroughly mix and boil for six hours.

GERMAN PASTRY.—Take three eggs and their weight in flour, sugar and butter; beat the butter and sugar to a cream; add the eggs well whisked, then the flour gradually (to which you add one teaspoonful baking-powder); now grease a baking pan and spread half the mixture on the bottom, then put a layer of raspberry jam and pour over the rest of the mixture. Bake in a moderate oven till a nice rich brown and sift white sugar over the top before serving. Hot or cold it is equally good and keeps a long time.

BRANDIED PEACHES.—A simple and good preparation of this dainty is made by using the same process as is usual for the canning of peaches—leaving the fruit whole. Then for each quart allow three pints of best brandy. Boil the juice of the peaches with the brandy for a few moments. Put the peaches into a stone jar, pour the boiling juice and brandy over and cover tight. Do not use before ten days.

BLACKBERRY CORDIAL.—Here is a new Blackberry Cordial. It will be pronounced grateful, invigorating and comforting by sportsmen, and sportswomen in particular, during the coming season: Bruise slightly two pounds of blackberries and mix them with one ounce and a half of ground ginger. Pour over them one bottle and a half of best old brandy, and let the mixture stand for two days. Strain off the liquid, and add one pound of loaf sugar which has been boiled to a syrup in a little water. Bottle and cork closely. Some people prefer the use of black currants to blackberries.

VINIAGRETTE SAUCE.—Required: Three tablespoonfuls of salad oil, one tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar, half a teaspoonful of chili vinegar, one teaspoonful of chopped tarragon, one teaspoonful of chopped chervil, salt and pepper, mix thoroughly; season carefully, and pour it into the sauceboat for serving. This is a very favorite sauce with cold asparagus, calf's head, etc.

STUFFED CUCUMBER SALAD.—Stuffed cucumber salad may be prepared as follows: Peel two medium sized cucumbers; cut them into halves, and scoop out the seeds; put into cold water without salt for at least one hour. When ready to serve, peel and chop rather fine one tomato; chop a small bunch of watercress, mix with the tomato, add a teaspoonful of onion juice, a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper, and fill it into the cucumbers and arrange them on lettuce leaves. Cut a lemon into halves, carefully press out the juice; put it over the mixture in the cucumbers; pour over each cucumber a teaspoonful of oil and serve at once.

JULIA'S BLACKBERRY CREAM.—You will need three quarts of ripe, juicy blackberries, one pound of sugar, one tablespoonful of cornstarch, one quart of good cream—not too rich. Put the berries on to heat. When warm, mash and strain them, taking out all seeds and pulp. When this juice comes again to a boil put in the cornstarch, mixed smooth in cold water, and the sugar, previously heated. Boil five minutes or until the cornstarch is cooked; then set away to cool. When quite cold add the cream and freeze. To allow four hours after freezing before using will improve the dainty, for the packing away in ice is a "ripening" process much needed by all creams.

WHITE SOUP.—Required: Three tablespoonfuls of rice flour, the remains of a boiled fowl or rabbit—about half a pound—two tablespoonfuls of cream or milk, salt and pepper, stock or milk. Rub the rice to a smooth paste with a little milk or stock, and stir it in a pan over the fire, adding gradually to it enough stock or milk to make it the consistency of cream; you will probably need about half a pint of liquid. Remove the flesh of the fowl or rabbit from the bones, mince it finely, then pound it to a smooth paste with half an ounce of butter, and three or four tablespoonfuls of stock to moisten it, and so make it pound more easily. Add this mixture to the soup, reheat it gently, keeping it well stirred. The soup, when finished, should be the thickness of cream; so, if it is too thick, add more stock. Season carefully with salt and white pepper, and add the cream, and it is ready to serve. Take care it is not allowed to boil after the cream has been added. The stock, of course, can be made from the bones of the fowl or rabbit, or from any white meat.

A DAINY SUPPER SWEET.—A very pretty sweet dish, prepared in a few minutes, is the following: Open a can of pears; put the contents in a glass dish, placing each pear flat side uppermost. Whip about three tablespoonfuls of cream until it just sticks to the fork; divide and color one-half pale pink. Place the cream—first the white and then the pink—in a bag with icing-pipe, and squeeze on to each pear, piling it up lightly, and afterwards sprinkle them with chopped pistachio nuts.

SCOTCH EGGS.—Boil hard five eggs, and without removing the white, cover completely with fine relishing forcemeat, in which let scraped ham or chopped anchovy bear a due proportion. Fry of a fine yellow brown, and serve with a good gravy in a dish. Garnish with parsley.

COCOA is the best beverage for children next to plain milk, and often, when they cannot properly digest the latter, cocoa prepared with half milk and half water is invaluable. It is also a very nourishing food for delicate women or nursing mothers; in fact, it is one of the best articles of diet for all except young infants.

CERISE PUDDING.—Required: Glace cherries, piece of pineapple, cake, three eggs, half a pint of milk, one ounce of sugar, vanilla. Grease and line a plain, round cake tin with thickly-greased paper to come above the top. Cut some glace cherries and pineapple in slices, and press alternate rows of cherries and pineapple round the tin, pressing them firmly down. Fill up the inside of the tin with broken pieces of any plain cake, such as sponge. Do not pack too closely. Now make the custard. Beat the eggs well, and add the milk to them; also the sugar, and a few drops of vanilla. Strain the custard into the cakes. Place the tin in a saucepan, with boiling water coming half way up; cover with a piece of greased paper, and steam three-quarters of an hour.

A DELICIOUS DESSERT.—Cut your bananas into thin slices and one pineapple into cubes; mix them together with a cup of sugar, and lay them in a cut-glass dish, alternating them with layers of glazed cherries in brandy; pour over all the juice of the pineapple, and the dessert is made. The cherries are made inexpensively at home by soaking the glace fruit in brandy for a few hours.

ENGLISH SALAD DRESSING.—Pass the yolks of two hard-boiled eggs through a sieve (or a gravy strainer will answer the purpose), and put them into a basin; add a little salt and pepper, a saltspoonful of made mustard and a dust of castor sugar; stir three tablespoonfuls of salad oil very gradually into the eggs, mixing them well with a wooden spoon until they form a smooth paste; then add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar in the same way, and when this is thoroughly mixed finish the dressing with a tablespoonful of raw cream, stirring only a few drops at a time into the other ingredients to prevent the mixture from curdling.

MILK BISCUIT.—Sift a small teaspoonful of baking powder into half pound of flour; slightly warm together a gill of milk and one ounce of butter; add this to the flour, mix well, roll it out, stamp it into rounds, prick and bake for twenty minutes.

BRANDY SNAPS.—Mix together one pound of flour, half pound coarse brown sugar, four ounces butter, a dessertspoonful of allspice, two dessertspoonfuls of ground ginger, the grated rind of half and the strained juice of one lemon, and one half pound of molasses. Beat this all well together, spread the paste thinly on buttered baking sheets, and bake in a rather slow oven till well colored. When baked cut it in rounds or squares, roll each round your finger or the handle of a wooden spoon as you lift it from the tin, and store in air-tight tins.

CHEESE PUDDING.—Mix well together two eggs—beaten till light—five ounces of rich cheese, and half a pint of boiling milk. Bake in a pudding dish for fifteen minutes; turn out, and serve on a napkin with dry toast.

MOCK GOOSE.—One pound sausage meat; mashed potatoes. Place a layer of meat in a baking dish; sprinkle over it a seasoning of finely-chopped onions, sage, pepper and salt. Cover this with cold mashed potatoes, then another layer of meat and seasoning, and finish with potatoes on the top. Bake brown and serve with apple sauce.

TO FRY FISH WITHOUT EGG.—When fried fish is required, and an egg is not at hand, the fish should be brushed over with milk, then lightly floured and coated thickly with fine crumbs; it is advisable to smooth the surface with a knife in order to make the crumbs adhere to the fish.

TASTY DOUGHNUTS.—Mix three pints of flour with one cupful of light brown sugar; add two tablespoonfuls of melted lard, one teaspoonful of baking-powder, a small pinch of salt, one grated nutmeg; mix into a paste with one egg and one pint of milk; roll out the paste; cut in rings and fry quickly in plenty of boiling lard. Dust over with sugar.

SPANISH CAKES.—Put a quarter of a pint of milk into an enameled saucepan with two ounces of butter and one ounce of sugar; when the milk boils dredge in very gradually three ounces of flour, stirring very quickly with a wooden spoon. Continue to stir the mixture over the fire until it becomes a smooth paste and no longer sticks to the saucepan; then remove the pan and add a few drops of vanilla essence, and when the paste has cooled a little stir in by degrees two well-whisked eggs; beat it for a few minutes and leave it until it is cold. Take a small portion of the paste at a time and mould it into little balls on a floured board or between the hands. When it is all used in this way fry the little balls in a bath of boiling clarified suet (or lard) until they are a light brown. Drain them on paper and serve them piled up on a doily with a little powdered sugar scattered over them.

BROWNE POTATOES.—Boil some large potatoes until they are cooked (they must not be mealy), drain them thoroughly and put them aside until they are cold. Then cut them into thick slices and stamp these out on a board with a medium-sized fluted cutter. Scatter a little salt and pepper over the rounds, dust them well with flour and place them on a floured board, brush over the tops with beaten egg and bake them in a well-heated oven until they are evenly browned.

CHEESE BISCUITS.—Put two ounces of flour into a bowl, add half a saltspoonful of celery salt and a dust of cayenne pepper, and rub into the flour two ounces of butter and two ounces of grated cheese. Mix the ingredients well and turn them into a stiff paste with the yelk of an egg. Dredge a little flour over the paste and turn it on to a floured board and roll it out thinly. Then, with a small cutter, stamp it out into rounds and bake them at once on a lightly-greased tin until the biscuits are a pale fawn color. They may be served hot or cold, and either with or without a little grated cheese scattered over them.

WHITE WINE WHEY.—Nourishing and easily digested. Take half a pint of milk and boil it. When boiling add a wineglassful of sherry; strain and serve hot. Unless the milk is boiling the sherry will not make it curdle in the necessary manner. Sweeten to taste.

GRUEL is made as follows:—Put two table-spoonfuls of oatmeal into a cup, and mix smooth with a little cold water. Add gently to this half a pint of boiling water; put on the fire, and, stirring all the time, boil for a quarter of an hour; strain through a fine sieve and serve hot. It can be sweetened to taste, and flavored with lemon or nutmeg, as the patient likes.

STEWED FIGS.—Dissolve four ounces of sugar in a pint of water over the fire; then lay into it about one pound of good dried figs, together with a bayleaf or two, or the thinly-pared rind of half a lemon, and let it all stew together as gently as possible for about two hours, when the figs should be soft and swollen pretty well to their original size. (The slower they are cooked the softer and better will they be.) Then lift out the bayleaf or the lemon peel, add the juice of a lemon and a glass of sherry, liquor or brandy to taste, and serve hot or cold with rice cream, empress rice, or any nice rice; mould to taste. Raisins and French plums can also be cooked thus, but the raisins should have brandy, and the plums either claret or port wine. For children, plain lemon juice or liquor syrup may be used for the flavoring.

MARRONS A LA CHANTILLY.—Take three-quarters of a pound of Spanish chestnuts, cut off the tops, and cook them in boiling water till the outer shell and inner skin can be removed. When this is done pass the chestnuts through a coarse wire sieve, and return them to a clean saucepan, with a gill of milk, well flavored with vanilla, and three ounces of sugar. Stir the chestnuts over the fire for a long time till all the moisture is absorbed. When perfectly firm and dry rub the puree through a wire sieve. As it comes through take it up with a spoon and arrange it in a circle on the dish on which it is going to be served. When all has been passed through the sieve and the circle is completed, leave it to get quite cold, and at the time of serving pile up in the center a gill of whipped cream, slightly sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

FIG PUDDING.—Put a quarter of a pound of flour into a bowl, add a pinch of salt and rub six ounces of finely-chopped suet into the flour, then add three ounces of brown sugar, a quarter of a pound of sieved white bread crumbs, half a pound of chopped figs, which have been scalded, the grated peel of a lemon, a pinch of powdered cinnamon and a teaspoonful of baking powder. Divide the yelks from the whites of two eggs, beat the former thoroughly and add a quarter of a pint of milk to them, and moisten the dry ingredients with them. Whisk the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, and add them lightly to the pudding mixture. Butter a mould, put in the pudding, tie it up in a cloth which has been wrung out of boiling water and then floured, and boil the pudding steadily for three and a half hours, but be careful that the water does not go over the pudding. When done turn out and surround with sweet sauce flavored with sherry or vanilla.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

PATENT-LEATHER SHOES.—Sponge off all dirt, rub with milk, and polish with soft cloth.

TO REMOVE GRASS STAINS FROM LINEN.—Dampen the soiled part with alcohol and rub till the stain disappears.

FOR CLOTHES THAT HAVE BEEN CREASED IN PACKING.—Shake vigorously, and hang in a warm room several hours.

IF A STALE LOAF be dipped in cold water and then rebaked it will be as wholesome as if it were cold and stale.

WHEN STEWING FRUIT, it takes nearly twice as much sugar to sweeten if added before cooking. Cook first, then sweeten to taste.

TO CLEAN WHITE SATIN SHOES.—Rub with the grain with a piece of flannel dipped in spirits of wine, turning the flannel as it gets soiled.

FOR THE COOK.—If the fat begins to foam when you are cooking fish or croquettes, the temperature is too low. Finish cooking what is already in the pan, and heat till a blue smoke rises before putting in more.

CLEANING CARPETS ON THE FLOOR.—Sweep thoroughly first; then put two tablespoonfuls of ammonia in a pan of water, and, with a brush, not too stiff, scrub the carpet carefully, being careful not to make it very wet. Wipe with a cloth; change the water frequently. Open all the windows and doors until the carpet dries.

PARSLEY is used in many dishes for seasoning as well as garnishing. An easy way of chopping parsley is to dip the sprigs into boiling water in which a piece of soda the size of a pea has been dissolved, and let them stay there a moment, when they will turn a bright green; place them upon a board, and with a sharp knife cut the leaves quickly into particles. When powdered parsley is desired place the sprigs, after taking them from the boiling water, on a plate in a hot oven for a few moments; when the parsley is dry it can readily be made into powder by rubbing it through a sieve.

A SIMPLE WAY OF CLARIFYING DRIPPING.—Put the dripping into a bowl with a teaspoonful of powdered borax and a little boiling water, and let it melt in the oven, then strain into a bowl and put aside to cool. When cold remove the cake of dripping from the bowl; scrape off the sediment which will be found at the bottom of it; wipe it and put on to a clean dry plate. Scraps and trimmings of fat, both cooked and uncooked, can be utilized for frying purposes thus. Cut up the fat and place it in a saucepan (an old pan should be used for the purpose), with a pinch of borax and sufficient cold water to cover it; put the pan on the stove and let the contents boil up and then simmer for about an hour, stirring the fat occasionally; pour it through an old sieve into a bowl, and when cold it can be used instead of lard.

A VALUABLE EMBROCATION.—The cost of making this up is small, but it is excellent for sprains, sore throats and rheumatism. Take half a pint of turpentine and one egg, put them into a large bottle, cork it and shake it till it becomes a thick cream, then add gradually one pint of vinegar; bottle for use. This mixture will keep for years and is improved by the addition of a small lump of camphor.

TO CLEAN ENAMELED SAUCEPANS.—Dissolve half a teaspoonful of chloride of lime in a saucepan of water, and boil till all stain is removed.

TO PREVENT FRUIT JUICE from running out of tarts in the oven, make a little opening in the upper crust, and insert a straw or little roll of white paper perpendicularly. The steam will escape through it as through a chimney, and all the juice will be retained in the pie.

TO RAISE THE PILE ON PLUSH OR VELVET.—Dampen on the wrong side with clean, cold water; then hold tight across the face of a hot iron, and rub up the crushed spot with a clean, stiff brush.

FINE WHITE TABLE SALT.—Rub well into a large cupful of salt about a dessertspoonful of cornflour, and you will find your salt does not get damp or lumpy.

TO PREVENT WILD DUCKS TASTING STRONG AND FISHY.—Peel the yellow rind very thinly off a small lemon, leaving all the thick white on; stuff the wild duck with the lemon whole and roast. This takes away all strong and fishy taste and improves flavor.

TO MAKE A LAMP SAFE.—A tablespoonful of salt put into a lamp will not only cause the wick to burn clearly and steadily, but will prevent the lamp taking fire in case of an accident or sudden draught.

A STOCKING HINT.—To finish the toe of a stocking neatly try the following way: After the intakes are finished leave ten stitches on front wire, same on back wires. Now break off a good long thread of wool to finish toe; take a darning needle, put wool through it and put it into first stitch of front wire as if for plaining; slip it off. Then put needle into second stitch of front wire as if for purling, but do not slip off. Put needle into first stitch of back wire as if for purling, slip off, put into second stitch of back wire as if for plaining, but do not slip off, and so on till the loops are finished; then slip the wool down side of intakes and fasten. This does away with the ridge and leaves it plain and smooth.

TO MAKE AND USE LIME WATER.—For Laundry Uses—Put chloride of lime into a pail, and put on enough water to dissolve it; stir well and leave to stand for a few hours; then drain off the water and bottle it for use. Largely diluted, it will whiten linen that has grown yellow because laid by.

For Use in Food, such as milk, put a large lump of unslaked lime into a stone jar, fill with water, stir and allow to stand. When clear, the water will have absorbed all the lime it can retain in solution and may be poured off for use as directed.

To Clean Clothes.—Add to lime water pearlash (proportions, three ounces to a gallon), filter through a piece of muslin, and bottle for use. This mixture will clean any kind of cloth, but it must be diluted according to the delicacy of the color.

For gentlemen's and boys' clothes it is the best thing, and is a recipe used by several good tailors.

Wring a piece of black cloth out of the mixture, and with this rub the soiled cloth, particularly on collars, sleeves and knees; iron whilst damp.

ACKERS

You've probably known us for 21 years.

ABSOLUTE RELIABILITY has been our dominating business principle during that period.

"H. G." (Highest Grade) has been our established trade mark for quality.

ACKERS DRY ROAST COFFEE and the Mokof-fee Pot appear on the table of the majority of Philadelphia coffee connoisseurs.

ACKERS 39c BON BONS have gained a national reputation. No wonder—when a side-by-side comparison proves them fully equal to any others sold at 80c!

Are we serving you?

Our Catalog, Ackers Weekly, and addressed postal card sent on request. Or we can call you up on the telephone—if you'd like.

OF THE UNITED STATES

HENRY B. HYDE, Founder

JAMES W. ALEXANDER, President

JAMES H. HYDE, Vice President

THE SAFEST AND BEST OF SECURITIES

SPECIAL FEATURES

These bonds are preferable to Government Securities. They are practically as safe because they are issued by the strongest financial institution of its kind, whose Surplus ($71,000,000) is larger than that of any other company in the world.

They are superior to Government bonds, because—

- 1—The interest rate is higher (5 per cent.)
- 2—The cost is less.
- 3—They may be paid for in instalments.
- 4—They are insured.

TERMS

The purchaser may pay for these Bonds in twenty equal annual instalments. The price of the Bonds, in consequence of the insurance feature, varies according to the age of the purchaser.

For price of purchase and further particulars, cut out and mail coupon below.

FEBRUARY.

Inferior conjunction of MERCURY (☿) and SUN (☉), on February 2.

Conjunction of MERCURY (☿) and SATURN (♄) on February 13.

Conjunction of JUPITER (♃) and SUN (☉) on February 19.

THE EPHEMERIS.

The Ephemeris for the present year gives the day of the year, the day of the month, and day of the week in civil time, according to which the day begins at midnight. Next are given the time of sunrise, the time at which the sun's center souths, or is on the meridian, and the time of sunset. The times of sunrise and sunset are in each case for the upper limb or edge of the sun and corrected for refraction. They are more accurate than usually found in popular almanacs, and will give the time with sufficient accuracy for ordinary purposes. A surveyor's level will give the horizon where the upper edge of the sun should be at the time given in the Almanac. If the telescope of the leveling instrument inverts, the upper edge will, of course, be apparently the lower one. Next are given the times of rising, southing and setting of the moon. The rising and setting are for the upper limb, corrected for parallax and refraction, and the southing is for the moon's center. The age of the moon gives the number of days elapsed since the last new moon. Then follow the times of high and low water at Washington ave., Philadelphia (for high and low water at other places, see table on page 33). In the last column are given the times when the Moon is in Perigee or Apogee, also a collection of interesting astronomical phenomena for the year. All data in this Almanac are given in Eastern Standard Time, which is 38'' ahead of Philadelphia local time; hence the two times are practically the same, except for sun's southing; in this case subtract 38'' to get the corresponding local time.

CHRONOLOGICAL ERAS.

The year 5664 of the Jewish era begins at sunset on September 21.

The year 1903 corresponds to the year 2656 since the foundation of Rome according to Varro; to the year 2679 of the Olympiads, or the third year of the 670th Olympiad; to the year 2563 of the Japanese era, and to the 36th year of the "Meiji;" to the year 1321 of the Mohammedan era, which begins on March 30.

FIVE hundred and thirty-two tons of cigarettes were exported last year from Egypt.

ASIA contains more than half of the people of the world.

SATURN (♄) will be Morning Star until July 20, and Evening Star from August 11 to end of year. It will be in opposition and at its greatest brilliancy July 31.

HAY-PAUNCEFOTE TREATY.

The new Hay-Pauncefote treaty, abrogating the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, was signed in November, 1901, and later was ratified by the Senate. Under the Clayton-Bulwer treaty neither nation could build the Nicaragua canal without the consent of the other. It related to a project abandoned many years ago, and in the opinion of many statesmen had become void. But Secretary Hay admitted its existence and binding force in negotiating for a modification of its terms. By the treaty now ratified the United States is permitted to build the canal, but is required to give to all nations, in peace and in war, exactly the same rights in the use of the canal that it reserves for itself. If the Panama route should be adopted, however, the Nicaragua canal will not be built.

ECLIPSES IN 1903.

In the year 1903 there will be four Eclipses—two of the Sun and two of the Moon, as follows:

First. An Annular Eclipse of the Sun, March 28, not visible in this country, but visible in Asia, on the North Pacific Ocean and in Alaska.

Second. A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, April 11; visible in the United States, in Europe, Africa, South America, and in the western part of Asia. The following are the times of phases at Philadelphia:

	h. m.
Moon enters shadow, April 11.....	5 34 P.M.
Middle of Eclipse " 11.....	7 13 P.M.
Moon leaves shadow " 11.....	8 52 P.M.
Magnitude of Eclipse=0.97 (Moon's diam.=1).

Third. A Total Eclipse of the Sun, September 20-21; not visible in the United States, but visible in South-east Africa and on the Indian Ocean.

Fourth. A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, October 6; not visible in the United States, but visible in Africa, eastern part of Europe, and on the Pacific Ocean.

CUBA FREE AT LAST.

The Cuban people at the close of 1901 elected Mr. Estrada Palma President of the new republic. President Palma was supported by Gomez and the Cubans who desired independence under the friendly auspices of the United States. He was opposed by two sets of radicals, one opposed to the United States and one in favor of annexation. President Palma, having lived in this country for many years, is entirely familiar with our political institutions. On May 20, 1902, President Palma was inaugurated, and the United States civil and military authorities were withdrawn from the island, with the exception of small forces left to care for reservations. The new government started out very well, though hampered by want of revenue. It was hoped that the United States would adopt a bill providing for reciprocal trade relations with Cuba, as recommended by President Roosevelt, and the failure of that measure caused considerable distress; but order was maintained throughout the year, and there is a fair prospect that with a return of business prosperity the republic will become firmly established.

CHARLES J. GLIDDEN, of Boston, sent a telegraphic message around the world early in November, to test the time required. The message was delivered to him 39 hours and 20 minutes after it had been filed. It was sent by way of the new British Pacific cables, of which the last section was laid at the Fiji Islands on October 30.

HAVANA and Santiago are now connected by a railroad built by American investors. Through service will be begun early in 1903. It is said that the railroad will make revolutions impossible.

THE Board on Geographical Names has decided that Marseilles, France, should be spelled without the final s—Marseille.

THE French Government is about to plow a furrow two and a half feet deep and 1500 miles long across the North African desert, from Tunis to Lake Chad, to contain telegraph cable. The enormous plow will be drawn by an engine at the rate of only a mile an hour. This is putting the wires under ground in a very satisfactory manner, and may not cost much more than to string them on poles.

LAST year we imported nearly 8,000,000 bushels of potatoes, this quantity being exceeded only twice in our history. In the previous fiscal year the crop in this country was much larger, and we imported only 372,000 bushels.

BABANET calculates that the substance from which comets are made is 140,000,000 times lighter than our air.

THE highest mountain in the moon is at least 35,000 feet in height; that is, 6000 feet higher than Mt. Everest.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

Considerable progress was made during the year in the development of systems of wireless telegraphy, although no commercial use has been made of any of them. The United States Government used for a time a system devised by officers of the Weather Bureau, and after successful experiments adopted it for use in Alaska and awarded contracts for the instruments required. The Marconi system was not employed, but no information was made public respecting the principles involved in the process. Each European government has developed a system differing, it is said, from that of Marconi, and the latter inventor is said to have abandoned the coherer, which was the chief feature of his original system. Marconi claimed that he had received signals (not messages) at his Newfoundland station, transmitted from his corresponding station on the British coast. Important receiving and sending stations were erected in this country and Europe, by which Marconi hoped to establish a commercial system of wireless telegraphy across the ocean; but at the end of November, 1902, no report had been made of successful experiment between the two continents. The range of wireless telegraphy, however, was greatly extended during the year, and the certainty of operation increased.

GREAT BRITAIN buys over 11,000 tons of German toys annually, while the United States ranks next, with an importation of about 6000 tons.

THE Laplanders are the shortest people in Europe—men averaging 4 feet 11 inches, women 4 feet 9 inches.

THE median age of the white population in the last census year was 23.4, and of the colored 19.7 years.

AUTOMATIC station buffets are being fitted up on the underground railway in Berlin.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY has decided to retain Greek as a compulsory study.

THE PHILIPPINES.

On December 2, 1901, the Supreme Court of the United States handed down a decision respecting the tariff relations between the Philippine Islands and the United States, following the principle of the Porto Rican decision. The Court holds in brief that Congress may enact any tariff whatsoever between the United States and its Territories and possessions, but that until Congress has acted it must be assumed that no tariff barrier exists between regions under the jurisdiction of the United States. The case arose from the attempt of a soldier to bring a number of diamond rings from the Philippines without paying duty thereon. At that time, under an executive order, the United States was levying the regular rates of the Dingley tariff bill upon importations from the Philippines, and at Manila duties prescribed by the Philippine Commission were levied upon goods imported from the United States. The decision of the Supreme Court established the right of Congress, but not of the Executive alone, to impose such duties, and a bill was at once introduced in Congress to re-establish the system. It was passed promptly by the House by a vote of 163 to 128, five Republicans voting with the Democratic minority and three Democrats with the Republican majority. It was debated in the Senate for a long while, but was finally passed and received the approval of President Roosevelt on March 8.

THE aggregate weight carried by the individual infantryman in heavy marching order is 76 pounds. This is distributed as follows: Clothing on person, 11 pounds 1¼ ounces; rifle and equipment, 26 pounds 14¾ ounces; haversack and contents, 9 pounds 10½ ounces; canteen, tincup, etc., 1 pound 8½ ounces; three pints of water, 3 pounds; blanket, pack and clothing, 24 pounds 14 ounces.

THE sun gives us 36,000,000 times as much light as all the stars put together. It is 600,000 times brighter than the full moon.

OUT of 100 pounds of paper manufactured in the world, only six pounds is made into books.

VENEZUELA AND COLOMBIA.

For two years or more Venezuela and Colombia have been disturbed by revolutions. The Colombian government has been conservative and clerical, and has refused to hold elections, for fear the Liberals might obtain control. This is the prime reason for the revolt. Venezuela Liberals have helped the Colombian rebels and nearly provoked a war; but both governments have been too busy with their own rebels to engage in warfare with each other. Castro, who has governed Venezuela with a high hand, has had difficulties with both Germany and the United States, the former nation threatening to seize the custom house at La Guayre to enforce payment of debts to German subjects. Upon the assurance of the German government that there was no intention to permanently occupy the country, the United States government allowed it to be understood that it would not interfere in the matter. Action was delayed, however, probably because of the unsettled condition of the country, and because of the possibility, if not probability, that Castro would be overthrown, in which case negotiations for a settlement would be made with the new government. Early in October Castro's forces were reported to be surrounded by a superior force of rebels; but on November 1 the revolutionists, being without ammunition, began a retreat. As soon as Castro learned the reason for the retirement he ordered a vigorous pursuit. The government troops captured ammunition on the way to the revolutionary forces, and the rebels continued their flight. Within twenty-four hours the rebellion collapsed, apparently owing to some dispute between the leaders. On November 9 President Castro made a triumphal entry into Caracas at the head of 3200 troops. The rebel forces, supposed to number 10,000, were then widely scattered and disorganized.

THE score of an unpublished opera by Ponchielli, composer of "La Gioconda," who died in 1886, has been found among his papers. It is entitled "The Moors of Valencia," the heroine being a Moorish girl who becomes the object of the love of Philip III, and is killed by her father to preserve her honor. The opera is to be produced at Cremona.

THE ISLE OF PINES.

In November, 1902, an important question relating to the control of the Isle of Pines, off the coast of Cuba, was presented to President Roosevelt, and will probably become during 1903 the subject of negotiations with Cuba. In the treaty with Spain following the Spanish-American war a distinction was made between Cuba and the islands ceded to the United States. Throughout the treaty Spain simply relinquishes all claim of sovereignty over Cuba, but cedes all other islands, including "Porto Rico and other islands now under Spanish sovereignty in the West Indies." American speculators assumed that the Isle of Pines would be under American jurisdiction and bought about one-half the island. But the Isle of Pines was politically a part of Cuba and therefore held to be a part of the Cuban republic when that was established. For some time it was without government of any kind; then it was turned over to the Republic of Cuba for administrative purposes. Late in 1902 the Cuban government announced its intention to establish prisons, penal colonies and a leper hospital on the island, and this brought about a protest to President Roosevelt on the part of 300 American resident owners of property, who fear that they will lose their investments. The legal claim of Cuba to the island appears to be perfect, and the only way to protect American interests there is to buy the island from Cuba; but it is doubtful whether the Republic would be willing to sell it even to a friendly power.

THE proper way to address communications to the President of the United States is "The President," not "Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States." Members of the Cabinet and all other officials, in addressing the President, use the words "the President." Persons having intimate personal acquaintance with the President, in addressing him by letter, should write "Dear Mr. President." It would be in very bad form to address the President as "Mr. Roosevelt."

So difficult is the art of cutting gloves that most of the principal cutters are known in the trade by name and by fame.

Explanations to Tide Tables.

To find the times of high or low water for any place given in the table above, apply the correction opposite the place to the times of high or low water for Philadelphia given on each calendar page of this Almanac. Add the correction when it is plus, and subtract it when it is minus.

EXAMPLE—At what time in the morning will it be high water at Dover, Del., on May 17, 1903?

Time of high water at Philadelphia on May 17, A.M. . . . . =5h. 24m.
 Correction for Dover (see table above) . . . . . -2 39

Time of high water at Dover, Del., on May 17 . . . . . =2h. 45m. A.M.

The places, instead of being arranged alphabetically, are put as nearly as may be in their geographical order, beginning on the northern New Jersey coast, and following the coast to the Delaware, and thence up that river and the Schuylkill.

POINTS FROM PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE OF DECEMBER 2, 1902.

I believe that monopolies, unjust discrimination, which prevent or cripple competition, fraudulent overcapitalization and other evils in trust organizations and practices which injuriously affect interstate trade can be prevented under the power of the Congress to "regulate commerce."

Corporations, and especially combinations of corporations, should be managed under public regulation.

TARIFF AND BUSINESS.

It is most earnestly to be wished that we could treat the tariff from the standpoint solely of our business needs.

OUR PROSPERITY.

No country has ever occupied a higher plane of material well-being than ours at the present moment. This well-being is due to no sudden or accidental causes, but to the play of the economic forces in this country for over a century; to our laws, our sustained and continuous policies; above all, to the high individual average of our citizenship.

THE FINANCIAL SYSTEM.

It would be both unwise and unnecessary at this time to attempt to reconstruct our financial system, which has been the growth of a century; but some additional legislation is, I think, desirable.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

Organized capital and organized labor alike should remember that in the long run the interest of each must be brought into harmony with the interest of the general public, and the conduct of each must conform to the fundamental rules of obedience to the law, of individual freedom and of justice and fair dealing toward all. This is an era of federation and combination.

MILITIA REORGANIZATION.

The measure providing for the reorganization of the militia system and for securing the highest efficiency in the National Guard, which has already passed the House, should receive prompt attention and action. It is of great importance that the relation of the National Guard to the militia and volunteer forces of the United States should be defined, and that in place of our present obsolete laws a practical and efficient system should be adopted.

LARGER NAVY URGED.

There should be no halt in the work of building up the navy, providing every year additional fighting craft. We have deliberately made our own certain foreign policies which demand the possession of a first class navy.

OUR PHILIPPINE WORK.

Taking the work of the army and the civil authorities together, it may be questioned whether anywhere else in modern times the world has seen a better example of real constructive statesmanship than our people have given in the Philippine Islands.

ARBITRATION.

Wherever possible arbitration or some similar method should be employed in lieu of war to settle difficulties between civilized nations, although as yet the world has not progressed sufficiently to render it possible, or necessarily desirable, to invoke arbitration in every case.

DUTY TO CUBA.

Cuba lies at our doors, and whatever affects her for good or for ill affects us also. So much have our people felt this that in the Platt amendment we definitely took the ground that Cuba must hereafter have closer political relations with us than with any other Power. Thus, in a sense, Cuba has become a part of our international political system.

FUTURE PART IN WORLD.

As a people we have played a large part in the world, and we are bent upon making our future even larger than the past. In particular, the events of the last four years have definitely decided that, for woe or for weal, our place must be great among the nations. We may either fail greatly or succeed greatly; but we cannot avoid the endeavor from which either great failure or great success must come. Even if we would, we cannot play a small part.

THE PACIFIC CABLE

The arrangements by which the deep sea soundings and surveys made by the Nero under the direction of the Navy Department are to be turned over to the Commercial Cable Company for use in laying the Pacific cable beyond the Hawaiian Islands have been completed.

The representatives of the cable company examined the charts at the Department, and on November 26 accepted the terms named by the Attorney General. Duplicate sets of the charts have been prepared, and will be turned over to the company. The only provision of the terms laid down by the Government to which the company took exception was that providing for American operatives. This was modified at the request of the company to provide for American operatives when obtainable. The charts will carry the cable beyond the Hawaiian Islands to Midway Islands, and from the Midway Islands to Guam. From Guam two links will extend, one to Manila and the other to Yokohama.

Among the other conditions imposed are that the Government may assume full control of the cable in time of war, that rates must be reasonable, that the cable shall touch none except American territory.

THE GREAT ANTHRACITE STRIKE

On May 12, 1902, all the coal mines in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania were closed by a strike ordered by the United Mine Workers of America, John Mitchell, President. The vote to strike was by no means unanimous, and President Mitchell was said at the time to have advised against it. In the Hazleton district 462 delegates voted for and 349 against a strike. All the miners obeyed the order, however, and altogether 146,000 men and boys were thrown out of employment. Soon thereafter train crews were laid off, and within a month there were probably 200,000 men out of work as a result of the strike. The firemen, engineers and pumpmen were ordered from the mines, the purpose being to flood the workings, which would cause immense loss to the operators; but the latter managed to keep the pumps at work by employing green hands and such of their old employes as refused to obey the strike order. To protect them they were obliged to employ thousands of special policemen and deputies.

The miners were greatly helped by an act of the Legislature passed ostensibly for the protection of mine workers from accidents. This act requires that miners shall be licensed before being allowed to mine coal, and that no one shall be granted a license as miner until he has had two years' experience in the mines. Under this law it is difficult to obtain qualified miners outside of the union.

The strike had its origin in misunderstandings respecting the settlement of the strike of 1900. At that time political influence was brought to bear to secure a settlement, owing to fears that the continuance of the strike might interfere with the re-election of President McKinley. The operators then agreed to grant an advance of 10 per cent. in wages for six months, namely, until April, 1901. In March, 1901, President Mitchell sought to make a new agreement; but the operators refused to deal with him or to recognize the union. Informal assurances were given that the 10 per cent. increase would be continued, and that many of the miners' grievances would have considerate investigation. But the aim of President Mitchell was to have the union recognized and to establish a system similar to that ruling in the bituminous regions of the Western States, where representatives of operators and miners meet together each year to fix a scale of wages and adjust grievances. The men were led to believe that if they remained quiet during 1901 the union would be recognized in 1902. There was no such understanding, however, and in April, 1902, the operators adhered to their former position—continuing the 10 per cent. advance in wages, but refusing to deal with the union. The strike followed, the miners demanding 20 per cent. advance in wages, an eight hour day, a redress of various grievances and submission to arbitration of questions not settled by agreement. The strike was carried on with much stubbornness and so much violence that, within a month, troops had to be called out, and remained on duty for six months. Many of the miners removed to the bituminous fields or obtained employment elsewhere; funds for the support of the strikers and their families were raised by labor organizations and by contributions of the general public, and the hopes of the strikers were kept alive by almost weekly reports of intervention from some high quarter—by Mr. Morgan, Senator Quay, President Roosevelt. By these means the strike was prolonged to October. The operating companies obtained from washeries small quantities of coal, and gradually increased the output, but could not pretend to supply the demand. Prices nominally reached $25 a ton in Philadelphia; but there was really no anthracite for sale at any price to the casual buyer.

In this emergency President Roosevelt summoned the operators and labor leaders before him in an effort to promote a settlement. He disclaimed any authority in the matter, and made no recommendation beyond appealing to them to settle their differences from patriotic motives and out of regard for the public. Both sides remained firm, however. President Mitchell offered to submit the questions at issue to arbitration; the arbitrators refused to deal with Mitchell, but offered, if the miners should return to work, to consider all claims and either adjust them to the satisfaction of their employes or submit differences to the arbitration of the Court of Common Pleas in the district in which the colliery should be situated.

The operators having declared that they could mine coal if given adequate protection, Governor Stone ordered the entire National Guard of Pennsylvania to the coal regions. Shipments of coal were slightly increased; but it soon became apparent that the men would not yield and that no substitutes for them could be obtained. In the meantime, President Roosevelt continued his negotiations for a settlement, and on October 14 succeeded in inducing the operators to agree to submit the whole matter to a commission appointed by the President. They specified the classes of men to compose the commission, and this having been accepted, the President appointed:

Brigadier General John M. Wilson, as an officer of the Engineer Corps of the army or navy.

E. W. Parker, of Washington, D. C., as an expert mining engineer.

Hon. George Gray, of Wilmington, Del., as a Judge of a United States court.

E. E. Clarke, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., Grand Chief of the Order of Railway Conductors, as a sociologist.

Thomas H. Watkins, of Scranton, as a man practically acquainted with the mining and selling of coal.

Bishop John L. Spalding, of Peoria, Ill., chosen by the President in addition to those specified to be appointed.

Hon. Carroll D. Wright was at first appointed Recorder of the Commission, but was afterwards made a member, as well.

The miners in convention accepted the terms of the arbitration, and on October 20 declared the strike off. There was considerable delay in getting some of the mines opened, and there was great scarcity of coal in the large cities as late as December 1.

The Commission met on October 24, and organized with Judge Gray as Chairman. It held a number of meetings in the coal regions, taking testimony and examining the mines. On November 22 it adjourned until December 3, a movement having been started for an amicable settlement between the parties in interest. These negotiations failed, however, and the Commission, which had never surrendered its authority and had no intention of doing so, prepared to conduct its investigation to a conclusion.

The strike was exceedingly costly, the miners alone losing $30,000,000 in wages. Other losses can only be estimated, but they probably exceeded the direct loss in wages. A great many individual acts of violence were committed, but there was no serious conflict with the troops. Considerable property was destroyed by dynamite, and eight men were killed and eleven wounded.

VOLCANIC ERUPTIONS OF MT. PELEE.

The most appalling disaster in the history of the Western Hemisphere, the most complete devastation of a city and its inhabitants known to modern times, is the record of May 8, 1902, when 40,000 persons perished in a volcanic eruption at Martinique.

The ill-fated island, a French possession, is situated in the Lesser Antilles, between the islands of Dominica and St. Lucia. The island, with an area of nearly 400 square miles, is one of the largest of the group, and on the northwestern coast lay the prosperous city of St. Pierre, with 30,000 inhabitants. To the north of the town, near the northern coast of the island, and but three miles from the city, was a supposedly extinct volcano—Mt. Pelee. Early in the year observers noticed signs of activity in the old craters, but no uneasiness was felt until, on May 5, an eruption of boiling mud swept down the western slope of the mountain into the sea, destroying a sugar mill and several plantations.

To allay the alarm felt by a recrudescence of the old volcano, a number of scientists from St. Pierre made an investigation, and solemnly announced that there existed no cause for danger.

Shortly before 8 o'clock, on May 8, with a violence that surpasses description, the gases and lava from the mountain burst through the southwesterly side, and in ten minutes the city of St. Pierre, the residences in most of the surrounding country and all the shipping in the harbor were destroyed.

The destruction was complete, and of the living persons in the zone of fire and gases, the score or so who escaped were some of those on steamers lying in the harbor.

Fortunately, the death of so many persons by such a cause was so instant and complete, that the suffering of the victims was reduced to a few moments' pain. There were three zones of destruction; first, a zone where the heat, flames and lava instantly destroyed buildings, all living things, all vegetation; secondly, a zone which included the city of St. Pierre, where death was caused by a violent blast of poisonous gases that killed all as quickly as a lightning flash, and the outer zone, which destroyed vegetation and houses by hot mud and lava. The greatest force of the explosion was vented directly over the ill-fated city, thence to sea, the southern limit of the death-dealing gases being a spur of a mountain that extended into the sea at the extreme southern portion of St. Pierre.

Nor was Mt. Pelee the only volcano to cause death. Within a few hours the volcano on the island of St. Vincent, some hundred miles south of Martinique, also erupted, causing great destruction of property and the loss of 2800 lives, including most of the survivors of the Caribs, who originally inhabited the West Indies. Violent earthquakes followed in Guatemala, in the north central portion of the United States, and volcanic disorders were reported from Alaska, but nothing serious developed, except late in the year in Guatemala. One peculiarity in the eruption of Mt. Pelee was the suddenness of the eruption, no record being made on delicate seismoscopes in Washington.

Several violent eruptions caused the loss of lives in Martinique later in May and June, but the total was under a thousand, and gradually the death dealing mountain became quiet.

News of the disaster was promptly met in the United States by the collection of a relief fund, which saved much distress. France, while much slower, finally accumulated a fund amounting to nearly $500,000, which is being used to help planters regain their standing.

The volcanic dust from the explosion covered the remainder of the island and some of the surrounding islands with nearly a foot of lava dust, which, however, was of value as a fertilizer. Great alarm, felt at the time of the disaster, and fear that the earth's crust was weakening, has been dispelled, and even in Martinique, Mt. Pelee is now regarded as being harmless.

END OF THE BOER WAR.

The unsuccessful struggle of the Boers for independence suddenly ended May 31, 1902, by the surrender of the Boer forces in the field, through their representatives at Pretoria. By the terms of surrender, the British secured peace and control of South Africa, the losers secured terms which are so magnanimous as to appear humiliating to the victor. Great Britain bound herself to repatriate all Boer prisoners of war, all decrees of banishment were revoked, full amnesty and full political rights were guaranteed, and self-government promised, and $15,000,000 is to be devoted to aiding those ruined by the war. Even the Boer war debt has been given validity. The world was well amazed at the military successes of the Boers; their terms of surrender were even more amazing.

In December, 1901, the war was yet in the guerrilla stage, and was marked by unimportant engagements and numerous captures by both sides, the British suffering nearly as great losses in killed and wounded as during the more spectacular period of the war. On January 31, 1902, the British Government reported a total list of casualties to date, including surviving wounded, of 5240 officers and 100,701 men.

On March 7 General Delarey defeated a strong British force under General Methuen. The latter, who was wounded, was made prisoner, but later released. The British loss was 43 killed, 77 wounded, and four pieces of artillery. This was the last important engagement. The British Government is now occupied in carrying out the terms of agreement and reducing its forces in South Africa. The return of so many soldiers to England has glutted the labor market, causing great distress and anxiety.

The war having ended, the most difficult task is but begun, and the reconstruction period promises to make serious trouble before it is ended. A great wave of discontent is agitating England, due to the opinions of returned soldiers, who make serious charges against the War Office. The colonial and irregular troops employed against the Boers have many grievances, and at one time a revolt by some of the latter was actually discussed.

Following the treaty of peace, Generals Botha, Delarey and De Wet made a visit to England and the Continent, in order to secure additional help for the impoverished farmers of the two colonies, but with little result. Their reception was cordial in England and fruitless on the Continent. General Botha was engaged in November, 1902, with the aid of the British Government, in an effort to recover $2,600,000, the property of the Transvaal Government, which, they claim, is in the possession of ex-President Kruger and Dr. Leyds, and which they desire shall be used in rebuilding the country. Kruger, De Wet and other Boer leaders have written their memoirs.

The success of the guerrilla warfare, which ended the war, is proven by the inability of the British forces to make headway against it, and at the time of the surrender the Boer forces were better able to continue the struggle for a year or more than when that policy was decided upon, notwithstanding the elaborate blockhouse system constructed throughout the Boer republics.

Great Britain has destroyed the republics, has overpowered the domination of the Boers in South Africa; her greatest problem now is to overcome the growing cry of "Africa for the Africans."

ELKIN PENSION FUND FOR SCHOOL TEACHERS.

The accounts of the Lewis Elkin estate, filed by the Pennsylvania Company for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities, have been adjudicated, and the Orphans' Court has directed that the balance be held and applied for "the Lewis Elkin Fund for the Relief of Disabled Female School Teachers in the Employ of the City of Philadelphia."

The balance of principal, consisting of securities and cash, was stated to be $1,825,517, in addition to a balance of $58,075 accrued income since Mr. Elkin's death. It is estimated that after the payment of legacies and inheritance tax the teachers' annuity fund will amount to upward of $1,750,000.

The annuity fund is to be administered by the Pennsylvania Company, and annuities paid to such applicants as are recommended by the Board of Education, which will be required to certify that such applicants comply with the provisions in Mr. Elkin's will. These provisions require that annuitants have taught for twenty-five years or upward in the public schools of Philadelphia, are unmarried and have no other means of support. The annuities are to amount to $400, paid quarterly, for life.

The Board of Education committee which is to pass on the qualifications of applicants consists of Simon Gratz, Chairman; John M. Campbell, Thomas E. Merchant, Joseph W. Catharine and Joel Cook. Several hundred applications have been already filed with the Secretary of the Board. If otherwise qualified, Mr. Elkin directed that annuities be paid to those who first filed their applications in point of time.

RECIPROCITY WITH NEWFOUNDLAND.

On November 8, Secretary Hay, for the United States, and Sir Michael Herbert, representing the British Government and the Government of Newfoundland, at the State Department, signed what is known as the Bond-Hay treaty, providing for reciprocity between the United States and Newfoundland in fish products and bait.

THE DOUKHOBORS

In the fall of 1902 a strange exodus of Russian immigrants in Canada attracted attention. They were radical members of a singular people known as Doukhobors, who, after an existence of 140 years in Russia, were forced by persecution to leave that country and settled in Manitoba. Their religion greatly resembles that of the Friends, but in addition to holding to the principles of the Friends, they are vegetarians, and some go to the extreme of refusing to employ animal labor. Some of the extremists, stirred up by a Russian Anarchist, started during the fall of 1902 toward Winnipeg in search of the Messiah. The movement was formidable, for it embraced 2000 or more men, women and children, scantily clad in raiment derived from vegetable sources (chiefly cotton), and all of them refused to receive sustenance from animal products. The Government had great difficulty in dealing with them, for they were sincere fanatics, but after they had suffered great hardships upon the approach of winter weather they were induced to return to their homes. In the meantime some of the members of the Christian community of the Universal Brotherhood, at Cronstand, Assinoiba, had written to President Roosevelt, asking for a refuge in the United States. The request was denied.

FIRST SESSION FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS

The Fifty-seventh Congress assembled for its first session December 2, 1901. President Roosevelt's message was read the next day, and excited a great deal of interest both in this country and in Europe. The most important measures passed were:

The bill for the repeal of the war revenue taxes.

The Philippine tariff bill.

The bill for the civil government of the Philippines.

The bill for the creation of a permanent census bureau under civil service rules.

A bill for the protection of the President of the United States.

A bill setting aside certain funds for the reclamation of arid lands by irrigation and authorizing the President to begin the work.

A bill providing for diplomatic and consular service in Cuba.

The Canal bill, authorizing the President to purchase the Panama Canal if, in his judgment, a clear title can be obtained thereto, and making an appropriation for the construction of a canal.

The Ship Subsidy bill passed the Senate, but failed of consideration in the House.

A bill providing for reciprocity with Cuba passed the House, but was shelved in the Senate.

A bill to establish a Department of Commerce also failed, although it was passed by the Senate.

Bills to admit Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma as States passed the House, but failed to receive consideration in the Senate.

A bill providing a pension of $5000 for the widow of the late President McKinley was adopted.

The Senate ratified the treaty adopted by The Hague Peace Conference in 1899; also the Hay-Pauncefote treaty to permit the United States to construct the Nicaragua Canal, also the treaty ceding to the United States the Danish West Indies. Congress adjourned on July 1.

ELECTIONS IN 1903

In 1903 general elections will be held in Philadelphia as follows:

For city and ward officers on Tuesday, February 17. To be chosen; Mayor, Magistrates, members of Select and Common Councils, School Directors and Constables.

Last day for payment of taxes, January 17.

Last day for naturalization, January 17.

For State and county officers on Tuesday, November 5. To be chosen: Judge of the Superior Court, Auditor General, State Treasurer, City Treasurer and Register of Wills.

Last day for payment of taxes, Oct. 3.

Last day for naturalization, October 3.

Qualifications of Electors.

Residence.—A voter must have resided in the State one year, and in the election district or division for at least two months, before the election. Where a citizen previously a resident has removed and returned, he must have resided in the State six months before the election.

Taxes.—No citizen can vote who is over twenty-two years old without having previously paid a State and county tax within two years, assessed at least two months before the election, and paid, at the latest, one month before the election.

Age.—Every male citizen between twenty-one and twenty-two years of age, having the proper qualifications of residence, native birth, or claiming the naturalization of his father during his minority, may vote without being assessed.

Naturalized citizens may vote if they have the qualifications of residence in the State and district and payment of taxes, and have been naturalized one month before the election.

Proof of Right to Vote.—If the name is not on the registry of voters, the person claiming must make affidavit of his claims, and prove his right by at least one qualified voter of the district or division. Proof of payment of taxes is made by producing the tax receipt or by affidavit that it has been lost, destroyed or never received. A naturalized citizen must produce his naturalization papers, unless he has been for five consecutive years a voter in the district.

BUSINESS OF THE POST-OFFICE

The annual report of the Postmaster General presents the following summary comparison of the operations of his department in this and the previous fiscal year:

Ordinary postal revenue .....	$109,531,778.67	$119,958,229.40
Receipts from money order business.....	1,668,659.29	1,889,817.86
Other sources ...	430,755.43	.....

Total receipts from all sources ..	$111,631,193.39	$121,848,047.26
Total expenditures for year .....	115,554,920.87	124,785,697.07

Excess of expenditures over receipts ...	$3,923,727.48	$2,937,649.81

A decrease in the deficit from the previous fiscal year of $986,077.67.

It is estimated that the growth of the business of the department in the next fiscal year will produce an added revenue of $10,966,324, making the total estimated revenue of $132,814,371. As the postal appropriation for 1903 is $138,416,598, the deficit is $5,602,227. For 1904 the same rate of increase indicates a probable revenue of $144,767,664, a probable expenditure of $153,010,520, and a deficit of $8,242,856.

THE SHIPPING COMBINE

The projected combination of the steamship lines was chartered on October 1, 1902, at Trenton, the promoters taking advantage of the old charter of the International Navigation Company, incorporated June 6, 1893, with an authorized capital stock of $15,000,000. In an amended charter the name was changed to that of the International Mercantile Marine Company, and the capital stock increased to $120,000,000, equally divided into $60,000,000 of preferred stock, bearing 6 per cent. cumulative dividends, and $60,000,000 of common stock. The company is also authorized to issue $75,000,000 of 4½ per cent. bonds. There is a similarity in the amended charter of the International Mercantile Marine Company to that of the United States Steel Corporation, the amendments having been adopted at a meeting of the directors of the original company, held on September 17, and subsequently ratified by the stockholders.

The officers of the company are to be as follows:

President—C. A. Griscom.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

C. A. Griscom,	Rt. Hon. W. J. Pirrie,
P. A. B. Widener,	J. Bruce Ismay,
Robert Bacon,	Sir Clinton E. Dawkins,
John I. Waterbury,	Henry Wilding,
E. J. Berwind,	Charles F. Torrey.
George W. Perkins,
James H. Hyde,
Charles Steele,

EXECUTIVE AND FINANCE COMMITTEE.

C. A. Griscom,	E. J. Berwind,
P. A. B. Widener,	Charles Steele.
George W. Perkins,

BRITISH COMMITTEE.

Sir Clinton E. Dawkins, Chairman;	J. Bruce Ismay,
W. J. Pirrie,	Henry Wilding,
	Charles F. Torrey.

The six lines which will be in the combination are:

White Star Line.
 American Line.
 Red Star Line.
 Leyland Line.
 Atlantic Transport Line.
 Dominion Line.

LOCAL CHRONOLOGY.

[From December 1, 1901, to November 30, 1902.]

1901.—December 1. Auditor General Hardenbergh and City Treasurer Moore announced the appointment of Select Councilmen William McCoach, Joseph H. Klemmer and Harry J. Trainer, together with Gustave Bacharach, Secretary of the Civil Service Board, and William H. Murphy, Secretary of the Donnelly-Ryan organization, as Mercantile Appraisers, to serve for three years.

December 4. Stockholders of Swarthmore College elected Joseph Wharton President and Charles M. Biddle Treasurer.

December 6. Agents for the Law and Order Society raided rooms at Eleventh street and Columbia avenue, occupied by the Twentieth Ward Republican Club, and five men, who were among those found in the place, were held in $2000 bail each, to answer charges of pool selling and bookmaking, keeping a gaming house and keeping a disorderly house.

December 7. Mary Wright, colored, was acquitted of a charge of murdering her former mistress, Mrs. Sarah A. Hagenbotham.

December 10. The Board of Education decided to name a new school house in the Nineteenth Section after the late President McKinley, and to honor the late Thomas Meehan by giving his name to one in Germantown.

December 13. The new harbor of refuge at the entrance to Delaware Bay finished, at a cost of $2,150,000.

December 19. The old Mint building was put up at auction, but Secretary Gage named $2,000,000 as an upset price, and no bid to that amount was received. James A. Longstreet offered $1,500,000.

December 20. Lillian Vickers, daughter of a wealthy cattleman of California, was burned to death in the dormitory of Bryn Mawr College, where she had been a student three years.

December 23. A bill to create a permanent loan of $5,000,000 was favorably reported by the Finance Committee to Common Council.

FOOTBALL.

Considering that all of the larger university elevens in the East did not meet each other, the football season of 1902 ended very satisfactorily. Yale showed her complete superiority over all the elevens she met, winning against Princeton with comparative ease, and crushing Harvard in an unexpected manner. Yale developed one of the best elevens in her history. It compared with her great teams of 1891, 1893 and 1900.

It is a difficult task to place the Eastern elevens in their proper order after Yale. Harvard and Princeton did not meet, and Pennsylvania and Princeton did not play each other. Students of the game who witnessed all the big championship contests consider that Harvard possessed a superior team to that of Princeton. There is little doubt that Princeton could have won against Pennsylvania, and despite the latter's good game against Cornell in the final contest of her schedule, there are many who consider that West Point was decidedly stronger than the Quakers.

While Yale was generally conceded to have much the stronger team than any of the other Eastern colleges, there were several Western elevens that appeared to have about the same development and strength of the New Haven aggregation. Michigan had a wonderful eleven, many critics averring that it was the greatest combination of speed, strength and endurance, both offensively and defensively, that ever played the game in this country. It completed its second year without sustaining a single defeat. Minnesota and Wisconsin also were represented by unusually strong elevens.

BASEBALL.

The war between the two major baseball leagues was waged with extreme bitterness on each side during the season of 1902. In the matter of attendance and public sympathy the American League had a decided advantage over its older rival. It also had the better teams.

The local season was noted for the winning of the American League championship pennant by the Athletics. The local team made one of the greatest fights and strongest finishes ever known in the history of the national pastime.

American League.

The standing of the American League clubs at the ending of the season follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Athletics.....	83	53	.610
St. Louis.....	78	58	.574
Boston.....	77	60	.562

Washington.....	61	75	.449
Detroit.....	52	83	.385
Baltimore.....	50	88	.362

National League.

Pittsburg won the National League championship without a struggle, all interest in the fight being lost by reason of the champions making it a runaway race. Pittsburg broke a record in the matter of games won by winning 103 contests, which is one more than the previous record, held by Boston. The standing of the clubs at the season's end follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Pittsburg .....	103	36	.741
Brooklyn.....	75	63	.540
Boston.....	73	64	.533

FOREIGN MAIL SERVICE

The report of N. M. Brooks, Superintendent of Foreign Mails, for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1902, shows that the total weight of mails dispatched by sea to foreign countries was 10,212,572 pounds, distributed as follows: Letters and post cards, 1,208,617 pounds; other articles, 9,003,955.

The total amount of compensation received by the different lines of steamers for transatlantic service was $1,116,178, including the following: International Navigation Company (contract service), $662,184; International Navigation Company, Red Star, $4916; Cunard, $221,224; North German Lloyd, $83,372; Hamburg-American, $55,092; White Star, $51,019.

The total amount of compensation for transpacific service was: Vessels of United States register, $381,538; vessels of foreign register, $47,065. The total amount of compensation for miscellaneous service was: Vessels of United States register, $482,905; vessels of foreign register, $53,820.

The report says that the actual net cost of the service was $2,245,625. It is estimated that the sum of $4,901,176 was received by the Department as postage on articles exchanged with all foreign countries, and that of that sum the postage collected on the articles exchanged with foreign countries other than Canada and Mexico amounted to $3,737,318.57, or $1,491,693.02 more than the net cost of the service, exclusive of the cost of transporting the articles between the United States exchange postoffices and the United States postoffices at which they were mailed or delivered.

Concerning the operation of the sea post service, the report says that very few complaints have been received, and that in the distribution of 14,478,152 letters and post cards, only 950 errors have been reported.

UNITED STATES VESSEL TONNAGE

The annual report of the Commissioner of Navigation shows that on June 30, 1902, the documented tonnage of the United States was the largest in our history, comprising 24,273 vessels, of 5,797,902 gross tons. The increase over last year is almost wholly in large steel steamers. In ten years the number of American, British and German square rigged vessels has decreased 50 per cent.

American vessels carried 8.8 per cent. of our exports and imports, compared with 8.2 per cent. in 1901.

On July 1, 1902, there were building or under contract in the United States 347,500 tons of steel merchant vessels.

The report prints at length the agreement of the transatlantic merger and its fleet of over 1,000,000 tons, and says: "The organization of so great a navigation company under American auspices is, however, the most important step toward the establishment of the influence of Americans on the ocean which has been taken since modern shipbuilding plants were developed in the United States."

RACES FOR THE AMERICA'S CUP.

Sir Thomas Lipton having built another Shamrock, and again issued a challenge for the America's Cup, the Columbia and the Constitution are to be put in trim to defend it, and a new cup defender is being built by Herreshoff for a syndicate composed of E. H. Gary, Clement A. Griscom, J. J. Hill, William B. Leeds, Norman Ream, William Rockefeller, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Henry Walters and P. A. B. Widener. The races are to be sailed beginning August 20 and on alternate days following.

The cup was originally offered in 1851 by the Royal Yacht Squadron for a race around the Isle of Wight, open to all comers. The America was built by George Steers for a syndicate, of which Commodore Stevens was the head, for the express purpose of being sent to England to race, but not to enter the particular race in which she won the cup, for at the time she was built her owners had no knowledge that such a cup had been offered.

The race was sailed August 22, 1851. The America was one of a fleet of eighteen vessels, ranging in size from 47 to 392 tons. The America was a schooner of 170 tons. She distanced all her competitors except the Aurora, the smallest cutter in the fleet. The Aurora (47 tons) came in twenty minutes behind the America. Had there been allowance for tonnage, the America would have won by two minutes. The record of the race is:

	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed Time.
America.....	10.00.00	8.35.00	10.37.00
Aurora.....	10.00.00	8.55.00	10.55.00

SECOND MATCH.

The cup became the absolute property of the winners. But in 1857 they made it a perpetual challenge cup, and entrusted it to the New York Yacht Club. It remained unchallenged, however, until 1868, when Sir James Ashbury proposed to bring over the yacht Cambria; but he undertook to dictate the terms of the race, and so much correspondence ensued that the challenger did not appear until 1870. The Cambria was obliged to sail against a fleet, being one of eighteen that started, over a course of thirty-eight miles. The Cambria came in tenth. The old America finished fourth. The record was:

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Magic.....	4.07.54	3.58.26
Cambria.....	4.34.57	4.37.38

THIRD MATCH.

Mr. Ashbury got the terms changed for the third attempt to lift the cup. He was not to sail against a fleet, but a series of races with any one schooner named by the New York Yacht Club, best three out of five. The first race was sailed October 16, 1871, the record being:

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia.....	6.17.42	6.19.41
Livonia.....	6.43.00	6.46.55

Columbia won by 27 minutes 14 seconds. On October 18 they sailed again, the record being:

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia.....	3.01.33	3.07.41
Livonia.....	3.06.49	3.18.15

Columbia, although disabled, was obliged to race again the next day, and again broke down, Livonia winning. This is the only heat ever won by a challenger. The record was:

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Livonia.....	3.53.05	4.02.25
Columbia.....	4.12.38	4.17.35

Sappho then took up the defense of the cup, and won two races, the records being:

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Sappho.....	5.33.24	5.36.02
Livonia.....	6.04.38	6.09.23

And for the fifth of the series:

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Sappho.....	4.38.05	4.46.17
Livonia.....	5.04.41	5.11.44

Mr. Ashbury claimed the cup on absurd grounds, and bad feeling was engendered by acrimonious correspondence on the subject, so that five years elapsed before another challenge was received, and then it came from Canada.

FOURTH MATCH.

The races were to be the best two out of three. Both contestants were centreboard schooners. The defender of the cup won, these being the records:

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Madeline.....	5.24.55	5.23.54
Countess of Dufferin...	5.34.53	5.34.53

Second Race—

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Madeline.....	7.19.47	7.18.46
Countess of Dufferin...	7.46.00	7.46.00

The above races were sailed in August, 1876.

FIFTH MATCH.

The Canadians tried again in 1881, with the Atalanta. The Mischief was selected as the defender and won. Both were centreboard sloops.

First Race—

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Mischief.....	4.17.09	4.17.09
Atalanta.....	4.48.24	4.25.29

First Race—

	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Mischief.....	4.54.53	4.54.53
Atalanta.....	5.36.32	5.33.47

SIXTH MATCH.

A new deed of gift was then made, and in 1886 the Puritan and Genesta were the racers. An accident occurred at the start of one of the trials, and Sir Richard Sutton, the owner of the Genesta, was notified that he could sail over the course and claim the race, but he declined to do so, saying that he wanted a race, not a walk-over. The Puritan won.

First Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Puritan.....	6.06.05	6.06.05
Genesta.....	6.22.52	6.22.21

Second Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Puritan.....	5.09.14	5.03.14
Genesta.....	5.05.23	5.04.52

SEVENTH MATCH.

The Galatea was sent over the next year, with no better success. In her races with the Mayflower these were the records:

First Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Mayflower.....	5.26.41	5.26.41
Galatea.....	5.39.21	5.38.43

Second Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Mayflower.....	6.49.00	6.49.00
Galatea.....	7.18.48	7.18.09

EIGHTH MATCH.

Scotland was the next contestant, sending over the Thistle in 1887. The Volunteer was built to meet her, and won with these records:

First Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Volunteer.....	4.53.18	4.53.18
Thistle.....	5.12.46	5.12.41

Second Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Volunteer.....	5.42.56	5.42.56
Thistle.....	5.54.51	5.54.51

NINTH MATCH.

The terms of gift were again changed so as to provide for ocean courses. In 1893 Lord Dunraven brought over the Valkyrie, which was beaten by the Vigilant, in a series of close races, the records being:

First Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Vigilant.....	4.05.47	4.05.47
Valkyrie II.....	4.13.23	4.11.35

Second Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Vigilant.....	3.25.01	3.25.01
Valkyrie II.....	3.37.24	3.35.36

Third Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Vigilant.....	3.24.39	3.24.39
Valkyrie II.....	3.26.52	3.25.14

The latter race was won by only 35 seconds, corrected time.

TENTH MATCH.

Lord Dunraven tried again in 1895 with Valkyrie III. Defender won two races, and was given the third on a foul. Tho record:

First Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Defender.....	5.00.24	4.59.55
Valkyrie III.....	5.08.44	5.08.44

Second Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Defender.....	3.56.25	3.55.56
Valkyrie III.....	3.55.09	3.55.09

This race was awarded to Defender on a foul.

Third Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Defender.....	4.43.11	.....
Valkyrie III.....	.....	.....

In this race Valkyrie crossed the line and then withdrew, leaving Defender to go over the course alone. Lord Dunraven made false charges against Mr. Iselin, and was expelled from the New York Yacht Club.

ELEVENTH MATCH.

Sir Thomas Lipton was the next challenger, with Shamrock I. The races were sailed in September, 1899, nearly two weeks being consumed in the attempts. They resulted as follows:

First Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia.....	4.53.53	4.53.53
Shamrock.....	5.04.07	5.04.01

Second Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia.....	3.37.00	.....
Shamrock.....	.....	.....

Shamrock lost her topmast and withdrew.

Third Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia.....	3.38.25	3.38.09
Shamrock.....	3.44.43	3.44.43

TWELFTH MATCH.

The races of 1901 excited special interest because of the failure of the New York Yacht Club to produce a new yacht to meet Shamrock II. The races were sailed September 28 and October 3 and 4.

First Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia.....	4.31.07	4.30.24
Shamrock II.....	4.31.44	4.31.44

Second Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia.....	3.13.18	3.12.35
Shamrock II.....	3.16.10	3.16.10

Third Race—	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbia.....	4.33.40	4.32.57
Shamrock II.....	4.33.38	4.33.38

18,000,000 SCHOOL CHILDREN

The annual report of the Commissioner of Education shows that the grand total of pupils in schools, elementary, secondary and higher, both public and private, in the United States for the year ended June 30, 1901, was 17,299,230, an increase of 278,520 pupils over the previous year. Of this number the enrollment of pupils in institutions supported by general and local taxes furnished by States and municipalities was 15,710,391, as against 15,443,462, the number reported for the previous year. Besides these there were certain special institutions enrolling nearly 500,000 pupils. Adding the enrollment in these special schools to that for general education, the aggregate is something over 17,750,000 of our population that received education for a longer or shorter period during the year.

The value of property used for public school purposes has risen to $576,963,089 from $130,380,008 in 1870, and the expenditures for the common schools (including elementary and secondary schools, but excluding all institutions for higher education) amounted to $226,043,236, having risen to this sum from $63,396,666 in 1870. In 1870 the expenditure for schools per capita of the population was $1.64; the past year it was $2.93 per capita of the population, the highest that it has ever been.

The average attendance of each pupil for the entire number enrolled was ninety-nine days for the year, an increase of twenty-four days over the previous year.

In 1896 Bryan was on two tickets, but the vote above given represents the combined vote of Democrats and Middle of the Road Populists. The Prohibition vote in 1896 was 132,007; the Socialist vote, 36,274. In 1900 Bryan received fewer votes than in 1896. McKinley's plurality was the largest given since the organization of the Republican party. Returns for the Electors of the minor parties are incomplete. As far as recorded, Deb, Social Democrat, received 97,426; Barker, Populist, 46,081; Malloney, Socialist Labor, 36,372.

STATE ELECTIONS IN 1902.

In the "off years," between Presidential elections, there is usually a revulsion of public sentiment, and the measure of its force is used to determine the chances in the next Presidential campaign. As there was no revulsion in 1902, the indications are that the Republicans are at least as strong as in 1900, and barring unforeseen contingencies, should win easily in 1904. There was another unusual condition attending the 1902 elections, and that is that many of them were held with a distinct endorsement of the President for renomination. As a rule politicians are slow to commit themselves in advance. They prefer to wait until the last moment before determining their course, but in 1902 President Roosevelt was such a distinct favorite that several State Conventions endorsed him as the candidate of the party for 1904. In so far as the issue of the State elections was based upon national policy the Republican party (or for the moment President Roosevelt) was distinctly indorsed. As usual in an off year the majorities were reduced, but the Republicans strengthened their hold upon the close or doubtful States except Nevada and lost notably, but not entirely, only in New York, where the Democrats had an exceptionally strong candidate for Governor, and the Republicans were disturbed by factional differences. New York remained Republican, but by a margin of less than 10,000 votes. Nevertheless the returns of 1902 indicate that if the votes had been cast for Presidential Electors the Republicans would have had 322 electoral votes against 154 for the Democrats, the Republican majority being considerably larger than for McKinley.

The Democrats have nothing outside of the "solid South" except Nevada, and (nominally) Rhode Island, which elected a Democratic Governor for personal reasons, and a Republican Legislature. On the other hand the Republicans strengthened their hold upon the former Democratic States of Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia. Thirty-one States were carried by the Republicans and fourteen by the Democrats.

The States electing Governors in November voted as follows, the exact figures given being official:

	Rep.	Dem.
Alabama .....	24,423	67,760
California .....	112,000	109,000
Colorado .....	100,000	90,000

NEW JERSEY.

The Congressional vote was as follows: Republicans, 189,576; Democrats, 164,192; the vote by districts being:

	Rep.	Dem.	Pro.
First .....	20,371	15,274	1,120
Second .....	19,966	9,465	2,323
Third .....	20,014	18,345	546

DELAWARE.

The vote of Delaware was 21,026 Republican to 16,396 Democratic, but the Republican vote was divided between L. H. Ball, Republican, and William Byrne, Union Republican.

IN OTHER STATES.

In the States other than those above enumerated, and which elected only Congressmen and in some cases minor State officials, the reported vote, or in some cases majority only, was as follows:

	Rep.	Dem.
Arkansas .....	37,662	77,354
Florida .....		16,428
Georgia .....	5,000	48,000
Illinois .....	456,659	360,925
Indiana .....	298,819	263,555
Iowa .....	229,225	150,011
Kentucky .....	200,000	207,000
Louisiana .....	9,277	60,206
Maine .....	27,538
Maryland .....	100,054	91,546
Mississippi .....		40,000
Missouri .....	228,395	273,090
Montana .....	1,000
North Carolina .....	71,275	132,239
Ohio .....	436,171	345,706
Oregon .....		750
Utah .....	46,000	44,000
Vermont .....	59,662	7,477
Virginia .....	66,000	84,000
Washington .....	59,017	32,544
West Virginia .....	108,000	93,000

Oregon voted for Governor in June, and elected G. E. Chamberlain, Democrat, to that office, but in November two Republicans were elected to Congress from that State. Vermont failed to elect a Governor, neither of two Republican candidates having a majority, but the Legislature elected a Republican Governor.

AMERICAN LEAGUE AVERAGES.

The leading American League batsmen and fielders in their respective positions are shown in the subjoined table. Delahanty, of the Washington Club, used his stick with the best effect, as far as averages are concerned, the big outfielder batting for .376. His old team mate, Lajoie, is a close second, with an average of .369.

The champion Athletics have five men who batted .300 or better in a list of twenty-eight players.

The champion Athletics did not lead in fielding in any one position outside of pitcher, where Wilson had the best average.

PENNSYLVANIA'S SCHOOLS.

The 29,631 schools of Pennsylvania cost the Commonwealth during the year ending June 2, 1902, a total of $23,027,679.82, a little less than half of which represented salaries paid to teachers. Of the total expenditures the State paid $5,550,000, the rest having been provided for out of local taxation. These figures show that, based on the total enrollment of 1,163,509 pupils, the cost per pupil was a little less than $20 for the year.

The figures in detail are as follows:

Number of school districts in the State .....	2,533
Number of schools.....	29,631
Number of graded schools....	17,162
Number of superintendents...	139
Number of male teachers.....	8,585
Number of female teachers...	22,055
Whole number of teachers....	30,640
Average salaries of male teachers per month.....	$44.92
Average salaries of female teachers per month.....	33.78
Average length of school term in months.....	8.32
Whole number of pupils.....	1,163,509
Average number of pupils in daily attendance.....	871,958
Cost of school houses—purchasing, building, renting, etc .....	$4,362,561.09
Teachers' wages.....	11,831,871.38
Cost of school text-books....	$25,477.77
Cost of school supplies, other than text-books, including maps, globes, etc. (outside of Philadelphia).....	459,805.09
Fuel, contingencies, fees of collectors and other expenses .....	5,547,963.49
Total expenditures.....	23,027,678.82
State appropriation for the school year ending June 2, 1902 .....	5,550,000.00
Appropriation to State Normal Schools for school year ending June 2, 1902.....	200,000.00
Estimated value of school property .....	55,994,694.25

THE SAMOAN CASE

King Oscar, as arbitrator between Germany, Great Britain and the United States, decided in November in favor of Germany.

The arbitrator recites that the United States steamer Philadelphia and the British ships Porpoise and Royalist, March 15, 1899, opened fire across the town of Apia, Samoa, directing the same against the forces of High Chief Mataafa; that the same vessels brought the newly appointed King of Samoa, Malietoa, and his forces to Mulinu Point and supplied them arms and ammunition for the ensuing struggle against Mataafa. In answer to the British and American claims that under the treaty of Berlin any one of the signatory Powers was fully authorized to enforce the decision of the Chief Justice of Samoa, declaring Malietoa King, the arbitrator says:

We have found nothing in the said general act or any subsequent agreement which authorizes one of the signatory Powers, or a majority of them, to take action to enforce the conditions of the act or to make the decisions of the Chief Justice binding on the Powers.

The decision concludes as follows:

That the military action in question, viz., the bringing back of the Malietoans and the distribution to them of arms and ammunition, the bombardment, the military operations on shore and the stoppage of the street traffic, cannot be considered as having been warranted.

And that, therefore, his Britannic Majesty's Government and the United States Government are responsible under the convention of the 7th of November, 1899, for losses caused by said military action.

We reserve for a future decision the question as to the extent to which the two Governments, or each of them, may be considered responsible for such losses.

Abstract of Report of Secretary Shaw for the Year Ending June 30, 1902.

The report of Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, opens with the usual exhibition of the receipts and expenditures for the preceding fiscal year, and with estimates for the current and next fiscal years. The total receipts for the year 1902 were $684,326,280, which may be tabulated for easy reference and comparison. Omitting details as to miscellaneous receipts, the three principal sources of revenue were as follows:

Customs .....	$254,444,708
Internal revenue .....	271,880,122
Postal service.....	121,848,047
Miscellaneous .....	36,153,403

Total .....$684,326,280

The expenditures for the year were $593,038,904, and are thus classified:

Civil .....	$111,067,171
Military .....	112,272,216
Naval .....	67,803,128
Indians .....	10,049,585
Pensions .....	138,488,560
Interest .....	29,108,045
Postal service.....	124,250,190

Total .....$593,038,904
Surplus ..... 91,287,376

The securities redeemed on account of the sinking fund aggregate $70,249,669.

It is estimated that the total revenues for the current year will be, including postal receipts, $694,020,630. Deducting the postal receipts, estimated at $132,020,630, the total revenue anticipated is $562,000,000. To December 1, the receipts, exclusive of the postal service, were, in round numbers, $242,000,000, which is equal to an average of $48,000,000 for the past five months. The Secretary estimates that from the two great revenue and from the miscellaneous sources the receipts for the ensuing seven months will be $320,000,000, which is equal to a monthly average of $46,000,000. Excluding the postal receipts, it is estimated the expenditures will be $519,000,000, which would give a surplus of $43,000,000 in July, 1903.

For the year ending with June 30, 1904, the estimated receipts are placed at $729,767,664, and the expenditures at $677,956,776, which would give a surplus of $51,810,887. These figures include the postal receipts and expenditures, both being estimated at $144,767,664.

PENNSYLVANIA FINANCES.

During the fiscal year ending November 28 the sum of $19,374,093.53 was received for the general fund of the State Treasury and $3,573,797.12 for the sinking fund, making a total of $22,947,890.65, which surpasses the receipts of any previous year in the State's history.

The expenditures from the general fund during the year were $15,210,792.31 and from the sinking fund $2,576,312.88, making the total payments from both funds $17,787,106.19.

There remained in the sinking fund November 28, 1902, the sum of $3,717,440.36, to be used in paying the State debt as fast as the financial officers can get hold of outstanding bonds.

There remained in the general fund at the same date the sum of $9,151,366.28, available for the payment of all bills as soon as presented.

FINANCES OF THE CITY.

The annual statement of the estimated expenses, receipts, assets and liabilities of the city, submitted by City Controller Walton to City Councils, shows the estimated expenses for 1903 amount to $31,993,785.31, while the estimated receipts appropriations for 1903 to run the municipal departments aggregate $26,444,435.74, and the limit allowed for the appropriation for the year at the present tax rate of $1.85, after lawful obligations are deducted, is $21,898,596.92. The statement showed that to meet the estimated expenses of $31,993,785.31 would require a $2.40 tax rate.

THE FUNDED DEBT.

The gross funded debt on January 1, 1902, was $59,932,895.22, since which date, the statement showed, the following amounts have been added: $15,000 of sub-way loan of March 15, 1894; $1,400,000 of loan of June 17, 1898; $5,000,000 of loan of June 11, 1902, and $4700 unclaimed matured loans returned by the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank.

The redemptions during 1902 were $200,000 of 6 per cent. loan No. 49, $1,000,000 of 6 per cent. loan No. 50, and unclaimed matured loans of $2500, making the gross funded debt August 1, 1902, $65,150,095.22.

Deducting the city loans held by the Sinking Fund Commissioners of $9,500,300, there remains a net funded debt of $55,649,795.22, an increase since January 1 last of $5,594,400.

The four loans maturing January 1, 1903, to wit: Loan No. 51, $2,138,000; Park loan No. 3, $1,800,000; loan No. 53, $200,000, and loan No. 54, $970,000, will be met by the Sinking Fund Commissioners from the assets standing to their credit in the fund. These, together with the serial loans falling due on same date, which are already provided for by direct appropriation amounting to $680,000, will reduce the gross funded debt January 1, 1903, to $59,362,095.22, or $570,800 less than the gross funded debt shown on January 1, 1902.

FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS OF PHILADELPHIA.

The banks of Philadelphia, by consolidation, economical management and conservative use of profits to increase reserves, have attained a strong position, as is shown in the comparative statement here given.

The trust companies have had a remarkable development, due to the fact that they engage in many lines of business—insurance of various kinds, savings institutions, banks of deposit, etc., and offer interest on deposits. They are, in general, managed with such care that they have inspired confidence, and in the course of a few years have obtained deposits exceeding either those of banks proper or of savings funds. In May, 1902. a period taken for comparison because at this time reports were made by the trust companies to the Banking Commissioner, the trust companies of Philadelphia had deposits amounting to $162,902,702, while the deposits in banks amounted to $130,644,418, and saving funds to $91,793,237. The success of the Trust companies is further shown by the steadily increasing value of their stock in the markets, their value being measured by their earning powers.
